MOSCOW C. J. - Sunoco and P. A.D. Juec., Murch 19, 1947.

takes a stand against the Soviet demand for ten billion dollars in reparations from conquered Germany And -- this newest pm diplomatic clash between our country and the land of Stalin revolves around a question of Yalta, something that was agreed upon, promised, at the Yalta conference.

been much talk about what the late President Roosevelt may have conceded to Stalin at that memorable meeting of the Big Three. We know that F D R and the Red Dictator got along famously, had friendly confidential talks. Predges www were made -- and today, at Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov based his claim on a promise that Roosevelt made to Stalin, at Yalta Molotov declared that the am late President agreed that the reparations to be enacted from defeated Germany should be based on a general figure of twenty billion and of this Man Russia was entitled to half' -- ten billion. In other words, the Soviets to get as much reparations as all the rest of the allied nations combined. That, said Molotov today was the agreement that Roosevelt made with Stalin.

(So what had our Secretary of State, General Marshall to say to that? He replied that the Roosevelt-Stalin agreement at Yalta was merely preliminary, tentative, not a definite thing.) To which the Kreetdent British at Moscow today added that, as for themselves, the promise that Roosevelt made to Stalin was not binding -- because they never agreed to it. They had mak no part in the arrangement on reparations that F D R made with the Soviet chief. That was strictly a two man affair, and not okayed by that other member of the Big Three, at Yalta, -- Winston Churchill.

Moreover, there's the matter of the Potsdam Conference which fame followed Yalta.

Secretary Marshall stated today there was a reparations agreement at Potsdam which superceded

the preliminary arrangement at Yalta - the Roosevelt-

Stalin understanding giving place to new negotiations, in which President Truman participated. Secretary

Stated

Marshall that the ten billion dollar claim of the Soviets was contrary to the talks at Potsdam.

Moreover, General Marshall replied with cold severity charges made by Molotov -- an accusation that the United States has already received ten billion dollars in reparations from Germany -- in the form of German patents. General Marshall retorted that this was not true and that the United States has made public its patent information gained from Germany -- while the Soviets have seized similar patents and made no report on them at all.

This new clash between the United States and the Soviets followed a move by France, Extexx which threw the already confused affairs of the conference into a still greater confusion. Remark

French Foreign Minimer Bidault had an interview with Stalin last night -- at midnight -- Stalin's favorite hour. Bidault was the first of the foreign ministers of the Big Four to see Stalin during the present conference. We don't know what was said in the Kremlin at Midnight. But it is apparent that Stalin did not change Bidault's mind, about what France wants -- and the French ideas are very different from the Soviet notions about what's to be done with Germany. They are different from the American and British ideas too -- the French causing a new and complicated split. Molotov wants a United Germany with an increase of German industrial production as a way of getting the ten billion dollars. The Americans and British agree to the first part of that, but object to the second -- the ten billion. The French object to the unification of Germany and increase of German industrial production -- because they are afraid of a new powerful Germany. At the same time, they themselves, want huge reparations -- just am as Molotov does. So the differences of opinion are tangled all over the place -- as the foreign ministers wrangle in Moscow.

Republicans have turned xx down the Democratic proposal that both parties should join in supportings of President Truman's new international policy. The rejection is made by Xx Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece in a letter to the Executive director of the pemocratic National Chairman Gael Sullivan, who issued the suggestion. The Republican reply is Indignant, using such terms as:- "improper" and The Republican Chairman declares that the national committees of the two political parties have no right to dictate to members of their party in Congress on the subject of international *** policy.

The official Republican rejection was foreshadowed earlier in the day by Senator Vandenberg who is strongly in favor of the Truman proposal to give aid to Greece and Turkey against Communism.

He called the proposal advanced by the Democratic Mational Committee "a tragedy". "It would throw our foreign policy squarely into politics." Those were

Sen. Vandenberg's words. His view is that members of Congress should use their own best judgement, not yield to the dictates of party leaders. Each according to his own individual conscience, without regard for party interest -- that's the Vandenberg idea of a non-partisan foreign policy.

(continue on page three)

To this congressional uproar there immediate reaction which the Administration this afternoon -- Acting Secretary of State Acheson declaring that any long delay by Congress might be disastrous to the plan to aid Greece and Turkey against Communism. The Acting Secretary pointed out that Britain is being compelled to withdraw aid to Greece by warch thirty-first, and we must begin to play our part immediately thereafter. So if Congress delays again for any appreciable time after March thirty-first there may be a whole series of grave consequences in Greece.

Mepublican Congressman Eton, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House. Having introduced the bill to provide four hundred million dollars for aid to Greece and Turkey, he now states that hearings am will begin on Thursday. And the first witness to be called will be Acting Secretary of State Acheson who will be called up to give full information about the significance of the Truman move to block communism in the Near East.

The revolution in Paraguay has spread all over the northern part of that South American Republic. This was made clear today when the government of President Morinigo issued a decree imposing -- "a state of war". All Paraguay is now considered a war zone as a military revolt spreads increasingly.

