IILSON L.T.-P&G. THORSDAY, JANOARY 22. 1253.
The latest on that Cabinet confirmation delay is that Charles E. Wilson is preparing to give up his stock in General Motors. So states a report from Washington. According to this he has been holding back, only because he fears an attack on his integrity. That is, he had no intention to let the stocks or anything else influence his judgeont on government contracts With G.M. or with any firn.

At any rate, again today the word around Washington was that a number of Senators were sure to vote against the able and dynamic head of the vast General Motors empire as long as he hold the stock. For instance, Senator Byrd, of Virginia today stood opposed the appointment, unless! But, says Byrd, Mr. #ilson will be "completely eligible" if he gives up his G.M. stock. 2 million dollars of it!

President Eisenhower naturally is anxious to have Chase. E. Wilson's confirmation, - and at once. The President is described as fearing that his administration -ill lose sone important prestige if one of its major appointments is rejected. The rest of the Cabinet already in, the President mould like to see his choice for Defense Secretary added to that list. And - the belief tonite is that Wilson Will dispose of all the huge block of stock - to do which will mean an immediate loss to him of sone hundreds of thousands of dollars -a tax loss equal to what a Senator or cabinet officer would earn in about 20 years!

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved two sore Eisenhower appointments. The group considered the cases of Harold Stasson and Henry Cabot Lodge, and voted unanimously for ex-Governor Stassen for Mutual Security Administrator, and exSenator Lodge to represent us in the O.N. The nominations a still have to be confirmed by the Senate. But that approval is considered certain.

Charles E. Wilson has agreed to dispose of all his stock in General Motors, - all million dollars worth -- and at a loss to him of $1 / 2$ million. President Eisenhower himself made the announcement tonto. The President had already submitted Wilson's amen to the Senate as his choice for Secretary of Defense. Now the Senate Armed Services Committee will meet, tomorrow, to consider the nomination. Chairman Leveret Saltonstall predicts that Wilson now will be confirmed without a hitch.

Meanwhile, the Senate For ign Relations Comittee has approved two more Eisenhower appointments. The group considered the cases of Harold Stassen and Henry Cabot Lodge. It voted unanimously for Stases as Mutual Security Administrator, and for Lodge to represent us in the $0 . N$. The nominations still have to be confirmed by the Senate. But approval is considered certain.

John Foster Dulles issues an order of the day to all who serve his department, at home and abroad. The new Secretary -there are of State calls for, 䔨 his words:-"competence, discipline and positive loyalty." Which indicates the diplomatic virtues he will insist on during his term of office.

However, Dulles states emphatically that by "positive loyalty" he doesn't mean reports should be "watered down" to what he terms

subversives in his department.

So, we now have a Republican administration - at least as far as the executive and legislative branches of the government are concerned. President Eisenhower is of course the head of the G.O.P. and his party now controls the new Congress. But what about the judiciary?

Federal judges, of course, are not elected. They are appointed by the President. A dispatch from O.P. Correspondent Lyle Wilson points out the the Federal Courts are still governed by a Hew Deal-Fair Deal philosophy; because so many judges were appointed during the last twenty years, when the Democrats were in power. Presidents Roosevelt and Truman named more than four hundred judges! As a result, says Lyle Wilson. Republicans on the bench are outnumbered by Donocrats -out-numbered about four to one.

The critical case is, - as we have heard over and over - the Supreme Court. Which produced one of the a jor disputes of the Roosevelt era. The "nine old men" We all render the charge that F.D. A. was trying to "pack" the Supreme Court? And he did eventually appoint a full team of nine Justices - his own Supreme Court.

SUPREME COURT- 2

Garry Truman had the chance to appoint four.
Lyle Wilson notes, that at the moment there is only one Republican on the Supreme Court - Associate Justice Harold Burton - of Ohio. - an F.D.R. appointee. The other eight Democrats.

And the G.O.P. election tictory doesn't change the Supreme court! So, President Eisenhower will have to deal With a New Deal - Fair Deal Supreme Vourt. At least, until death or retirement among the Justices gives hin chance to make sone appointments.

The inmates of Rockier Penitentiary in Pennsylvania have surrendered. Last Monday they rioted.

Commandeered three cell blocks. And seized six guards as hostages. Over four hundred of the rebels gave in on Tuesday. But the rest still held out in the main block.

Then Governor Fine issued an ultiastua. The prisoners, he said, would either and their rebellion peaceably, or else he would send' the Irrational Guard to and it by force.

Governor Fine was due to set a deadline
 The surrender unconditional. And the sis hostages released/unharned. The/reblitione convicts identity gave in because they were frightened by the preparations of the Rational Guard to take over the prison.

So the firmness of Governor Fine paid off.

S. S. MASSACRE

Memories of World War Two, of the German occupation of France - and of the crimes of the Storm Troopers. All brought back by a trial that is taking place in a village near Bordeaux.

Nine Germans and twelve Alsatians are facing a French military tribunal. grog charged with the massacre of more than six hundred villagers. Testifying against them - a number of intended victims who saved themselves by pretending to be dead Most of the evidence is a ghastly account of how the villagers were murdered in mass executions. But one story sounds pitifully ironic, unreal, almost grotesque. It was told by a man who managed to escape. Says he, "I heard the village pastry-maker pleading with the S.S. men to let him go, because he had cakes in the oven. But they laughed at him." tuxtione The baker, thinking not of his life, but of his cakes that were burning -- while hundreds of people were being shot down around him. A story that sounds oddly pathetic, even in the midst of the horrors.

