HARVEST

- both the U.S.A. and Canada -

Flying across the country at this time of year --

~~traveler can't help but~~ ^{one} marvel^s again at America's greatest strength: Her farms -- and her farmers.

The fields below -- ~~mostly~~ stripped clean by now, ~~but~~ ~~still a vast army of men and machines sweeping across the~~

for this year is record harvest. Food bins ~~countryside harvesting the last of another record crop --~~

~~from this amazing cornucopia we have here.~~

~~When the job is finally done the nation's food bins~~

~~will be~~ filled again to overflowing. Billions and billions of bushels -- of corn, wheat, peanuts, soybeans, rice, potatoes. Towering mountains of vegetables -- oceans of fruits.

The National Geographic reminds that even in this Space Age -- farming remains the biggest of all American industries. It's six million workers -- more than the combined work force in transportation, public utilities, the steel and auto industries. Another surprising note:

HARVEST--2

One in every five American scientists ^{now devote} ~~devoting~~ his skills to farm research.

~~American genius also at work -- inventing new and better ways of plowing, planting, cultivating, harvesting. Which brings to mind~~ One of the ~~greatest~~ problems -- still puzzling the American farmer: How to harvest apples.

A recent headline in Shenandoah country ^{Valley asking Warren} ~~spelling out~~ ~~the magnitude of the problem~~ ^{asking:} "Where in the world can enough people be found -- to pick a billion Shenandoah apples?"
