

Substitute HURRICANE. L.P. - Fri. Oct. 15-54.

The big news in the East tonight, is the weather. Hurricane Hazel roaring in from the Atlantic. Hitting the Coast of South Carolina near Myrtle Beach. Then, turning north - to cut a path of destruction more than seven hundred miles long, from the Carolinas to New York.

At least ten deaths. Scores injured. Property damage, running into the millions.

In Virginia, the winds almost reached one hundred miles an hour. They tore an uncompleted battleship from its moorings. The eighty million dollar "KENTUCKY" - now adrift in the churning waters of Hampton Roads.

At Annapolis, Hazel tore a training ship from its moorings - with two hundred men aboard. The ship, dropping emergency anchors to keep from being blown down the Severn River. The Naval Academy reports no one hurt in the accident.

The coast of New Jersey was pounded by wind and rain. High seas, smashing over the boardwalk ^{at Cape May.} And the entire sundeck of the Grandview Hotel, blown into the ocean.

The center of the storm reeked Washington - before driving on up through Pennsylvania and into New York State.

Substitute EISENHOWER.

In his Indianapolis address tonight, President Eisenhower expounded his philosophy of government - as far as the farmers are concerned. The President spoke at the Butler University Field House. The speech, relayed to the nation by radio and television. Mr. Eisenhower declared that he is completely behind Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Benson. The President, terming the price supports in the Benson program "absolutely essential."

Mr. Eisenhower added that this program will not be safe - unless we have a Republican Congress. He mentioned a list of things accomplished by the Eighty-Third Congress. He appealed to the voters to support such legislation. And he stated his philosophy like this: "These important programs will not be planned by an all-knowing bureaucracy in far off Washington." Then he added: "They will be planned only at the instance of local people."

Referring to the Congressional elections, he pointed out that if the Democrats have a majority in the next Congress, there might be a dead-lock between Capitol Hill and the White House. As he put it: "You can't have two drivers at the wheel of an automobile - and expect to land anywhere but in a ditch."

The Eisenhower address was, of course, a political statement. The Chief Executive, appealing to the voters to return a Republican Congress next month. But, at the same time, tonight's address went beyond party politics - it gave the theory of government as Mr. Eisenhower believes it should be in relation to the Farmer.

During her husband's address, Mrs. Eisenhower remained in the plane that brought them to Indianapolis. The First Lady, not feeling well - so she wasn't there to hear the speech. Afterward, Mr. Eisenhower joined her - and they flew back to the Capitol.

DULLES

Our Secretary of State is not going to take part in the Congressional campaign. Secretary Dulles, to stand aside - even though all other members of the Eisenhower Cabinet are involved in one way or another.

He doesn't want a dispute over foreign policy - while he is negotiating concerning European defense.

State Department employees are warned about political activity. A memorandum going out to them all - mentioning things they are forbidden to do. These include everything from conducting Party rallies to soliciting Party contributions. They are, of course, allowed to vote and to express opinions. But by law they're not permitted to get too far involved. And Secretary Dulles wants them to obey that law more than ever in this campaign.

WAITRES

Another Republican is in the news tonight - all because of an unfortunate remark. Something like what happened to Secretary Wilson - when he mentioned bird dogs and kennel dogs.

Congressman Charles Brownson of Indiana remarked in one of his speeches - that/^{now}you can tell the difference between Cabinet Ministers and waiters. He referred to this as "wonderful."

Well, the reaction wasn't slow in coming. The Waiters' Union, dispatching a telegram - demanding an apology. The Waiters' Union, wanting to know just what's wrong with looking like a waiter?

The telegram reads in part: "We believe ~~that~~ the country would be better managed, if the Cabinet members - were composed of waiters, instead of millionaires."

The man who once held Brownson's seat, Andrew Jacobs, added: "I'd rather be compared with a good loyal dog - than with some politicians."

Now it's Brownson who says he had been misinterpreted. He insists that of course he has nothing against waiters. And he adds:- "Waiters ought to be happy - not to look like Cabinet members."

So there's the Brownson apology. But here's an interesting question - suppose the Cabinet members object to the remark? In case you have forgotten that joke re looking like waiters is one of the oldest of vaudeville gags. Waiters wear boiled shirts and tails - fish and soup. Ergo, when the rest of us put em on - what do we look like? Waiters of course!

CASE

A former Communist flatly denies that she made any reference to the sister of New Jersey's G.O.P. candidate for the Senate. Bella Dodd, saying she knows nothing of Adelaide Case - sister of Candidate Clifford Case.

The whole thing started when Mrs. Dodd answered a simple question. She says she was asked whether she ever knew an Adelaide Case? And she answered in the affirmative. Because, she did know a woman of that name in the years from Nineteen Thirty-Eight to Nineteen Forty-Two. That Adelaide Case attended meeting^s of a Communist Front organization. Mrs. Dodd describes her as "a kind of proper, neat, middle-aged school teacher."