In the Chicago late afternoon the price of wheat dropped, after going through some of the wildest gyrations in the history of grain and the selling of grain. Earlier in the day wheat passed the three dollar mark for the first time in thirty years. The all time high was three-dollars-and-twenty-five cents a bushel; that record set in Nineteen-Seventeen, in the middle of the First World War.

But the end of the trading day brought a reaction

-- just as drastic. Wheat tumbled to two-dollars-and sixty-eight-ccnets-and-a-half a bushel -- the drop being as large as permitted under the regulations for trading.

The gyrations are explained as being due, at least in part, to new rules put into effect in the grain market.

Today marked the passing of a one time fabulous figure of high finance -- William C. Durant, who founded General Motors, rose to dazzling dominance in the world of automobiles, then collapsed into oblivion. They called him the Gunga Din of Wall Street, because his bewildering ups and downs.

In Eighteen-hundred-and-eighty-six Durant set up a small is shop making carriages, and presently turned to that new wonder -- the automobile. His rise was swift and in Nineteen-Mundred-and-eight he founded the General Motors Empir corporation. He had dreams of an immense in empire of automobiles. And in Nineteen-Hundred-and Mine he tried to buy out the Ford Motor Company. If he wa had succeeded he would have been an emperor of autos indeed --His ambitious with both General Motors and Ford. attempts to round up small companies into one big combined over-extended his finances. He borrowed too heavily, and lost control of General Motors, That was a disastrous come-down, but Durant bounced back up again. He organized Chevrolet, paid off six mixixx million dollars that he owed, regained control of General Motors, which he combined with Chevrolet, a super General Motors, -- the giant continue that flourishes today. That was in Nineteen-Fifteen, and Durant rode high until Nineteen-Twenty, when Le was glatin a that a slump following World War One hit the stock market. That rained ruined the motor wizard all over again. The Gunga Din of Wall Street never recovered. In the panic of Nineteen-Twenty-Kine he lost all he had left, and went into a million dollar bankruptcy with assets of two-hundred and and-fifty-dollars. Thereafter the founder of General Motors lived in retirement. Last year he was one of the fourteen pioneers named to the Autam Automobile Hall of Rame.

and now has died at eighty-five.

The selections just announced for the American Olympic Team are not final. From the United Press I have a wire stating that the list of names now goes to the American Olympic Association. Of most likely course that august body will take the recommendations of the Olympic Committee.

from Sun Valley, includes eight men and seven women -if you can call a fourteen year old girla woman.

As a matter of fact one of the most interesting angles of the am while thing is the fact that a fourteen year old girl, Andrea Mead, from Pico Peak, Vermont, is fawn on the list of the first selection the Olympic committee. Think of being an Olympic star ix at fourteen, or fifteen!

Another interesting thing about the selection of the women's team is that four of the girls are from the East, Andrea Mead, Paula Kann, Ruth-Marie Stewart and Rebecca Fraser. Three, including an alternate: Gretchen Fraser who lives just next door to where I am broadcasting out here in the Pacific Morthwest in Portland, Gregor, tonight; Doris Post, of Reno; and Ann Winn, of Salt Lake City.

Among the men it 'is the other way round, more western skiers on the Olympic Team, five from the West and three from the East.

over the selection of Barney McLean who has been having a tough time this season, racing under the tremendous handicap of an injured hip, and one side all strapped up, all the way from his ankle to his shoulder. Just think of skiing at sixty or more miles an hour with a bad leg, and beating the Swiss stars, two of the best skiers in the world, as McLean did on Sunday in the Harriman Trophy Race, in the slalom.

I think skiers everywhere will agree that the American (represent Olympic Committee selected a fine group to represent Uncle Sam at the next Olympic games.

In Washington, the venerable capital of our country, the question is: What has the Yogoniotche Reservoir got to do with baby, that cute little snooky-ookums? What could a reservoir have to do with an infant, especially the Yogoniotche Reservoir? This puzzler today produced a collectors item for lovers of rare and curious literature. (Scores in-Washington are seeking copies of a bulky report put out by the Geological Survey -- and how did baby get mixed in with the geology?) In the Sevier Basin of Utah there's a proposal to provide a supply of water by controlling a reservoir) to controlling a river at Yogoniotche. The project has been studied by the Grag Geological Survey, which produced a voluminous report. The report was passed on to the government printing office, which in turn farmed out the job to a private company. Today the published report got up in a big volume, was handed back to the Geological Survey -- for checking and proof reading. These the xx amazing discovery was made. A description of the site of the xm Yogoniotche Dam

In Washington, the venerable capital of our country, the question is: What has the Yogoniotche Reservoir got to do with baby, that cute little snooky-ookums? What could a reservoir have to do with an infant, especially the Yogoniotche Reservoir? This puzzler today produced a collectors item for lovers of rare and curious literature. (Scores in Washington are seeking copies of a bulky report put out by the Geological Survey -- and how did baby get mixed in with the geology?) In the Sevier Basin of Utah there's a proposal to provide a supply of water by controlling a reservoir) by controlling a river at Yogoniotche. The project has been studied by the Grag Geological Survey, which produced a voluminous report. The report was passed on to the government printing office, which in turn farmed out the job to a private company. Today the published report got up in a big volume, was handed back to the Geological Survey -- for checking and proof reading. These the xx amazing discovery was made. A description of the site of the xm Yogoniotche Dam changed suddenly, and was followed abruptly by the following heading: "The things that will be used when baby is bathed and dressed."

