

L.T.-DELCO. MONDAY, JULY, 22, 1957.

(given by NED CALMER)

AND A VERY GOOD EVENING TO YOU:

A warning to the world tonight from the Secretary of State - warning that the problem of controlling atomic-hydrogen weapons may soon become totally unmanageable unless Russia and the West can reach an agreement on a first step in disarmament.

USED

9.15

(This story is for the late show - it has a [unclear] go.)

Please drop the story slugged DISARMAMENT and use the following ~~maxis~~ in its place:

DULLES

Mister

The radio and T.V. address by/~~Secretary of State~~

Dulles tonight, was intended to counteract Soviet propaganda.

~~Our Secretary of State~~ reviewing the facts, - to prevent the Kremlin from blaming the West - if the London Disarmament

Conference should fail.

He went over the results to date - explaining why we still insist on an adequate inspection system. We're still not willing to accept a situation - in which each side would have nothing stronger to go on - than the word of the other side.

Has any progress been made? In Secretary Dulles' opinion - there has. He told the American people that the Kremlin has not ruled out any workable inspection ~~is~~ system - and so we intend to continue our search for a real agreement. An agreement, that would permit both sides to cut down/~~the~~ <sup>their</sup> arms - without endangering/~~the~~ <sup>their</sup> existence.

MARGARET

AND A VERY GOOD EVENING TO YOU!

The romance of a Princess back in the news tonight - the world's number one eligible young lady of royalty, Princess Margaret of England, who once before has had the same kind of headlines - when Peter Townsend was exiled to Brussels. Now again today, the word was out - Margaret's current and constant escort, Guardsman Lord Patrick Beresford, to be sent away from the London where he has dined, danced and partied so often with the Princess. His destination will be the trouble-torn island of Cyprus, in the Mediterranean, where he'll exchange his glamorous full dress uniform as a Royal Household Guards officer for the ordinary tommy's Khaki work-clothes, guiding an armored car unit in Britain's struggle against the Cypriot rebels. Lately Lord Patrick's friendship with Margaret has filled the gossip columns - going so far as to indicate that the Queen was displeased with the possibility that Margaret might become engaged. Whatever the truth of it, the Blow fell hard. The couple's friends say they will be saddened by the separation. Lord Patrick's mother, the Dowager Marshioness of Waterford, to give her the full title, was discreet. When reporters asked her reaction, she said: "My son's Friends in London will be very disappointed." A Society columnist put it another way: He said, "being a friend of the Princess seems to be a qualification for a ticket to far-off places."

CIVIL RIGHTS

The Senate <sup>has</sup> voted to ~~maintain~~ repeal an old law - passed during Reconstruction. That was when the South lay prostrate under Yankee occupation - just after the Civil War. The law allowed the President to use troops, if necessary - to protect the new Civil Rights of emancipated Negroes.

The law hasn't been used since then. And recently President Eisenhower declared - he couldn't imagine any circumstances under ~~it~~ which he would send military forces into the South.

But members of Congress from below the Mason-Dixon Line - have always been afraid of that law. So today, both sides agreed to get rid of it. Defenders of Civil Rights saying - it isn't essential. Opponents of Civil Rights saying - it's a standing threat to them.

Repeal of the Reconstruction law, proposed by Senator Knowland of California, and Humphrey of Minnesota. Their proposal, accepted by the Senate - unanimously.

ADD CIVIL RIGHTS

With the Reconstruction Law out of the way - the Senate went on to a really controversial part of the Civil Rights bill. Part three of that bill - which would authorize the Attorney General to seek court injunctions - to protect Civil Rights in the South. This section, the prime target of enemies of the bill. Southerners claiming integration can be forced on the South - with the whole authority of the federal government short of the Army.

Today some Northerners agreed - that part three should be thrown out. Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts told his colleagues - that section would violate a cardinal principle of American government - the principle of home-rule. Saltonstall charging that the powers in part three are so broad - they could be used in fields unrelated to Civil Rights. In other words, the Attorney General would have a free hand - in setting aside decisions by local authorities.

But Senator Knowland thinks part three should stay in the bill - although he admits, it could be modified.

NEW GUINEA.

