The Central Valley of California is at a climax of the deluge tonight; - floods that came surging over the weekend. In the basins of the Sacramento and San Juaquin Rivers a record-breaking rain Mas falling for the eighth consecutive day, bringing the worst flood in California history - ten million in damage.

The Central Valley is one of those fabulously rich agricultural regions of California, and hardest hit is one of the richest—the vast cotton fields and truck farms around the City of Tulare. That is a basin of an enormous lake that rippled back in geological time. The bed of the dry lake makes marvelous farmland;— also a depression to catch the waters, when the deluge comes.

It is expected to flood the same area north and east of the transfer where four hundred people were forced to flee from their homes. Many who had returned were again being evacuated this evening.

COREAN-CHINESE PRISONERS

General MacArthur's spokesman in Tokyo said today that all Chinese prisoners interviewed so far said they were ordered into Korea. Out of a hundred and fifty Chinese interrogated, not one was a volunteer, this, despite Moscow and Peking claims that all Chinese forces fighting in Korea are "volunteers." Chinese officers captured said their orders were "to drive the enemy from Korea and occupy the country."

The Japanese THERES Foreign Minister, and Prime Minister for a short time during the war and the first high-ranking Japanese war criminal to be released. It was Shigemitsu who rigned the surrender aboard the Battleship Missouri in Mineteen Forty-five. During the trial of Japanese war criminals he was given a sentence of seven years in prison. This - subject to parole. Yeterday, Russia launched a bitter protest with the State Department in Washington over his release. But today the State Department declared that the Soviet complaint ; The State Dept added ignored or refused outright. Soviets apparently do not understand the system of an agreement on atomic control and the creation of a U. N. police force. These provisions are outstanding in the program, which includes measures and to backward

Secretary-General Trygve Lie took the floor in a dramatic appearance. I denied Soviet charges that his plan was written in Washington. The Assembly of the world organization voted down a Soviet counter proposal -- featuring the admission of Red China. Then - adopted the Trygve Lie Twenty-Year Peace Program.

In London beden Foreign Minister Bevin told the Commons that Britain positively will not withdraw its troops from the Suez Canal. The five-thousand Tommies who guard the canal from Port Said to Port Tewfik and Suez, will stay right there in the desert.

The British Government has "no intention of taking steps -- which would leave the Middle East defenseless" was the way Bevin put it.

He also turned down the second demand made last week by Egypt's Prime Minister - the demand that the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan should be handed over to King Farouk. Only the Egyptian flag to fly over Khartoum and Omdurman - the Union Jack to be hauled down at the fort where "Chinese" Gordon held out against the fanatical hordes of the Mahdi - and where Kitchener went to the relief of Khartoum accompanied by a young reporter named Winston Churchill. There will be none of that, says Bevin. The Foreign Minister told the House of Commons of great progress recently made in the Sudan, and asked that the Sudanese be allowed to decide the future of their own country, "in due course." Britain's Foreign Minister added his remarks on a friendly note saying that negotiations with Egypt will go on when the Egyptian Foreign Minister arrives in London next week.

Word from Khatmandu, capital of the Himalayan country of Nepal, tonight is that troops loyal to the Prime Minister have driven the Nationalists out of their remaining stronghold. This means Nepal is still ruled by His Highness Maharaja Mohun Shamsher Jan Bahadur

Rama. That's the Prime Minister's name.

The telephone line across the mountains from mysterious, romantic Khatmandu to India is working again today. Over that wire from Khatmandu comes a different version of the story about King Tribhuvana's flight. Foreign residents who have lived in Mepal for many years say that the King was not deposed by the Prime Minister. They say the King who had no power had planned to flee the country for some time. The story is that King Tribhuvana has long wanted to visit the outside world, but has been prevented from doing so by the rigid Nepalese tradition which decrees that the King must never leave the throne - not even for a few hours; even if the power has long been in the hands of the Prime Minister!

Some twenty years ago, King Tribhuvana asked to be allowed to abdicate so he could travel abroad. But the Prime Minister would not let him; it would be any against all royal tradition. So today it seems that King Tribhuvan's flight from Nepal may not have been made so that a more democratic government could be set up, but rather that he wanted to take a look at the outside world of which he has heard considerable.

CALIFORNIA

In Washington tonight Democratic Senator

Sheridan Downey of California announced that he would resign at the end of this month - that is more than a month before his term expert expires. In his place,

Governor Earl Warren announced that he would appoint

Republican Senator-elect Richard Nixon. Downey said that he was quitting because of ill-health -- the same reason that he had not sought re-election.

Anybody in this country, who is thirteen years old, is entitled to feel like Linda Keller of Hyattsville, Maryland. (And any thirteen-year-old would have the same right to send a letter to President Truman. And - make radio stations halt regular broadcasting.)

Linda says that, all her life, she has heard

- "nothing but war." Well, she was born in Nineteen

Thirty-Seven, when the Second World War crisis was rising to catastrophe. She was two when the global conflict broke out, and going on five when her own country got into

it. Eight - when the hot war was followed so quickly by the cold war. Eleven, when the Berlin blockade threatened World War Three. And now - Korea.

"I'd like to find out about peace." So would Harry Truman. So would we all. And Linda added - "Maybe prayer will help."

Her suggestion to the President was as follows: "I think it would be nice if at twelve, noon, all radio programs would stop, and everyone would pray for the boys overseas. God will surely protect us all," wrote Linda.

The President passed the suggestion along to the Board of Chaplains of the Armed Forces, and they got in touch with radio stations at Washington and vicinity. Which was why today, in the national capital area, the radios at noon stopped regular broadcasting, and had "a one-minute prayer for peace."

All because thirteen-year-old Linda Keller, in the eighth grade, at Hyattsville, Maryland, has never heard about anything but war. Like millions of other children growing up in these ominous years.

"A quiet weekend" - and where better to spend it than Dublin - with a few nice juicy steaks washed down with Guinness. That was the thought uppermost in the minds of two U.S. B-Fifty bomber crews based in England who set out for Dublin and a quiet weekend. That was two days ago - on Saturday. But when they touched down at Dublin Airport they were amazed to see so many people. Thousands swarming all over the airfield and jamming the roads; special police everywhere. Why? Also why were so many police there to guard the two B-Fifties? Someone showed them a local newspaper with a screaming headline: "U.S. atom bomb planes in Dublin!"

In an editorial the paper suggested that there was more to the visit of these flyers than just a simple desire to spend the weekend in Dublin.

The Anti-Partition Association - that's an Irish society sworn to restore Irish unity, sent word to our Ambassador. It stated that American airmen, "no doubt of Irish descent," were being used as "tools of English Fifth Column activity; "those were the words.

In fair Dublin the rumors spread fast.

The giant bombers were there to stay. They were there to test Dublin Airport as a permanent base! Ireland had finally joined the Atlantic Pact - Ireland was going to buy a fleet of atom bombers of which these were the first! Also greatest rumor of all -- "the two planes had live atom bombs right on board!

The U.S. flyers were taken in tow by the U.S.

Air Attache. They got their juicy steaks at the Dublink

Gresham Hotel. But it wasn't such a quiet weekend!

How was yours, helson?
