MARIST COLLEGE

Marist Crews Sweep LIU

The Marist crew brought college racing back to Regatta Row with an impressive pair of wins over the Varsity and JV boats of the State University of Long Island. These victories give the crew a phenomenal 3-1 record for its first year in competition, and are an obvious testimony to the ability of both Coach Joe Catanzaro and the young oarsmen, only one of whom is to be graduated this June.

Junior Dance Planned

Charles Council, chairman of activities for the Junior's Day of the Spring Weekend, has announced that the highlight of the day's events will be a semi-formal, non-floral dance to be held at the Poughkeepsie Inn, on Saturday evening, May 29th, from 9PM until 1 AM.

The dance will take on special importance because the results of elections for the incoming Student Council will be announced at this time, and arrangements have been made to present the new members with their official pins. The new President then will be escorted to the chair of honor and his date will become the reigning "First Lady" of the Spring Weekend.

Chairman of decorations and favors for the dance, James Coombs, has announced that final arrangements have been completed for the purchase of favors, which will be stuffed red foxes with ribbons tied around their necks saying: "Marist College Spring Weekend 1961"

The Junior Semi-Formal is only one phase of the coming Spring Weekend, which will also include several other activities. The Freshman are sponsoring a casual dance on Friday night at the Polish Club in Poughkeepsie. The Sophomores will hold a clambake on Sunday at Plattekill to round out the weekend.

In order for this event to be a success it needs the support of all the students. Get your tickets now! They are on sale every Friday in the lounge.

Last Saturday was a cold, gloomy day, with overcast sky and biting wind that tensed both the oarsmen and the many spectators gathered along the course of the race. After a false start and a seemingly interminable wait to have a seat in one of the shells repaired, the Varsity mile and one-half event got under way, with Marist perhaps inching out a bit, taking advantage of Long Island's wanderings on the unfamiliar waters. At the half-mile mark the two boats had a rather close brush, locking and splintering oars for a half dozen strokes, but The Red and White gave a hard ten and pulled away with surprising ease, to finish with a strong sprint a boat-length ahead of the Long Island crew.

It is interesting to note that the spectators on hand were not only our college men, but also included many from the community interested in viewing the first collegiate race held on the Hudson in twelve years, and is an unmistakable sign of a growing area interest in Marist College and in crew.

This Saturday, May 6, Marist is entering the Quinsigamond Cup Regatta. The crew will oppose Amherst, American International College, Trinity College, and Clark University. This will be Marist's first big break on the national athletic scene since the race will be written up in SPORTS ILLUSTRATED. Coach Catanzaro is optimistic about his boys' chances of leaving a wake for some of our opponents to row through.

Letters to the Editor

The school crest is divided into three parts: the first section has a bell, the second depicts an Indian and the third has an open book. Most members of the faculty and student body know the significance of the Indian and the book. In asking various persons the reason for the inclusion of the bell the only fact that seemed of general knowledge is that the bell is symbolic of a bell here on campus. No one knows anything about it except that it has been around the college for about thirty or forty years. Some do not even know where the bell itself is.

The including of the bell in our crest, has made the bell a part of our tradition. It is something that people in the future will ask to see. They will inquire about its history. They will ask how the bell came to be here and why. Some will want to know its purpose.

If the present situation is allowed to continue the only answer to the above questions will be that the bell has been around for sixty or seventy years. And that is only if it doesn't rust out before then. The clapper is growing thin as the flakes of rust fall off. The two wooden slats now used as a stand are broken and will soon start to rot. The bell itself could use a good chipping and painting. Even all of this will not save it. (cont. on p. 3)

On Campus...

by LOUELLA PARDAUGHTER & GABBY VAN BUREN

Hey Moloney, how's Rose's mother?
Hey Hanley, what are you standing up for?
Who's growing roses in Room 7?

Does Rotolo have a sudden aversion to car horns?

R. Gratz, how are things in Lakeview?

Jim Cullen, we hear you're turning over a new leaf; better put your Comp. book together first.

J. Mc., did you ask her yet?

J. Pizzani, why do you look so blue after having a ball?

B.G., who sends you those ash trays from Cuba?

Wadnola, there's a guy with a rope and cross looking for you.

M. Laffin, we hear you're called the Suzie Wong of the diamond.

Cathy Hula, where are the St. F. girls hanging out?

John de la Rosa, who's your beautitian?

Hey Martin, don't worry, faith can move mountains.

Larry Ceraulo, nobody moves in on Babs!

Rumor has it that the bookstore is going bankrupt and will shortly be selling stock.

We hear that the terror of Bellevue Ave has been scaling the walls of Sing Sing again.

P. Berardi, is softball really a women's game?

We see that Davitt is becoming along in his one man pool project.

Overheard while passing an ice cream truck—"You melt in my arms".

Bob Snyder, look out for the witch hunters.

A word of advice to all those planning to go to Spring Weekend: Rest up now!

Intramurals —

by Jimmy Pizzani

Intramural softball got underway last Wednesday with the Freshmen Boarders losing to the Freshmen Day Hops by a score of 10-6. Gene Spada and Mort Laffin led the attack for the winners, Pizzani and de la Rosa paced the losers. The winning battery was composed of Wayne King and Joe Sendra. John Romeo was the losing pitcher.

Yesterday the Freshmen Boarders blasted the Upperclassmen 11-5. Paul Margentino and Bob Van Aernum led the winners each gathering three hits. Lenehan was the leading batsman for the Upperclassmen going four for four. John Romeo picked up his first win. The losing pitcher was Dave Gerling.

This Wednesday the Upperclassmen are pitted against the Freshmen Day Hops. Starting time for all Intramural games is 3:00.

Science Club Presents

The Da Vinci Society of Marist College will present its first annual AAlbertus Magnus lecture to be held Friday evening, May 12 at 8:00 P.M. in the college gymnasium.

The guest lecturer will be the Rev J. Franklin Ewing, S. J., who is an associate professor of Anthropology at Fordham University. Father Ewing will speak on the subject of "The Catholic Evolutionist." All are invited to attend. Bernard Lopez '62, president of the society announced that this would be the first of many such lectures here at Marist College.

Rules concerning the posting of campaign posters are on the bulletin board. A rally has been tentatively planned for Thursday evening, May 18.

The reason is because it is allowed to sit outside in the rain and snow. How can we expect it to last when we let it sit around like an old junked car?

This bell is supposed to mean something to us. Does it? If so, then are we going to take care of it? Isn't anyone interested enough to compile a biography of it? Won't someone even do the one small thing of carrying it inside, out of the elements.
