RIDGWAY NOTE LITTH Wed. Sept. 5, '51.

Word just in from Tokyo General Matth Ridgway has just dispatched his latest note to the Red truce negotiators, Generals Peng Teh-Huai and Kim Il Sung. General Ridgway's new proposal is that Liaison officers from both sides meet immediately at the village of Pan Mun Jom, five miles south of Kaesong, to select a new site for further peace talks. This news was forecast from Tokyo yesterday with suggestions as to possible meeting places; these was the British Crown Colony of Hongkong of a tented camp in No Man's Land between the lines in Korea. Ceneral Ridgway's announcement, however, doesn't not specify where the new site would be. It minns simply calls for "immediate meetings" to discuss the new location for resuming truce talks.

In Korea today, American and South Korean troops captured their last objective in general Van Fleet's eighteen day offensive. As dusk fell, without a single shot being fired "bloody Ridge" fell into U N hands. Before the attack the three hills have been softened up by the heaviest artillery concentration of the Rosem war - four hundred thousand rounds crashing down on the Reds, attendated. The only defending forces remaining were North Koreans, starved and wounded, wandering in a daze on the wild mountain tops.

Meanwhile, the massive Red build-up goes on.

Today allied airmen spotted more than nine hundred enemy vehicles, moving up towards the front; - the Communists getting ready for a great offensive if the truce talks are finally called off.

SUB BEGINNING OF CONFERENCE STORY

In San Francisco tonight Russia's chief delegate to the Japanese peace conference, Andrei Gromyko announced that the Soviets would not sign the treaty -- unless Red China was invited. The Soviet delegate also charged that the pact is intended "for the preparation of a new war - and is "designed to provide American naval, air and sea bases for aggression in the Far East."

continue - Cohly-last night the Russian ,

by President Trumen, the Secretary of State emphasional statide legates were in Man Franciscs "agis to make in San Francisco last night, Russian delegate to the Japanese peace conference, was asked how long he expected to be in San Francisco. His reply was: "At least a month". Britain and America, however, have other plans. They hope to complete the treaty signing by Saturday. When the delegates got down to business this morning, Andres Gromyko was all set to start his delaying tactics. Secretary of State Dean Acheson was ready however and saw to it that the Soviets and their satellites would not be able to play it their way. Repeating last night's statement by President Truman, the Secretary of State emphasized that delegates were in San Francisco only to make statements on and sign the treaty draft."

almost at once - when the conference voted forty-five to three against demand that Rod China be given a seat. Voted forty-five to three against Gramykos demand that Red China be given a seat. Only Poland and Czechoslovakia sided with Russia. Then, after a long drawn-out debate, came the second vote - on the strict rules of procedure mapped out by the United States and Britain = to prevent just such filibustering by the Reds.

Again the vote went overwhelmingly against the Soviets, forty-eight to three, the three - these Iron Curtain countries.

At one point in this morning's depate, secretary of State Bean Acheson gave the delegates five minutes each to discuss the rules of procedure. Poland's representative, Stefan Wierblowski took the platform. Five minutes went by, his time was up. Bur the Pole was still talking. Onto the platform strode British Delegate Kenneth Younger, but was rudely shouldered away by Mr. Wierblowski. Assime xxeexist started his speech the Polish delegate shouted protests. At one point it appeared that the Communists were playing a game of Ring Around The Rosie. The triple play would work like this: Gromyko would offer a proposal and then the Czech and Polish delegates would follow with EMERENTIER speeches, in support.

They would argue procedure to be followed and finally would argue over the ruling of the chair, a sort of diplomatic game of Tinker to Evers to Chance.

At the end of the morning session, dated.

Gromyko, his plans thwarted so far, was asked by reporters what he thought of the conference so far.

"It is bad, very bad" snapped the Russian.

account plane will be able to electe the earth hone

the second the second

top at transacous speed. However, it's unlikely that ener of cimiatic date for delivery is Rinetona Fifty Six.

Word tree Washington is that kee such an

In Washington today, the Air Force announced that a contract has been placed for the first atomic powered plane. The order goes to Consolidated vultee fuelage Aircraft, who will build the body of the giant aircraft - which we have will aircraft be the largest ever built. Meanwhile General Electric have already started work on an atomic engine for the giant, ships the air.

atomic plane will be able to circle the earth nonstop, at tremendous speed. However, it's unlikely that

We flacking round + round the world
you will see one another in the near future - the most optimistic date for delivery is Nineteen Fifty Six.

Britain announces that she will reject the Iranian ultimatum threatening to expel all British oil men from the country. (Premier Mossadegh's note, outlined in the Iranian Parliament today, would give the British two weeks to accept the Iranian terms for settling the oil crisis, or else pack up and go home. In London, however, a government spokesman has restated Britain's decision to retain three hundred and fifty experts at Abadan, to look after the giant refinery. The foreign office also made it clear that British troops will be put ashore if the Iranians show signs of getting tough.

The scene in the Majlis, or lower house of the Iranian Parliament, was charged with emotion, as Premier Mossadegh banged his desk during his speech. The news wire tells of two Senators so gripped by their fanatical Premier's speech, that they burst into tears. For once it appeared that the ailing Premier Mossadegh for they his speech without fainting Mossadegh for they his speech without fainting the mental house extends.

From Amman, Jordan, comes word tonight that Talal the First, new King of Hashemite Jordan, is flying home to claim his throne. The young monarch, sums son of assassinated King Abdullah, is due at Mafrag, the R.A.F. base in Jordan, tomorrow morning. This morning, King Talal accompanied by his younger brother, Emir Naif, who has been acting as Regent, left Geneva where the new King has been in a clinic, recovering from a nervous breakdown.) The return trip to Jordan began only a few hours after the Parliament in Amman gave its unanimous approval to a cabinet decision, proclaiming the Crown Prince - King.

