our Moon project. The transportation problem - the fuel part more than a hundred times simpler than the scientists had expected it would be.

GOOD EVENING EVERYBODY

The new power system devised by the Martin Company - uses the same fuel, over and over. The machinery, catching the exhaust - and recharging it. Then, passing it - back to the motor.

What does that mean - in practice? Much, much less fuel - for motors. A big bus to drive from New York to Chicago, at a steady sixty miles an hour - on one tank of fuel. Also space projects to be streamlined.

On the drawing board we have - a lunar space ship to carry three men. The original plan called for a years supply of fuel - one hundred and fifty thousand pounds of liquid hydrogen. They tell us this now can be reduced to - about one thousand pounds. 1/150 the weight.

It's easy to see what this may mean for our Moon project. The transportation problem - the fuel part more than a hundred times simpler than the scientists had expected it would be.

One, a space shuttle - carrying Soviet men into orbit. This latest Sputnik - to send back information that will be used in the orbital flights of future cosmonauts. And the Russians also launched a rocket - from the Plesetsk, in a Siberian Moscow. Describing it as a new multi-stage missile - with a range of over seven thousand miles.

As for the American space effort, we're going ahead with another cosmic ^{test} mission, over Johnston Island. Probably - during the weekend, but ~~the~~ moon shot - may get off tomorrow, after all. It had been postponed for some time - because of Hurricane "Ella". And with "Ella" moving away from the Central area - The outlook for tomorrow is good.

SPACE

A flurry of space activity today - by both Russia and America.

Soviet scientists launching - two different rockets. One, a space missile - carrying Cosmos Ten into orbit. This latest Sputnik - to send back information that will be used in the orbital flights of future Cosmonauts. And the Russians also launched a rocket - down the Pacific, from Siberia. Moscow, describing it as a new multi-stage missile - with a range of over seven thousand miles.

As for the American space effort, ~~we~~ we're going ahead with another atomic ^{test} explosion, over Johnston Island. Probably - during the weekend. And ~~the~~ moon shot - may get off tomorrow, after all. It had been rescheduled for next month - because of Hurricane "Ella". But with "Ella" moving away from the Canaveral area - the outlook for tomorrow is ok.

KENNEDY

President Kennedy's visit to Connecticut - strictly political. The President, barnstorming around the Nutmeg State - in behalf of his former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Asking the electorate to send Abraham Ribicoff - to the Senate. Ribicoff, sure to be a staunch new frontiersman - if he makes it to ~~the~~ Capitol Hill.

DIPLOMACY

The word "talk" is being stressed tonight - on both sides of the Iron Curtain. An optimistic word, indicating that if there is no agreement on Berlin - at least the crisis hasn't come to a showdown.

In Moscow, Khrushchev ~~is~~ is described as "in a talking mood" - following his conference with American Ambassador Foy Kohler. The boss of the Kremlin, sticking to his tough line - in words. But not indicating that he's about to sign - his long threatened peace treaty with his East German puppets.

again we hear
In Washington, the expression - "talking is better than fighting." Used by West German Foreign Minister Schroeder - after today's meeting at the White House. Schroeder suggesting that it might be a good thing - for Kennedy and Khrushchev to hold talks at the highest level. Chances of success? Said the West German Foreign Minister - 'that depends on Khrushchev.'

INDIA

The Chinese Reds are going to shoot down Indian planes - flying over Tibet. So say - the Chinese Reds. Radio Peking, reviving the charge - about Nehru's aircraft violating the border. Penetrating into - Chinese air space. Occupied Tibet, being Chinese - ~~XXXX~~ according to Mao Tse Tung.

19
New Delhi - returns the compliment. Insisting that Red Chinese planes - are flying south of the Himalayas. And that Indian anti-aircraft guns will go into action - the next time.

Meanwhile, more reports of fighting on the ground at the Che-Jao Bridge, in Ladakh. A battle of hand grenades - between the Indians and the Chinese Reds.

