CAFITOL HILL

President's Ford first state of the union address--a call to battle today against the twin enemeys of recession--and dependenee on foreign oil.

Soil The President: Moning: "the state of the union is not good." In Then to fillowed charting a course that will--said her-"put the unemployed back to work;-increase real income and production;-restrain the growth of federal spending;achieve energy independence;-and advance the cause of world understanding." This mainly by means of the tax cuts and energy proposals whe made earlier in the week; along with some new ones that could raise the national debt... to more than five hundred billion over the next two years.

The President concluding by saying: "We have the ability--we have the know how to achieve these objectives." Adding: "As our two hundredth anniversary approaches, we owe it to ourselves and to posterity--to rebuild our political and economic strength;" to "make merica, once again and for centuries, what it has so long been--a strong hold and beacon-light of liberty for the world."

REACTION FOLLOW CAPITOL HILL

First reaction to the President's remarks--a-bit-mixed; with Republicans generally "pro"--Democrats "con." But House and Senate concertatives of both parties--quickly attacking the President's economic program; calling it "ruinous"--"a surrender", in effect a blue print for federal bankruptcy. The acting chairman of the House ways and means committee, Al Ullman-see saying he plans to split the president's package into seperate"parcels;" and consider each one--individually. Bllman adding that "the immediate urgency--is to get a tax relief bill passed at the earliest possible moment.""

PRICES

The U.S. whole sale price index--down sharply last month for the first time in more than a year; a drop of a full half-a-percent--which seems like a lot; except that the wholesale price index--is an extremely volatile figure; hard and a decline such as this--hand to figure. If the trend continues though, it could mean that spiraling inflation -- has finally been licked.

western diplomats in Moscow were said to be shocked today--at Soviet rejection of the newly-passed U. S. trade bill. The Soviet action seen as a scuttling of two years of delicate negotiations--aimed at making trade the corner of detente. At least one observer saying: "this takes us back /score to nineteen seventy-two." Adding: "All is not lost--but it looks as if we coing have to start again from square one."

HOUSE

Two veteran house committee chairmen have apparently lost their jobs-in the historic power struggle now under way in Congress. Democratic leaders refusing today to renominate Wayne Hayes of Ohio--as chairman of the House Administration Committee; also, refusing to renominate Wright Patmans of Texas, the Dean of the Senate--as chairman of the House Banking Committee.

The Democrats picking instead Frank Thompson of New Jersey--for Administration; and Henry Reuss of Wisconsin--for banking. But all this subject, of course, to a vote by the figur Democratic Caucus--when it meets tomorrow.

SENATE

CIA director William Colby--a witness today before the Senate Appropriations Committee, admitted that in nineteen sixty-seven the CIA established a counter intelligence office--"to look into the possibility of foreign links to American dissident elements. Adding, "in the course of this program--files were established on about ten thousand citizens."

Colby meisted, however-the CIA's actions were perfectly legal. Also indicating they may have helped to thwart a plot--to kill former xise Vice-President Spiro Agnew and kidnap former CIA director Richard Helms. LOS ANGELES

At Los Angeles--John Dean on Richard Nixon. The former White House Council --saying the former President "has suffered a great deal." Adding he doesn't "think anyone in this country --wants to see Richard Nixon in inconcerted.j=i-he's been punished enough." Dean also saying in the perspective of history--when the full story there were "strokes of greatness"--in many of the things the former President did; especially--in foreign policy.

is known--the former President "may be vindicated in a way." Further noting

LONDON

The British Royal Family's severest critic--Labor Member of Parlament Willie Hamilton, who now continues his vendetta. in a new book called "My Queen and I." Hamilton observing at one point that Queen Elizabeth and her family--remind him of the chimpanzees at the London Zoo; except that they re less amusing--and more expensive.

In the end though, Hamilton virtually admitting--that his is a lost cause. "The British Monarchy"--he writes--"has not mearly survived while others in the world were toppling--but has also probably grown in esteem and affection."
