

The latest Russian move - in the summit conference business - was made in West Germany, last night. ~~The matter,~~ made public by the Soviet news agency, today.

Moscow suggesting - that the chiefs of state might consider a German peace treaty, ~~Without~~ any recognition - of Communist East Germany by the West German Republic.

Which sounds - like a grudging concession. Moscow refusing, heretofore - to consider any discussion of German reunification at a summit conference. Insisting - that the question must be settled by negotiations between West and East Germany, which the West Germans reject - refusing to have anything to do with the Communist regime.

So now we have - some sort of compromise that sounds ambiguous. Moscow proposing - that the two Germanies might sign a peace treaty - without recognizing each other, in a formal way. But each side - would name representatives to work out an agreement.

If all this seems unclear to you - it's even less clear, to me. ^{Just} Some kind of gimmick - whereby the German question could be brought up at a meeting of chiefs of state. In some cryptic, problematical way.

^{Who knows}
~~Don't ask me~~ what it means? German Foreign Minister Von Brentano, ~~in fact, he~~ has been trying to find that out. The Soviet note - having been delivered to Chancellor Adenauer, last night, during a meeting of the West German parliament. Which Adenauer - addressed.

Foreign Minister Von Brentano - leaving the parliamentary debate - immediately. Going to the Russian Embassy - for a conference with Soviet Ambassador Smirnov. Asking him - what's it all about?

CONFERENCE-WASHINGTON

The State Department made a double move, today, in a surprise public declaration. Disclosing - two things that happened on March Sixth.

One - the receipt of a letter from Bulganin to President Eisenhower, ~~which~~ ^{ing} sounded the usual call - for a summit conference in a hurry. With a minimum - of preparation. The State Department explaining, today - that the Bulganin message was mostly a repetition of previous Russian arguments.

Meanwhile, on the same day, the State Department was handing the Soviets - a note of its own. Asking - do the Russians want a summit meeting that would be merely a spectacle? Little more - than diplomatic show business? Or, a top level conference - that would mean something? Making clear - that there must be preparation, with some evidence that Moscow means business.

TUNISIA

In Tunisia - a soothing, conciliatory note, ~~sounded~~
- by President Bourguiba, who paid his compliment - to Britain and the United States. Praising them - for their mediation efforts in the Tunisian quarrel with France.

Only last week, Bourguiba had warned - that his Tunisian government might withdraw from the western orbit.
Unless - backed by the west in the dispute with France. Naming a deadline - for the British and American mediators. The deadline - the second anniversary of ~~the~~ Tunisian independence.
In other words - today.

All of which added significance - to what he had to say, today. Telling the Tunisian parliament that the United States and Britain - prevented an outbreak of war between Tunisia and France.

In Paris, meanwhile, Premier Gaillard was considering the proposals we heard about yesterday. A compromise - presented by the British-American mediators.

GENGHIS KHAN

Moscow reports the discovery of the birthplace - of Genghis Khan. Hitherto, unknown.

You'd think - that history would record the place where so great a conqueror was born. But Genghis Khan began his career as the mere chief of a mongolian tribe.

The Moscow radio states - that medieval ^{documents} ~~documents~~ have been discovered. Indicating - that Genghis Khan was born at a village called Delyun Bolok. Situated - in Russian Siberia, near the border of Mongolia.

So a scientific expedition made a trip to that area. The site of the village named in the documents ^{is} ~~is~~ now a bare patch of earth. But, when they dug down, they found relics - of Genghis Khan; showing - that this was, indeed, the birthplace of the terrifying conqueror, whose Mongol armies, back in the Thirteenth Century, made a sweep of death and savage ~~destruction~~ destruction. All the way - from the coast of China to the verge of Western Europe.

Vice President Nixon gives the opinion - that the time is not ripe for a tax cut. But adds - that we should be ready for such a move, as an economic weapon, if it should become necessary.

Previously, the Vice President had been quoted as being in favor of a reduction of taxation right away. But, at a news conference in Chicago, today, he stated: "A tax cut is not timely now."

Explaining - that our planning should be made on the assumption that we^rre not going to have a depression.

"We are not going to have a situation of the thirties again" he said. "Because of the strength of our economy - and because of the administration's determination to use the arsenal of weapons available to us."

A tax cut - one weapon in the arsenal. To be used, if necessary - as a means to encourage ~~■~~ more jobs, and lessen unemployment.

INVESTIGATION

The investigation of the Miami television case - brought mention, today, of an invitation to a White House dinner. The witness -- Milt Dean Hill, an official of ~~the~~ National Airlines. The company - that got the award of the much debated Miami Channel Ten.

He told the sub-committee - that he wrote a letter to President Eisenhower's liaison man in Congress, Major General Walton ~~Reese~~ Persons, Asking for a White House dinner invitation for his boss. George Baker - President of National Airlines, Stating - that Baker was a "personal friend" of Mrs. Eisenhower's brother in law, Colonel Gordon Moore.

Hill added - that he didn't remember if he ever got a reply from the White House liaison man. But - that, some months later, his ^{boss} ~~boss~~ was invited to one of ^{the} President's ~~frequent~~ stag dinners at the White House.

COMMUNISTS

An interesting story was told in Boston, today.

A housewife relating - how she joined the Communistst party, when she was actually - a counter-spy for the F B I. At a hearing by a sub-committee on Un-American activities, Mrs.
Carol Foster of Nashua, New Hampshire, said - it was all the result of a joke. Seems hardly a ~~suspect~~ subject for light laughter, but Mrs. Foster related that, in Nineteen Forty five, she was on Cape Cod, where she met - an F B I agent, and asked him "jokingly" for a job.

