General Eisenhower - - may return. That's from the General himself. He says those Minnesota results are making him reconsider. They, in General Ike's own words, "are forcing me to reexamine my personal position and past decisions."

Which goes back to his declaration, in January that he would not campaign, unless there was what he describes as "a clear cut call to political duty." Apparently, Minnesota might be that "clear cut call."

General Ike said, on that former occasion, that he would not ask to be relieved of his international army command in western Europe. But that, also would seem to be no barrier.

Today president Truman, vacationing at Key West, stated that Eisenhower tould lay down his command if he saw fit. He said it was up to the General entirely.

All of which puts a new face on the question - - will the General campaign for the Republican nomination? Maybe - - yes.

The political shindig brings a violent row between Senator Taft and Governor Driscoll of New Jersey. Taft withdraws from the New Jersey primary, with a blast, charging that Driscoll double-crossed him - - by declaring for General Ike.

He says he knew all along, that the New Jersey governor favored Eisenhower - - but was given to understand that, publicly at least, Driscoll would assume a neutral stand. So, believing that, Taft entered the New Jersey primary. He says Driscoll waited long enough for that - - and now declares for Eisenhower.

Which, in Taft's opinion, stacks the New Jersey cards against him. So he won't campaign in the state, leaving the field to the Eisenhower supporters and to Harold Stassen. The latest from New Jersey - Taft's name may be taken off the New Jersey ballots, as a courtesy, if he wishes - although the deadline has passed.

President Truman disavows his own democratic national chairman, Frank McKinney - - who said yesterday, the President gave him the impression that he would not run again if peace came in Korea. This the President denies - - declaring that questions of Korea have no part in his own plans.

SUBSTITUTE STEEL

In Washington tonight the wage stabilization board voted to recommend a wage increase for steel workers, seventeen and one haalf cents per hour.

This - over objections made by the industry. The Union is studying the proposal, and the belief is that the strike, scheduled for Sunday midnight, will at least be delayed.

TREATY

The Senate made history today - - by ratifying the Japanese peace treaty. The vote - - sixty six to ten.

The treaty goes into force, upon ratification by the Nations signing it, eleven. Until today, only Great Britain has ratified it. Now, our Senate puts the united States on record - - to make an end to the state of war with Japan.

At the same time, the Senate ratified three security pacts - - with the Philipines, Australia and New Zealand. All aimed at preserving peace in the pacific.

It isn't clear, from this distance away, how a blackout of news would help the negotiations at Panmunjom. But, today, the U N truce negotiators said they would consider a policy of secrecy - in the discussions of the prisoner-of-war issue.

Whether the prisoners should be made to go back if they want to or not - - as the Reds demand.

Or, whether they should be sent back, only if they so desire - - as we require.

Today American General Nuckols declared that the talks, with full publicity, have been painfully slow. And added; "if there is a possiblity that progress can be speeded, by giving the representatives a little more freedom, then perhaps it would be wise to try it out," said the General.

In the air, five more Migs shot down today - - in two swirling air battles with American sabrejets.

But the most interesting word comes from Lieutenant

James Carey of Las Vegas, Nevada - - who was in a sky fight yesterday. He got into combat with a new type of enemy jet.

Lieutenant Carey tells how he and his wing-man tangle with a lot of migs. "We went round and round," says the Lieutenant, "firing at every opportunity - - and being fired at continously. Then, I found myself on the tail of this funny looking bird. It looked just like a mig-fifteen, except the wings were high on the fusilage."

and, there have been reports of a new jet fighter.

But this was the first time an American

R Combat indecisive - - with a new enemy jet.

South Africa has a headline of the first magnitude for the people down there. Today, the South African Supreme Court threw out the racial segregation policy.
Calls it - unconstitutional. Which is a body blow for the government headed by Nationalist Prime Minister Dr D. F. Malan.

The South African race policy has been a point of worldwide controversy - enacted after an election victory for the old time Boers, the South African dutch. Their leader, Dr. Malan, stood for an extreme version of white supremacy. Other races kept apart from the whites. The policy called - Apartheid (apart - ide):-Full political rights - restricted to the whites.

That brought an appeal to the courts, made by four "colored" people. South Africa has a constitution, and the sumpreme court now decrees - that the racial policy.

There are immediate demands for the resignation of Prime Minister Dr Malan and his ministry.

And - at last reports, it isn't clear what they will do. They might call a general election.

Or, they might add new judges to the supreme court to get a majority. In any case, its world news - this legal overturn of the South African race

Things look bad for motorists in two cities of Indiana - terre Haute and nearby Sullivan. A feud has broken out, - with cops in one town arresting automobile drivers from another town. Today, police chief David McCullough of Sullivan accused Chief

Frank Riddle of Terre Haute of locking motorists up

- just because they re from Sullivan.

Mayor Tom Grayson of Sullivan tells how the quarrel began - when his cops locked up some truck drivers on U S highway forty one. "You know," says His Honor, "how those truckers are in a town like this. They go through like it wasn't even there."

The truck drivers drove on to Terre Haute - and made a squawk. Which was followed by the arrest of some people from Terre Haute pinched in Sullivan - for speeding. The police in Terre Haute retaliated by locking up every motorist they spotted - from Sullivan.

POLICE QUARREL - 2

And then the feud was on.

Indications are that there'll be truce talks between the Mayors of the two cities - trying to negotiate an armistice.

on a mountain ledge in the state of Washington, a ferocious drama of nature is being enacted. Three nearly dogs, marooned at an altitude of fourteen thousand feet, are fighting off the attacks of eagles.

They cougar hounds, used for hunting mountain they getters out lions, - and trapped themselves, when they get onto a mountain ledge. For days, the owner of the dogs, Cleo Riddles of the town of Darrington, has been leading attempts to get them off. But rescue parties have been stopped by the deep snow.

Those mountains of the Cascades are the haunt of eagles - which see the dogs as their prey. Down they swoop, with beak and talon - only to be fought off by the cugar hounds, a fighting breed. Today, Riddles went as far up into the mountains as he could - and watched his dogs through binoculars. He says the eagles, "dive bombing," are trying to knock them off the ledge. So they'll fall on the rocks far below. Where they'd be - meat for eagles.

Tonight mountaineers are making new plans - hoping the dogs can fight off the great birds of prey, until rescue arrives, in this fercet drama of

In France, the great construction job in the valley of the Loire brings reminiscence of one of the famous women of history - though her reputation was not so edifying. A great new dam is backing up a lake, and this will engulf the chateau of Diane de Poitiers - who, in the sixteenth century, created wonder and scandal, mistress of King Henry the second of France.

R was she young and beautiful?

Well, she was thirty-five when she captivated the King, and she held him for twenty five years, until he died. Legends grew up about Diane de Poitiers, the charmer whose fascination was undiminished at sixty.

People of the sixteenth century told fantastic tales of how she retained her fascination for a time so long. They mentioned - a compact with the devil.