A story tonight from the remote Pacific - the part of the world where Lowell Thomas is traveling ~~xxx~~ right now, New Guinea. There, primitive Papuan natives will see their first white men when a Dutch scientific expedition penetrates the interior of the huge island. Forty armed men will guard the expedition of twenty-six scientists as they make their way on foot and by helicopter to the hitherto secret mountain areas near the Dutch-Australian border. Today, some 200 stone age papuans are getting their first taste of the modern age - digging an Airstrip for the explorers, and their pay will be in tools made of iron, their first use of implements of the Iron age which came after their civilization in history.

BABY KILLER

In another remote section of the world, in the dense jungles of Malaya, British and Australian forces have started an all-out search for the Baby Killer - a name feared throughout the Malay peninsula. He's a Communist Terrorist leader whose real name is An Hoi - ~~it~~ they call him the baby killer because he's ordered women members of his band to abandon any child born to them in the jungle. Five days ago, An Hoi was given an amnesty to surrender. The ultimatum expired at midnight. The Baby Killer is now fair game for British and Australian warplanes pounding the jungle with their bombs.

CLINTON

In Knoxville, Tennessee, both sides have presented their final arguments in the trial of eleven persons charged with contempt for allegedly violating a federal injunction against violence - in connection with the court-ordered integration of Clinton High School. A defense attorney - Ross Barnett of Jackson, Mississippi, - shouting and waving his arms, told the all-white jury that, in his words, "the Bible teaches us to segregate - not to mix the seed..." The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

AIRMAN

A court-martial in Fuchu, Japan, convicts an airman of not getting a hair-cut. At least - not the right kind of hair-cut.

Airman Third Class

Donald Wheeler, of Cortez, Colorado - was ordered by his commanding officer to get a "white sidewall" hair-cut. "White sidewall" - meaning, shaved on the sides, and clipped close on top. Wheeler refused. Saying, he'd look like a shaved jackass.

So he found himself in front of the court-martial. Today, the decision was handed down. Donald Wheeler, to be reduced to the lowest rank - and fined two hundred dollars. Afterward, the airman told the court - he doesn't think the sentence is fair. But the court decided - it's fair enough, for a member of the military who disobeys orders.

The dispatch adds an interesting note about the court-maritial. Three of the officers on the court - arrived with brand new hair-cuts. The fourth, needed a trim.

PLANE CRASH

Last Friday a happy Nebraska family and their pilot took off in a light plane for a ride. With her mother and father was seventeen year old Judy Diehl, sharing their gay mood. Over barren sand hills near the town of Alliance, the plane crashed, apparently killing Judy's parents and the pilot instantly. But the girl, though pinned in the wreckage of the plane, suffered only a broken leg and some bruises. For thirty-seven hours Judy lay there, waving a white scarf whenever a plane flew overhead, not seeing a single human being on the ground, but never losing hope. Finally a rescue craft saw her scarf and a search party made its way to the plane with its dead victims and a girl who had lived a nightmare. Tonight Judy's resting comfortably in a hospital, and likely to recover.

TUNISIA

Another of the world's monarchies/<sup>is</sup>- about to disappear. The Bey of Tunis/<sup>is</sup>- to be dethroned. So indicated in a dispatch from Tunis.

The Bey is descended from a line of old Turkish rulers. ~~The Turks xxx flooding into~~ And taking Tunisia, when they overran much of North Africa. They've ruled their territory from a palace overlooking the ruins of ancient Carthage.

But Tunisia is now moving along with the modern world. Premier Bourguiba, wresting independence from France, ~~Now~~ trying to raise the standard of living in Tunisia. ~~And~~ ~~the~~ Premier, regarding the Bey of Tunis as ~~an anachronistic~~ ~~anachronistic~~ anachronistic.

For some time, Bourguiba has been laying the groundwork for dethronement. Last Friday, he accused the Bey - of dipping into the national treasury. Which appears to be the key charge - in getting rid of the ruler.

The Tunis dispatch describes France, Morocco, and the United States - as cool to the idea. But Tunisian newspapers declare - the nation will become a republic within the next few days. The last of one of the colorful monarchs from a more spectacular era - the Bey of Tunis.

MURDER

In Hawthorne, California this morning, police found two traffic officers shot to death on the spot where they had stopped a car to write a traffic ticket. The incident has kicked off a giant manhunt for the culprit, who escaped. The police say one of the officers was shot in the back three times as he was about to enter the date in his summons book.

