Good Evening, I'm Stuart Novins sitting in for Lowell Thomas.

A verdict in the Tony Boyle case at Media, Pennsylvania. Bob Bahr reports:

W.A. Tony Boyle, former president of the United Mine Workers was found guilty this evening on three charges of first degree murder. Boyle was charged with ordering the death of Joseph Yablonski, a rival for the leadership of the union, who was murdered along with his wife and daughter in the early morning hours of December

Thirty-First, Nineteen-Sixty-Nine. Five days later their bodies were found by a son, Kenneth.

The White House was served today with a subpoena to produce the material wanted by the House Judiciary Committee. The vote in the Committee to issue the subpoena avoided party lines. It was thirty-three to three.

Presidential News Secretary Ronald Ziegler says an answer will be sent to the Committee April Twenty-Second - that's after the Easter recess ends. The Committee subpoena had set a deadline of April Twenty-Fifth. Ziegler said the Committee would get material at that time - but he did not commit the White House to delivery of all the material the committee wants.

The Committee has called the material which includes tapes of presidential conversations, "essential" to its impeachment investigation.

The Senate today passed its version of the election reform bill which its sponsors say is designed to eliminate the influence of big money in politics. It calls for the use of government funds to finance primary and general elections for Federal office. A ceiling is set for the amount of money that may be spent by presidential or congressional candidates.

The measure goes now to the House, where strong opposition is expected.

More news in a minute...

The House of Representatives today passed its own version of a relief bill for tornado victims. It is different from that of the Senate. The existence of two measures means there is little if any chance that any legislation will emerge until after the ten-day Easter recess.

American specialists and equipment were flown into Cairo today, to begin work on clearing the Suez Canal. This first contingent will be preparing the way for more experts who will follow, shortly.

President Nixon met today for more than an hour with Algerian President Boumedienne. The White House meeting dealt mainly with the over-all Middle East situation.

Mr. Nixon will confer tomorrow with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko.

The President of Syria, Hafez Assad, is in Moscow for five days of talks with Soviet leaders. Information from Syria indicates Assad is seeking assurances of continued Soviet military support.

Soviet Party Chief Leonid Brezhnev said tonight the Arab countries should not place their trust in any American-initiated peace moves for the Middle East. The warning was made at a dinner for the visiting Syrian President Assad - and it is seen as a rebuke to the Egyptian government for normalizing relations with the United States.

Israel tonight filed formal complaints with United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, blaming Lebanon for permitting Arab guerrillas to use Lebanese soil as bases for their operations against Israel.

The protest was motivated by the guerrilla raid that hit an Israeli town earlier today. Three Arab terrorists went into an apartment house where they killed eighteen' people, mostly women and children. They killed themselves when Israeli troops moved in. An Israeli officer reported that the terrorists had thrown babies out of a third-story window.

The United States says the assault was "brutal and senseless murder."

Herbert Porter, former aide in President Nixon's re-election campaign will begin a thirty day sentence in prison on April Twenty-Third. He was convicted of lying to the FBI.

President Nixon signed into law today a supplemental appropriations bill that sets up seven-hundred million dollars for benefits payments to Vietnam War veterans.

This will permit payments already authorized.

On the Big Board, the average price-per-share closed down nine cents. The Dow-Jones industrial average moved up just more than one point.

On the American Exchange, the average closed down three cents.

The markets are closed tomorrow because of Good Friday.

In Japan, government leaders are going to meet with heads of striking trade unions to try to head off the labor demands as the worst wave of strikes in Japanese history continues.
