Good Evening, Everybody:-

Week by week, almost day by day, the list of former dry leaders who are flopping to the wet cause grows larger. Today

Speaker Garner of the House of Representatives came out with a statement advocating repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Mr. Garner had been looked upon as one of the anchor men of the dries in the Democratic party.

He had been considered a dry because he'd been repeatedly asked to express himself on prohibition and had always declined to commit himself. Speaker Garner used the following words:

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of Congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable, and it should be repealed."

The Speaker's declaration contained no modification modification of any kind. Mr. Garner comes from Texas, until now an emphatically dry state.

Mr. Garner, by the way, added an acknowledgement of his perfect willingness to serve the country as President, if here chosen.

His statement on prohibition coming so soon after that of John D. Rockefeller, Junior, Dr. John R. Mott, former head of the Y.M.C.A., Alfred P. Sloan, head of General Motors, and Harvey Firestone, brings dismay to the dry ranks.

Meanwhile in Washington echoes of the bombshell thrown yesterday by Senator Borah were still echoins all over the place.

Denials and statements were being handed out on all sides. In fact it was difficult for a newspaperman to walk abroad in the nation's capital resterday without someone's thrusting a statement against him.

Senator Borah had made the charge that two of President

Hoover's cabinet ministers were really, though not admitting it, in favor of prohibition repeal. The two he mentioned were secretary of the treasury Mills and Postmaster General Brown. Of course, Mr.

Mills issued a denial. Postmaster General Brown issued a denial.

James R. Garfield, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee which wrote the platform, issued a denial. Life seems to be complicated for political leaders these dixxx days. But at any rate these complications cortainly make news.

POLITICS

Democratic advance guard is both excited and exhibitanted. They are exhibitanted because the formidable Senator Borner Idaho, has thrown over the Hoover, They are excited over a desperate attempt to defeat the nomination of Governor Franklin Roosevelt Roosevelt New York. That's how it's described by George Van Slyke in the New York Sun.

Apparently all the other forces are uniting under the leadership of former Governor Al Smith. But it now looks as though the eventual choice of the Democrats will be a compromise candidate as usual.

Van Slyke writes that the anti-Roosevelt Democrats are beginning to realize that the only chance of blocking a first find ballot nomination of the New York Governor is to find compromise figure who might be reasonably satisfactory to everybody.

There's a strange item.

News came from Washington tonics that the White House is under extra guard. According to a United Press dispatch in the n.y. World-Telegram, Trenten Times, the Washington police have received warning that a car supposed to be loaded with high explosives is on its way to the capitol. Extra police details patrolled all the highways leading to Washington.

It is reported that the request for this came from the Secret Service. On the other hand, the chief of the Service

Ent that what Secret Service men always say, Atany says he has no knowledge of this affair. Nevertheless not only in Washington but throughout Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and

New Jersey police are on the look-out for this car.

HARLOWE

There's a bit from Hollywood that ought to interest moving picture fans. A girl named Harlean Carpenter McGrew accompanied by a gentleman named Paul Bern, applied for a marriage license. The lady wore dark glasses and for quite a while her identity was not known.

Carpenter McGrew is Harlowe, the famous platinum blonde.

Harlowe, the famous platinum blonde.

Harlowe gave her age as twenty one years. This will be her second marriage. Her husband, Paul Bern, is a motion picture supervisor and producer. Incidentally, I am informed on authority that he's a deute of a nice fellow and that ought to please the Hollywood fans.

Uncle Sam sent's short, sharp, and concise statement to Europe today. The gist of it was - no cut in war debts until you cut your armament.

The United States cannot see why it should forego the money that is owed to this country, money that comes out of the taxpayers! pockets, if the European nations continue to spend their ready cash on armies and navies.

It is understood, so we learn from a United Press dispatch to the Indianapolis Times, that this announcement was midnight conveyed in a trans-atlantic telephone message from President Hoover.