In honor of the coronation tomorrows will be a holiday in Jordan. On arrival the royal party will drive to Parliament for the official ceremonies as artillery fires a hundred and one gun salute, to announce the accession.—Talal, with his brother, Emir Naif, will set out for the royal cemetery to pay their respects to the late King Abdullah.

This afternoon, the Federal government obtained an injunction ordering the mine strikers to go back to work. This court order, issued at Denver, was procured under the Taft-Hartley Law - and the union Ext says it will comply. Locals are being notified to send the strikers back to their jobs.

Williamy Adadesy, A letter mailed today to an traile stending was done by members of the football team.

thousand Test Point Cadets, It states that all the

their roomstee and elses associates.

The monorinterdent denies that cadete work

were straight dismissed because of nora failure to repor violations of the honor code. "Practically will these men' he ears, "ministed to active participation in the objecting.*

West Point gives out the information that the ousted cadets were members of an "organized cheating ring", which began operating in Nineteen Fc ty-Nine. The declaration is made in a letter from Major General F.A. Irving, Superintendent of the Military Academy. A letter mailed today to in twelve thousand West Point Cadets. It states that all the cheating was done by members of the football team,
their roommates and close associates.

were **** dismissed because of mere failure to report violations of the honor code. "Practically all these men" he says, "admitted to active participation in the cheating."

Mystery increases in the death of the initian Leftist author Louis Adamic. Suicide apparently - but reports are that the F B I has been searching the scene, Adamic's farm-house at Milford New Jersey.

A native of Jugoslavia, he had turned against Soviet Communism, was completing a book in defense of Jugoslav Marshall Tito. This was to have been published by Doubleday, and company, and today an assistant editor stated that, a month ago, Adamic told him of a threat against him. Four men in an automobile with Michigan license plates, warned him to stop what he was writing. Adamic said that one of the men had a rifle. The author was shot to death with a rifle, which was found on his body.

This is supported by Mrs. Ethel Sharp, who worked as a secretary to the author. She tells the police that four Communists made threats against him -- because of his pro-Tito, Anti-Atalin book. One report today was that the bulky manuscript has disappeared.

The whole thing is involved in doubt and strangeness. One we can't help recalling the case of General Krevitsky, former official of the Stalin Secret Police, who wrote an expose of the Soviet espionage system. The book was a number one best minus seller; and, soon afterward the author was found shot to death in Washington, apparently having killed himself. Associates of his insist that he was murdered by the Reds, the crime giving the appearance of maintain suicide.

Pandlaton today bergeast Robert Ward, a Churckey, returned to the Merine Corps - a soldier subtem mustered

But he ignered the skepk and stayed on with out of sarvine on a plan from his sother. The had lost

At the Arlington National Shrine, today, they solemnized the funeral of Sergeant John R. Rise - the American Indian who was denied a place in his home town cemetery - because he was not Caucasian. It was a full dress military ceremony, attended by an array of dignitaries - and the Sergeant's family. So final justice was paid to the Indian soldier who gave his life in the Korean war.

That is accompanied by news about another member of the aboriginal American race. At Camp Pendleton today Sergeant Robert Ward, a Cherokee, returned to the Marine Corps - a soldier maxima mustered out of service on a plea from his mother. She had lost two sons in World War Two, and her only remaining boy was in the battleline in Korea. In She asked the Marines to take him out of combat, and Sergeant Ward was ordered transferred.

But he ignored the mritted and stayed on with his outfit in the fighting. It took headquarters three months to catch up with him, and yank him out to a desk job in Japan. Whereupon he wrote to his mother, asking her to let him return to the front.

Let him rejoin what he called, his "dirty, stinking loyal platoon." But he was sent home - and discharged.

Back to civilian life - for three months
with his family, mother, wife, little daughter. "I was happy at first," the sergeant explains, "but I just didn't feel right being out of it. I never did believe" he adds, "that those Commies meant business
about making peace."

So he rejoined the Marines today, on his way he calls foully:
back to What "dirty, stinking, loyal platoon,"

From Britain, the word that King George is returning to London -- interrupting his vacation in Scotland. The purpose - a thorough medical examination.

The cause - that famous British aristocratic institution -- grouse shooting.

For several years, George the Sixth has been in ailing health. He suffers from a malady of the blood circulation in his legs, and last summer he had an inflammation of the lungs, which kept him in bed for some time. Nevertheless, this year, he went to Scottand Balmoral Castle, for the grouse shooting season.

The Duke of Windsor in his book "A King's Story" tells how devoted he their father, George the Fifth, was to grouse shooting. Most conscientious of Monarchs, even to the matter of guns and birds - keeping a most conscientious record of thousands of the grouse bagged by royal shooting parties. Like father, like son - and the present King, though ailing, went to Scotland for the season.

It has been a rainy summer up there in the

KING GEORGE - 2

Highlands. I can testify to that. During our recent speedy trip all over the place abroad, we were in Scotland - and it rained marly every day - stopping just long enough so I could play golf at St. Andrews, holy of holies to all golfers.

One recent bit of mws told of the Twenty-First birthday of Princess Margaret, celebrated at Balmoral - describing how the gay young Princess and her guests danced around a geat bonfire, in the rain! And the King was afraid the bonfire might frighten away the grouse.

Anyhow in the wet weather he caught a cold - and last week two specialists flew to Balmoral, to examine the royal chest condition.

Nelson, how are you feeling tonite? Anything to grouse about?