~~But here's the catch. Mrs. Dodd also describes her Adelaide Case as "maybe in her middle thirties or early forties. But Clifford Case's sister is only forty-two now. That would make her thirty at the most - during the period mentioned by Mrs. Dodd.~~

So the whole incident ~~turns out to be~~ a case of ~~being repeated~~ in bars and hotels. Houses set up, for what the Reds term "political education for the people" - meaning Communist lectures, a prelude to brain washing. And in the movies - only Iron Curtain films - Russian, Chinese, Polish, and so on. Particularly, newsreels of Mao Tse-Tung and Malenkov.

ATOMIC WARSHIP

It was announced in Washington today that the government is starting work on the world's first atomic surface warship. We already have an atomic submarine - the ~~Nautilus~~ Nautilus. Now, ~~the next step~~ is we ~~are~~ ~~starting~~ the next step, ~~is we~~ ~~are~~ an atomic battleship or aircraft carrier. The ~~plans~~ ~~are~~ ~~being~~ ~~developed~~ ~~by~~ ~~the~~ ~~Defense~~ ~~Department~~ ~~and~~ ~~the~~ ~~Atomic~~ ~~Energy~~ ~~Commission.~~ from the Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission.

The project reverses the stand taken last year by Secretary of Defense Wilson. The Secretary said at that time that there was nothing feasible in the idea of a surface companion to the Nautilus. Apparently, plans have improved so much, that now ~~Sec.~~ ^{Sec.} Wilson has put his okay on the idea.

RAFT

More details have been coming in about the latest balsa raft adventure. It was way last June, we heard how William Willis was setting out from Peru. Wanting to surpass the achievement of the Kon Tiki explorers. So he set sail, all alone, at the mercy of the Peru current - which he hoped would carry him to Polynesia.

Thor Heyderdah and his Kon Tiki group had a full crew. But Willis decided to make it a one man voyage - plus a cat and a parrot. His food, get it all from the sea. Although he had a radio sending outfit he was not heard from ~~him~~ after he drifted over the horizon - swallowed up by the Pacific.

Everybody gave him up for dead. Then - suddenly he was sighted, off Samoa. A boat put out to meet him. And gave him a line so that he could be towed into the harbor at Pago Pago.

The bold mariner of course was sporting a beard - but what a beard - down to his waist. And he was in good condition. So was his cat. The parrot alas - a casualty, buried at sea.

William Willis at sea thirteen days longer than Thor Heyderdahl and his crew. Willis, covering one thousand seven hundred miles more than Kon Tiki.

Also proving his point - that one man can float by raft all the way from South America to Samoa -- six thousand miles across the Pacific. Quite an adventure. Wonder when we'll get his book? And will he soon be on TV- with that lang beard - and that look of vast spaces in his eyes.

UNIVERSITY

The alumni of the University of Pennsylvania - don't like the name of their alma mater, ~~University of Pennsylvania~~. This came out in a ~~survey~~ poll held by the Pennsylvania Gazette. The alumni, voting by about five-to-one to change the name.

And what name do they want? The answer - Benjamin Franklin University. One graduate suggested that the great institution in Philadelphia be named in honor of its founder. So the Gazette held a poll among the alumni - and the answer is, Yes, they're in favor of changing the name, ~~and they have chosen~~ ~~to~~ ~~change the name~~ ~~to~~ ~~Benjamin Franklin University.~~ ~~to~~ ~~Benjamin Franklin University.~~

REPORTER

When Cornell plays Yale tomorrow, in the Yale bowl - there'll be a girl in the press box. For the first time in Yale Bowl history. Ann Morrisy, sports editor of the Cornell Daily Sun.

Ann got the job because she took a dare. A friend, jokingly suggesting that she make an application in spite of the fact that for seventy-five years, the sports editor of the Sun has always been a man. ~~xx~~ Ann ~~gaxx~~ got the job. And at Cornell they say she's a real good sports reporter.

The sports editor covers the football games. But no girl had ever sat in the Yale Bowl press box. So a call was sent to New Haven - what about it? Would Ann Morrisy be welcome? Back came the answer, "Sent her along, by all means." At Yale there being quite a paucity of women.

So Ann is going to break another old Eli tradition. After which she'll go right on ~~xx~~ breaking traditions in the Ivy League. Covering the Cornell-Penn game - Cornell Saratmouth and so on. The Hanover Indians no doubt will welcome her with open arms.

Take Ann to their bosom.

The Henpecked Husbands' Association has about a hundred members. Their aim is to make life more bearable for husbands.

One member, William O'Brien in describing the activities of the Henpecked Husbands' Association put it this way: - "If a husband happens to be a little late getting home, and the little woman gives him a rough time - black eye, bloody nose, barked shins - we take action." What kind of action? Well, O'Brien said it might be something like taking away her automatic washer and giving her a washtub with a scrub board for a week.

Its main purpose as outlined in its bylaws "to reduce nagging, unreasonable demands for explanations of husbands' spare time, breach making and examination of husbands' apparel for powder, lipstick, and blood tresses. The Henpecked Husbands' Association! Albur, are you henpecked? I mean Bob!

HUSBANDS

In Springfield, Illinois, a unique organization has just issued a progress report on its first year. The organization - The Henpecked Husbands' Association. It has about a hundred members. Their aim is to make life more bearable for husbands.