INFLUENZA

Influenza from Asia - breaking out at our ~~airbase~~ Air Force base at Thule, Greenland. More than three hundred men down with the ailment - that has been spreading across the world - frightening whole nations en route. The Thule epidemic, so bad that Danish authorities are taking special steps to prevent the Eskimos from catching the flu. They're being ~~not~~ warned to stay clear of Thule, for the time being.
No word yet, on just how this Asian influenza happened to get to Greenland in the first place.

8

RED SKELTON

Famous comedians have their hours of sadness - and Red Skelton is no exception. Today he revealed some of the things that were said at his private audience with Pope Pius yesterday in the Vatican. Red Skelton and his family are protestants, but their nine-year-old son who goes to a Catholic school in Hollywood has said he wants to be a Catholic priest some day. According to the doctors, that day will never come. Richard is a victim of leukemia, and may not live much longer. So the audience with Pope Pius was a solemn occasion indeed for the Skelton family - and for the Pope, too, a most unusual one. The Pope ignored all protocol traditions and stayed with the Skeltons for nearly an hour, while prelates waited in the anteroom. Red Skelton quoted him as saying to the frail, wide-eyed boy: "From this hour on, it will be a holy hour for you. From now on you shall live for eternity." Richard will always be with us, Skelton said. "No matter what happens now, we know life, is eternal."

EXPLOSION

At Little Valley, Utah - engineers touched off America's largest non-atomic explosion today. Almost two million pounds of high explosives - packed into a tunnel at the base of a two hundred foot cliff - near Great Salt Lake. ~~Then~~ ~~the engineers exploded~~ When the blast went off, it loosened two million cubic yards of earth and rock. Enough, to fill sixty million wheel-barrows.

Now, the engineers are filling in one sector of Great Salt Lake. They're building an ~~earth-filled~~ earth-fill -- thirteen miles long. The Southern Pacific Railway will use this structure as a base - for laying tracks across one arm of the Lake.

OMAN

USED 6.45 ONLY

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd announces - troops of Her Majesty, the Queen, will help the Sultan of Oman put down that rebellion in his kingdom. ~~Oman~~, at the southern end of the Arabian desert. The rebels claim - the Sultan is not the true ruler of Oman. They're backing a religious leader called the Iman. He now controls some five thousand square miles of the territory.

Selwyn Lloyd told the House of Commons - the rebels are getting help from the outside. He refused to explain the meaning of this. But during the debate, some M.P.'s accused Saudi Arabia.

The British troops to help the Sultan, are now stationed in Kenya. A combat detachment of Cameroon Highlanders waiting for orders to fly to Oman - and help the Sultan against the Iman.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Civil defense officials were criticized today for not putting more emphasis on shelters, rather than evacuation, in the event of an enemy atomic attack on this country. The criticism came in a House Government Operations Committee Report. The report also saying that federal civil defense officials have been grossly negligent if they are only now taking into consideration the dangers of radioactive fallout.

HEAT

The heat wave that's blistering a large part of the country may be ending. A mass of cool Canadian air pushing across the Great Lakes and extreme northeastern part of the country is expected to break the intense heat over most of the mid-Atlantic states by tomorrow or the next day - and also bring some much-needed rain to this baking region. That same cool Canadian air already has touched off showers and thunderstorms as it pushes southward and eastward from northern New England across the lower lakes region into Iowa and Missouri. Tempers sometimes flare up in the heat, but to no avail. As James Argenbright found out when he got into a hot ~~xx~~ argument with an umpire while watching a baseball game in Las Vegas. At the height of the hassle, the umpire hauled out a police badge and arrested Argenbright for disorderly conduct. Ever see that wopper, Joe?

FOOTNOTE

Like the man says, it takes all kinds to make a world. And one of them was in the vast crowd Saturday night for Billy Graham's religious rally at Yankee Stadium in New York. Among the converts helping to take the collection of money offerings was Louis Silver of Los Angeles. After the collection was over, he directed the ushers to put the money cans into a huge shopping bag for him to take to the main office - but he headed for the Stadium exit instead, carrying some five hundred dollars with him. And now Mr. Silver must explain to a Grand Jury just where he was going with that money.

And solong until tomorrow.