Somebody made a mistake. Somehow, the report of the Geological Survey had got tangled up with a pamphlet issued by the Chidlren's Bureau. The confusion of the baby and the geology is so intricate that the Yogoniotche Reservoir is described with cute little tales about baby's bath, breast feeding and other intimate advice pertaining to snooky-ookums.

The startled officials of the government in frantic haste, tried to call in copies of that geological-baby report. But many of them had already been passed out to individuals who were laughing their heads off -- and treasuring a newly created item for book collectors -- the mix-up of the Yogoniotche Reservoir and mamma's precious darling.

And now Nelson, have you any advice for Mamma's precious darling? Back to you, Nelson/

A storm in Greate, has arisen over the Truman proposal for aid to Greece and Turkey -against communism. There's indignant Republican reaction to the suggestion made by the Democratic national Committee -- that the Republicans should join in a two-party statement supporting the President's new international policy. Senator Vandenberg, the Number One Republican in international affairs, calls this democratic idea -- a tragedy and he urges G O P National Chairman Carroll Reece to reject -- turn down the democratic call for joint support.

What's the Republican objection? What's the reasoning of Senator Vandenberg who strongly supports the policy of checking communism in the Near East? He says that the proposal of the Democratic National Committee would throw our foreign policy -- "squarely into politics" -- says Vandenberg. He explains the present by-partisan agreement on international affairs pre-supposes that members of Congress shall use their own judgment, and follow their own conscience -- without any regard for party lines. This reasons Vandenberg, is very different from iing lining up both parties to support any particular policy. So he calls upon the members of Congress to use their best judgment, not yield to what he calls -- "the political dictates of any party members. He argues that, if there were an attempt to make Republicans and Democrats km vote along party lines in any international matter, the by-partisan policy would in the Senator's words: "Die in revolt".

So that's today's result of the suggestion made by the Democratic national committee -- that both parties line up behind President Truman's policy to stop communism in -- Republicans answering with a contrary philosophy. Let each member of Congress vote according to his own individual conscience -- the Republican idea of a by-partisan foreign policy.

The news today tells of the retirement of J. Howard Pew from the Presidency of the Sun Oil Company, the post that he had held since Nineteen Twelve -- enchandred and thirty-five years. This is a headline event in the oil industry -- especially for this radio program, sponsored has for so many years by the Sun Oil Company. J. Howard Pew feels himself entitled to retirement after so long a time at the head of one of the nation's dynamic industrial concerns. Nevertheless, he will, I am sure, continue in a line of activity that he has made his own -rather in spite of himself.

I've had a long and close association with

J. Howard Pew and know mix him to be strong, and exceedingly competent, with the kind to shrink from public notice. He's the sort to direct great enterprises with power and vigor, and stay in the background -- without vanity or any desire for acclaim. Yet, during the past few years his dynamic beliefs have impelled him to take a role not naturally congenial -- that of public appearance as a protagonist of ideas. He has made kink himself a foreceful and effective public speaker.

SUN OIL - 2

I note im a recent address made by J. Howard Pew in which he put his dominant belief in these words: "For one-hundred-and-fifty years our country was aland of opportunity for all persons to achieve the rewards of their initiative, ingenuity, skill and industry. We had a system which created and multiplied wealth through encouraging men to exercise their initiative. Here, as a result, for the first and only time in history, an overwhelming majority of a great mass of people enjoyed decent standards of living." Then he went on to call for continuation of that American way and a reflection of alien ideas tinged with collectivem and communism.

The new President of Sun Oil is Robert

G. Dunlop and the new Chairman of the Board, of Directors, Joseph N. Pew, brother of the retiring

President -- that same Joe Pew whose vivid and versatile ideas make him one of the most interesting personalities that I know.

SUN OIL - 3

Buell Standard to be the same section in avia Con-

PRODUCTION OF THE PROPERTY OF

and the second respectively. The second respectively the second respectively.

In New York the announcement was made today, a declaration bearing on that problem so much discussed me now days -- safety in aviation. The inter-American Safety Council states: Pan American World Airways received the Nineteen Forty-Six safety award from the Inter-American Safety Council. The award was made in recognition of a year's operation, without flight accident or fatality to passengers or crew, over world-wide routes, which extend across the Atlantic to Europe and Africa. across the Pacific to Australia, the Orient and Alaska, and throughout Central America, and South America and the Caribbean. This adds another year to the series of years during which an American has had we not a single air accident, millions of miles of flying without a casualty.

and s-l-u-+-m.