The message was received by Ambassador Gibson,

Norman H. Davis, and Premier Harriot France at a tiny cafe in the sleepy village of Morges. Incidentally Morges is also the home of Jan Ignace Producesx Paderewski, the great planist and first Premier of Poland.

Over an ordinary marble-topped cafe table, Uncle

Sam's ambassador and the foreign cabinet officials received and discussed this dramatic message. The delegates took elaborate preparations to keep the meeting secret, but they don't seem to have made much success of it. The Prime Minister of France had left his motor car in front of the principal hotel in the village as a decoy. As a decoy that car seems to have been what Broadway would call a flop.

Washington. Secretary of StateStimson issued the statement that the debt issue was not being brought into the disarmament discussion by American envoys. The American representatives at the Geneva conference are dealing solely with the question of disarmament, declared the head of our State Department. Nevertheless, correspondents insist that within forty-eight hours a formal statement will be made confirming the reports.

On the other hand, a late United Press dispatch to the New York Sun has great significance. The world arms conference leaped ahead today when France abandoned her previous attitude and accepted a plan for a heavy reduction of armaments. The dispatch adds that France has agreed to drop the plan for establishing internationalized armed forces under the authority of the League of Nations. It seems that France accepts an immediate ten per cent all round reduction in armaments. Also a similar cut in budgets for war purposes and the suppression of heavy artillery and large bombing airplanes.

FOLLOW REPARATIONS.

Meanwhile at Lausanne Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of England, paid a visit to Chancellor Franz Von Papen of Germany, to which correspondents attach considerable importance. It is understood that they were discussing the payment of reparations.

The delegates took elaborate preparations to keep the meeting secret, but they don't seem to have had much success of it. The Prime Minister of France had left his meter car in front of the principal hotel in the village as a docoy. As a decoy that ear seems to have been what Breadway would call a flop.

According to some reports Uncle Sam may receive an I O U for war debts owed by European nations, in the form of a German bond, this bond to guarantee a capacity payment of her reparations to the former allies. It was indicated that this bend would be guaranteed, the security to be the National Railways or the vast modernized motor transportation system of the German republic.

The German delegates in Switzerland bitterly opposed the suggestion.

But the visit between Ramsay MacDonald and Franz Von Papen is believed to mean that Germany is not to go absolutely free. of paying.

More Hot stuff from Chile. carce more: There was rioting today.
in the streets of Santiago which resulted in twenty five death.

and Seventy-five injuries.

We learn from a United Press dispatch to the Pittsburgh Press that the situation is even more serious. The capital of Chile is threatened with a baker's strike.

The Socialist government of Senor Carlos Davila has declared strict martial law. The American ambassador has asked the Chilean government to provide special protection for Americans and their interests. This followed when five thousand men went on strike at the Braden Copper Mines.

This is the most serious rioting that has been in South America since the overthrow of Ibanez's dictatorship. It began when groups of extremists attacked outposts of the carabineros included the same of the carabineros in both Santiago and Valparaise. Machine guns are mounted on the balconies and grounds of the presidential palace. The government has arrested several non-commissioned officers of one of the regiments in the army.

A significant thing was said in Tokio today. It amounts practically to the announcement of a Monroe Doctrine for Japan in the Pacific Ocean.

This occurred at a dinner given in the Japanese capital to honor the new American Ambassador, Joseph Grew. The speech was made by Vikk Viscount Ishii, former Ambassador from Japanese Washington.

The veteran Japanese statesman declared that war between Japan and America is possible in only two contingencies. One, in case Japan interferes in the western hemisphere. This, the Viscount added, is unthinkable. The second contingency would be if the United States attempted to dominate the Asiatic continent. Also if the United States attempted to prevent Japan from her natural expansion in that part of the world.

This, too, is unthinkable, according to Japanese opinion. It is obvious, say the Japanese, that their nation is crowded to the breaking point. The Japs cannot be indefinitely kept to a narrow strip of land.