The F B I man - not seeing the humor of it. Instead, he told her quite seriously - she could have a job with the F B I. That - of obtaining information about the Communist party. A job - of counter-spy.

~~Was~~ Mrs. Foster ~~might have been a little~~ intimidated by the offer? ^{Not at all.} ~~but, instead,~~ she accepted. Joining the Communist party, pretending to be an ardent Red - and working her way up, till she became a local secretary. In which position - she had the names and records of all the Communists in her New Hampshire area.

She named a whole string of them, today. Adding that the Red menace to America is growing.

FIRE

The pitiful thing about New York's fire horror, last evening, is, that so much of the horror was needless. The result - of panic. }

^ The blaze - breaking out on the third floor of an old building, on lower Broadway. Clouds of suffocating smoke - pouring up through the top floors. }

^ Women workers - stampeding in wild fright. Never realizing - there was a door, an exit through which they could have got ^{the} out safely. Twenty-four lives lost, mostly because of panic and smoke.

TREASURE

In California - a treasure hunt, ending in a disappointment ; ~~is a disappointment~~ Although - it sure started off with a fascinating clue.

The story begins in Philadelphia - with a discovery made by Daniel Machon, a typewriter repair man, employed by Western Union. Fixing an old machine - he removed ~~the plate~~^I the roller of the typewriter that holds the paper. And inside the roller, in the hollow space - what did he find? ^{Why, a} A treasure message- and a map!

The message reading: "Badly hurt. Knife wound severe. Fifty thousand dollars hid well."

The note - then going on to say: "You take highway Ninety Nine -- eight miles from Fresno, location on the ~~map~~ map = Shows all that is necessary." Signed - "Tommy J." With the date - February Ninth, Nineteen Twenty Nine.

The map - a sketch. Indicating - that the treasure was buried near a gasoline station, close to a bend in the highway.

All of which information - was promptly sent along to California - to Fresno. Where - the treasure hunt began.

The message and the map - gave precise directions. Except - for one thing. The note - mentioning a point on Highway Ninety Nine, eight miles from Fresno. But - in which direction? The highway running - North and South.

So first they tried - north, and eight miles from Fresno - yes, indeed, a bend in the road. But - no gasoline station, as shown on the map. Furthermore, any such gasoline station - would have been in the middle of the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks, thirty years ago. Obviously, that couldn't be the place.

So the treasure hunters then tried - south. Where they also drew - a blank. No bend in the road at all # eight miles from Fresno, on Highway Ninety-Nine.

Tonight, the treasure message and map found in the roller of an old typewriter - are a puzzle.

Today was historical, in a way - for the royal court of England. The last - of the annual presentations of debutantes before the sovereign.

Four-hundred-and-ninety-nine young ladies making their curtsies before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

all the more excited ^{ing} about it - because no similar event will be held again! The court having decided - no more presentations of debutantes at Buckingham Palace!

The other night we heard - how one of the British debs had a black eye. Incurred - in an automobile ~~accident~~ accident. Hoping - the shiner would vanish in time for the royal occasion. But - it didn't. So Rosemary Barnett, seventeen years old, created a sensation - with her ~~black~~ black eye. Which she tried to hide - with a pink patch. Also - by pulling down a floppy brimmed hat over the shiner.

But let it not be said - that our American girls failed to distinguish themselves. A dozen of them ^{were} in the debutante line. Two - with broken legs. Shapely limbs

- in plaster casts.

How did they incur the fractures? Oh - skiing - in the Alps. Skiing - the finest of all sports. Anyhow, today at Buckingham Palace - the two girl skiers, plaster casts and all - were able to make the necessary curtsies before Her Majesty and the Prince.

WEATHER

At the White House, today - Walkie Talkies were used. Radio communication - between the Presidential mansion and Security guards at the gates. The White House telephone system - knocked out.

Sabotage? You bet it was. The saboteur - the fair young lady, called Spring. And you can take all the poets have sung about the beauties of spring - and throw it in the ashcan.

The surprise snow storm in Washington, today - so heavy the snow broke down telephone lines. Necessitating the use of walkie talkies at the White House. But hardest hit of all - was Pennsylvania, and New York. In fact I am in the middle of it tonight.

Huge snows - all the way from Virginia to New England. Pennsylvania and south - eastern New York in the middle. The town of Brogueville, Pennsylvania, buried under three feet of the white stuff.

The Pennsylvania railroad - virtually paralyzed.
Nearly all trains out of New York's Penn Station - halted. Electric transmission lines failing - because of snow. Tonight service partly restored.

Far and wide throughout the East, - unexpectedly by heavy storm. Communications down, transportation blocked. Ships off the coast in danger - because of the wild wind of the blizzard.

If you ever saw a caricature of spring - this was
it. At six minutes after ten, tonight we are supposed to celebrate the beginning of Spring, aren't we Don.
Shall we celebrate it? Ha, ha, ha! Here I am snowed in.

MERCHANTS

Last night, we heard how a newspaper at Banning, California, was fighting the recession talk. By giving each of its employees - a bonus in silver dollars. Today, the same sort of news from Iowa.

Merchants in the town of Hampton - giving each of their employees ■■ a bonus of twenty-five dollars. But - with one condition:-~~Each~~ employee - ~~has~~ to spend the money for "non-essential goods." Using the cash - simply to brighten things up a bit. So, how are they doing it?

~~so~~ ^{are} they ~~are~~ brightening things - in various ways:-
~~Purchasing~~ fishing tackle, for example, ^{and} ~~while~~ one lady took her bonus, walked right out - and got a permanent wave.