YEMEN

~~The~~ Reports from Yemen, tonight - are about practically everybody, ~~Except~~ the Yemenis. The dispatches mentioning - Egyptians, Russians, and Saudi Arabians.

Egyptians? We are told that forty ~~thousand~~ thousand of Nasser's men - are ^{now} in the desert kingdom, ^{near the bottom of} ~~at the mouth of~~ the Red Sea. Russians? Khrushchev's agents are said to be operating the airports of Yemen. Saudi Arabians? King Saud is said to be sending his army to support the Imam - against the Nasser-backed junta.

But - who is the Imam of Yemen? The man on the Yemen throne - was reported killed in the uprising. However, a telegram signed with his name - has reached the headquarters of the Arab League in Jordan. The telegram, appealing to the Arab League for help - against Nasser. This, just when the new Imam - is trying to fight his way to the ~~the~~ throne in Sanaa.

Yemen, with two Imams - apparently. And so many invaders - they must be tripping over one another.

MONACO

Now, what would you say is the place - least likely to have a Communist? If your answer is "Monaco" that gay spot does have one ~~Monaco has a~~ homegrown Red. His name - Jules Socal. Still, everything seems different in Monaco - including Communism.

And Red Jules - is not spouting the Leninist line tonight, His concern, in his own words - "beefsteak and housing in the name of Prince, Princess and principality."

Even this Monaco Marxist - wants the Riviera playground to remain as it is. Namely - tax-free. Safe from - the French tax collector. Prince Rainier, to continue to rule by divine right - as his ancestors have done, since the Middle Ages.

That's a combination - to stump the political scientists. A Communist who believes in - divine right. The inevitable cliché - seems appropriate. Reality has a habit of becoming slightly unreal - in Monaco.

STORM

It looks as if "Ella" is going to be as unpleasant - as "Carol" and "Donna." The earliest tropical storm of the season - building up into a major gale. The "eye" of the storm - already bigger than some of the big ones of the past few years. Winds of more than - seventy-five miles an hour. Massive waves, pounding the Atlantic Coast. Gale warnings, up - from Georgetown, South Carolina to Cape Hatteras. The warning: get ready for "Ella" - Ella with the spume and spindrift in her hair - and the wild look in her eye - her hurricane eye.

Lets run down a few metals - tin, copper, zinc, bronze, aluminum. ~~Now~~ ^{not} this is ~~isn't~~ a lesson - in metallurgy.

It's a story about - the latest teenage fad. The girls of Pasadena, streaking their hair - with colored powder.

Ingredients of the powder, the metals I mentioned - tin, copper and so on.

The point being - that this is dangerous stuff to use. The dust from the powder - choking the nose and throat.
Several hospital cases in Pasadena - including one nearsuffocation.

Dicks, Would you say a sounds like a rather lethal hairdo? - metallic powder!

PIANO

In Kokomo, Indiana - piano tuner Wilfred Tull hit the right note today. Or, maybe I should say - bank note. In fact - ninethousand of them. Quite a symphony - in greenbacks.

The piano tuner, dismantling a second hand upright - in Herbert Heltzel's music store. Under the felt, he found - what he thought was an ~~xi~~ ancient sandwich. When he unwrapped it - out fell a wad of ten dollar ~~xi~~ bills. I don't have to tell you - how quickly he took that piano apart. More packages, coming to light - ~~xi~~ all filled with money. Total sum - nine thousand and ninety dollars.

Fortunately, the store owner remembered - who sold him the piano. Here's the story. A Kokomo housewife, hiding the money years ago - ~~and she~~ forgot to tell her husband. When she died, he sold the piano - without realizing ~~that~~ there was a small fortune in it. Oddly, he knew that his late wife had secreted their savings somewhere in the house - but he never thought of looking inside the piano. People have been known to pour beer in the piano. But $9000 in bills - quite unusual.