CHINA

It looks like more fighting in Manchuria.

Floyd Libbone came home to soon. The Manchukuo State - the state which Japan has erected in Manchuria Dairen

has demanded the security of the Parier customs receipts. It holds Marshal Chang Hseuh-Liang responsible for the action of Chinese so-called volunteer armies. The refusal of this demand, according to a dispatch from Tientsin, will probably result in major mp military operations in South Manchuria.

Well, all the boat race fans are rowing that big race over again today.

I'm sure glad I covered myself last night on the bay intercollegiate best race at Poughkeepsie. For although Cornell was slightly the favorite, what is known as, the second winner wonder crew of the University of California, won a great victory on that four mile course ever the Hudson River. lest-night. As a matter of fact, California was so far ahead that the Cornell crew had to be content with being the victor of one of the grandest scrape for second place with Washington.

FIGHT

And now we're all set to go for the big fight. Tonight over in Long Island City, Max Schmeling will defend his title as heavyweight champion of the world against the Lithuanian American known in the fighting world as the terrible Sharkey man.

Incidentally, there'll be the somewhat curious spectacle of a foreigner being favored over an American. For Sharkey, after all, must be recognized as an American, since he served in Uncle Sam's navy, and is a citizen.

The sporting writers in the papers take a rather cynical kidding view of this encounter. Some of the big box fights within the last few years have had, to their nostrile, an unpleasant aroma. In short, the boys are not taking the box fight game

For instance, here's what Jos Williams says in the New York World Telegram: "Tonight is the night the boys do it again.

Jack and Max, in smart songs and patter."

The terrible Sharkey man terrible unpopularity in his fight with Max Schmeling when he entered with the American flag draped around his shoulders. It appears that the dislike the episode saught for him was not fairly earned. It wasn't really Sharkey's fault. It was his seconds and manager who hoorah which was putting it on too thick insisted on this bit of grandstand play that was too much for even

Personally, I can still hear the boos that greated the terrible Sharkey man when he entered the ring on the rather ludicrous occasion when he lost on a foul.

At any rate, tonight, as the boys say, is the night.

Five hundred New York coppers have been detailed to handle the traffic on the roads surrounding the arena.

Here's a new one. The latest wrinkle of the racketeers is to try to muscle into golf. I mean golf. You know, the game you play with clubs and an irritating little white ball.

The National Open Golf championship is to start

The Thursday at the Fresh Meadow Country Club, Flushing, Long Island.

And, of course, whether you like the idea or not, there's a great deal of betting on the event. Well, it seems a gambling syndicate approached the officials of the Club demanding a concession. Just what form the concession was to take was not made clear. Evidently, the gamblers wanted exclusive permission to ply their trade on the links while the tournament will be going on.

This permission was refused. By way of retorn the chairman of the tournament received a threat that if this permission was not granted, the greens of the Country Club would be destroyed.

Of course, spoiling the fairways and greens of a golf links would be a pretty easy matter. So the management of the tournament reported the matter to the New York police department.

RACKET - 2

As the result, policemen are standing all over the You can't tee of without bearing a cop, course. And as many more are standing outside to guard against this unique suggestion of vandalism.

And how I have a new member for the Tall Story Club.

He's Dr. Frank Beck of Altoona, Pennsylvania. Dr. Beck, in addition to being Dr. Beck, is President of the Park Hills Golf Club in Altoona.

He writes me that his club recently purchased a new kind of Kentucky Blue Grass. They sowed it in the rough around No. 9 Green. It grew so thick and fast, says Dr. Beck, that last week one of the ladies got lost. It took ten men a whole day to mow that grass before they found that lady.golf player. According to last reports from the hospital her condition was only fair.

All right, Dr. Beck, you're a member of the Tall Story Club in good standing.

And the announcer that the grass will be growing around me if I don't get away from hix this mike and say:

So Long Until Tomorrow --