More Communist anti-Semitism. A report from Berlin states that the Reds in the Soviet Zone acre splitting up the city's Jewish community. That is, Jew in East Berlin are now cut off.fron those in the west Zone. Formerly, there was a ingle Jewish community of around six thousand. How it is divided, sone two thousand of these behind the Iron Curtain. The Reds have set up a puppet organization, under a leader who Western Jews call fellow-traveler.

Meanwhile, refugees - both Jew and Gentile - Er ix continue to pour into West Berlin. This haman flood averaging a thousand a day all this week. The total for the month around fifteen thousand, West Berlin now has more than thirty thousand of them. And officials are asking the West German government to mote some of then - on somewhere - to ease the burden on refugee camps in that vast ruined city.

Among the refugees - two officials of the East
German Christian Democratic Party, say they were about to be imprisoned by the Reds.

B-29
The State Department discloses that the lost B-29 bomber did not violate the Manchurian border. This in reply to the Chinese Reds, who claim they shot the plane down in Manchuria. According to a State Department official, the plane may have landed on the other side of the Yalu. But it was Oe the State Doit apobeoman attacked over North Korea. , puts it, "There is no possibility of determining whether the crash of the disabled plane took place on Korean or Manchurian territory." He adds that our airmen might have been captured in Worth Korea. And then taken across the border into Manchuria. The Reds using them to give credibility to propaganda about the "violation" of the frontier.

In the meantime, our Far Eastern Air Force states that radar contact with the lost plane proves that it was at least twelve miles south of the Manchurian border. Which contradicts the Chinese claim thatit was nine miles north of the border.

Allied planes have destroyed at least twenty-eight Communist Wigs since New Year's Day. So stated in a dispatch from Korea. An official count shows eleven Jigs shot down, and seven damaged, in the past 2 days. The reason - our pilots caught up with a fleet of twenty Communist jets. And three of our sees knocked down six of the enemy in one go-round. The jets of both sides travelling at terrific speeds, sometimes almost colliding. Major Edward Heller, of Wynnewood, Pennsylvanda, reports that his plane almost hit the pilot of a Mig he destroyed. The pilot bailed out, and, in the American Major's words, the passed close over my right shoulder. And his parachute blossomed over my right "ing."

Here's a story about a couple of Marines, who wanted to see sone fighting and were not allowed to.

Sergeant John Grassello, of Frederick, Maryland, and Corporal Warren Watts, of Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania, are airplane mechanics. They were assigned to duty in Korea, far behind the lines. Their job, to keep planes in shape for the men who fly then.

The Serge and the Corporal were not satisfied.
This wasn't vil they had joined the Marines. So one day they slipped away from their base, caught a train as far as Taejon, then hitch-hiked on to Seoul, more than two hundred miles. Now the battle they were looking for was not far off. So they began walking.

At one point, they stopped at a Morean house to ask for food. And finally arrived at the front. There they joined an outfit - saying they mere recruits just in from the States. No one asked many questions. The G. I's always pleased to see reinforcements.

Grassello and Watts were around long enough to cone under fire. A new experience for then. Corporal

Watts describes it like this, "at first, we mere scared, but, we sort of got used to it."

How the Marine Corps has certain rules and regulations. And these two of course were technically A.W.O.L. Sergeant Grassello told a Colonel at the front:- "I joined the Marines to fight for ny country." The Colonel finally sent the two back to where they belonged. Said the colonel:-"They don't go hard on a an, for going in the direction you mon were."

Indians on the warpath. And it's not a make-believe out of Hollywood. The tribe of Creek Indians is making a determined attack. Its objective - not the scalps of the Palefaces, but some twenty-nine million dollars from the U.S. Government. The Indians are demanding this sum for lands white they once owned in Alabama, Georgia, and Mississippi.

The claim goes back over a hundred years, to the days when Redskins really went on the warpath. General Andrew Jackson defeated the Indians at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend, in Alabama.
Hiendly creeks were his allies in thetbattle, But even so, the land was taken from both friends and foes. The whole tribe started off on, what it called, "the trail of tears" - a trail that ended on reservations in Oklahoma.

But the Creeks never forgot the old lands of their tribe. And now ten thousand of them have gathered in Atmore, Alabama. They demand that the federal government pay them a dollar and a quarter for each confiscated acre -- there being more than twenty million acres. The trouble is that the

IIDIANS - 2

Indians can collect only by proving descent from the original Creeks. So they have been consulting their lawyers about this point.

The meeting is not like those of the old days. It is being held in a baseball park, lighted by electricity instead of campfires. Loudspeakers carry addresses from the platform.

Refreshments are being provided by hot-dog stands.
The Chief of the Creek tribe is present - Calvin MeChee, an Alabama farmer. Also two descendants of Chief Red Eagle, who led a massacre of the Whites at Fort Miss during the Eighteen Thirties. Chief Red Eagle is a legend among the tribe - which remembers how he escaped from the U.S.Army by diving his horse from a cliff, and then swimming to safety across the Alabama River.
Today the Creeks don't mature induge in such exploits. But they're just as determined to get what they want and this time it's twenty-nine millime dollars.
