

President Eisenhower will reject the second Bulganin proposal. Secretary of State Dulles so indicated at his news conference today.

Dulles pointed out that both Bulganin letters, proposing a special Friendship Treaty with America, are simply a part of a propaganda offensive by the Kremlin. That the first letter was designed to insure maximum publicity. That the Soviet Premier apparently was not at all interested in quietly exploring the problem before making it public.

① He summed up saying that, in his opinion, the President's answer to the first letter covers our position adequately. And that sounds as though the second letter will be answered in the same way. President Eisenhower, to reject the proposed Friendship Treaty with Russia - because the U N already provides everything that Bulganin asks for in the way of security guarantees.

Today the Secretary of State also mentioned Russia's protest about balloons drifting across the Iron Curtain. The Kremlin calls them "propaganda balloons" equipped with radios and cameras.

Secretary Dulles replied that the balloons have nothing to do with propaganda - are mere weather balloons. So it could only be by accident that anything of strategic value could be picked up by them.

2 However, Mr. Dulles did admit that international law is not clear on the rights of any nation to send up such balloons. He concluded by saying that we will respect the feelings of any nation objecting to such flights of weather balloons.

NORWAY

Norwegian ships in the harbor of Aalesund
- played the tune, "Music while you work" today .

The ^Areason_A , they were seeing fifteen ~~a~~Russian trawlers and one factory ship out to the open sea-- to a musical accompaniment.

Last week we had the story about how a Russian fishing fleet violated Norwegian ~~territorial~~ territorial waters- and sixteen of the ^{U.S.S.R.}_A ships were captured by the Norwegian Navy. Today they were released - after the Soviet government paid eighty-seven thousand dollars in fines. The Soviet ships leaving to the tune of "Music while you work," sung by the 7 Dwarfs in Snow White.

The Soviet official who paid the fines stood on the deck - and watched his countrymen sail away.
He told reporters that the ships never came within Norwegian territorial waters. The Kremlin, paying the fines only for the sake of good relations with 3 Norway! That's the Soviet version of what happened!

The Norwegian reply to that was that the Soviet Official was full of malarkeyhowever you say malarkey in Norwegian.

MADRID

Students at the University of Madrid staged quite a demonstration today - marching through the streets - shouting protests against restoration of the Spanish Monarchy. Chanting in rhythm, "we don't want a king", it was an orderly demonstration - no damage, no arrests. And apparently touched off by the presence in Madrid of Prince Don Carlos, who is in line to succeed to the throne, if Franco says that Spain is to have a King.

Later a crowd of monarchists began a rival demonstration - chanting slogans in favor of Don Carlos. Parading and shouting. No violence.

Queen Elizabeth got another great reception today - at the town of Enugu, Nigeria, ~~xxxxx~~ Thousands of flag waving Nigerians - shouting and singing, and dancing behind Her Majesty's gleaming Rolls-Royce. Intense heat - but the Queen carried on without faltering. She invested twenty four of her African subjects with the O B E - the order of the British Empire. Then she visited a model housing development. Meanwhile, the Duke of Edinburgh descended into a coal mine and we hear led his companions quite a chase through the tunnels and underground galleries.

Later the Royal couple attended a session of the East Nigerian Parliament, where they listened to the Prime Minister describe Nigeria as a "tropical paradise". Whereupon the Duke lost his composure for the first time in steaming, broiling Nigeria.

PRINCETON

The U S aircraft carrier "Princeton", left Tokyo today - crowded with marines. Flag ship of Admiral Rice - who commands Task Force Nineteen, it is off to join an armada of American ships and planes - for the first maneuvers - of the southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

5 The other members of Seto have not decided whether to participate, but our forces are going ahead anyway. The maneuvers to take place off Thailand. A critical area. The Bangkok government says it's happy to have American air and sea power in the neighborhood -- as a warning to the Communists.

SENATE

Two Senate Committees are undertaking an investigation of the charge of Senator Case of South Dakota - who says he was offered twenty five hundred dollars if he would vote for the natural gas bill.

The bill passed, last night. But Senator Case, who had been for the bill - voted against it. On Friday, he told the Chamber how he had changed his mind because of the money offer.

Today, the Senate agreed, unanimously, to set up a special committee to hear Senator Case testify.

ALABAMA STUDENT

The trustees of the University of Alabama are ~~xxx~~ facing contempt of court. So says Attorney Arthur Shores - who represents Autherline Lucy, the Negro co-ed who attended the University - that is she did, for a few hours. A federal court order gained her admittance to the institution that, until now, has been strictly for white students. Then followed yesterday's student demonstrations - including tomatoes, and eggs. After which, the co-ed departed - for her own safety.

Her attorney threatens to file a federal court petition against the board of trustees, unless they reinstate Autherline Lucy as a student of the University within forty eight hours. He charges that the board has submitted to mob rule.

How does the Negro girl feel about the incident? Well, she agrees that the trustees ~~xx~~ acted for the best when they excluded her from classes. But, that she'll return to the University of Alabama - as soon as they'll allow her to do so.

ATOMIC

The Chairman of the atomic energy commission ~~says~~ ~~reveals~~ that private industry will soon receive most government information on ~~the peaceful~~ ^{nuclear energy,} ~~and how to use it.~~ ~~success of nuclear energy,~~ Chairman Strauss told the congressional atomic energy committee that a substantial amount of ~~that~~ information is already available to qualified individuals and companies. ~~The chairman adds,~~ ^{Also,} that a special review of secret reports and documents is being carried out -- and when the review is complete, ~~then~~ all but a small amount of top secret data will be given out.

The AEC ^{already} has received seven proposals from private industry - to build nuclear power plants.

~~The seven~~ ^{Plants} ~~located~~ in cities all the way from Gainesville, ~~in~~ Florida to Anchorage Alaska.

MISSILE

A source close to the Air Force states that the Chief of Research has threatened to quit - unless the administration speeds up work on guided missiles. Trevor Gardner, Assistant Air Force Secretary, is reported to be much discouraged by our neglect of one of the most vital parts of our defense.

Members of Congress, and Army officials, are asking for a "crash program", costing some twenty-five millions - to develop a guided missile with a fifteen hundred mile range.

STOWE

I'm broadcasting from Stowe, Vermont tonight, far up in the Green Mountains. Whenever I get away from my regular studio in New York City, I like to pick up a bit of ~~xx~~ local information. From the Lodge here at Smuggler's Notch - at the foot of Mt. Mansfield I got in touch with one of the old timers who lives just down the road. And Mark Poor reminded me of something I had forgotten, that Vermont was not one of the original thirteen colonies. It was a sort of independent state with ~~xx~~ its own currency - formed in Seventeen Seventy Five, in the days when the "Green Mountains^{Boys}" were the local militia. Ethan Allen's farm a few miles from here, on Lake Champlain where Burlington is today. Then Vermont was taken in as the fourteenth state.

During the last twenty years winter sports have taken over parts of Vermont ~~xx~~ in rather a big way. And there are some outsiders like myself who may have the notion that now is the biggest boom Stowe and many other places in Vermont ever had. But Mark Poor assures me it isn't so. He says the population in this locality was ~~grrr~~ greater just before the Civil War, than it is now. More than two thousand people here then. After that, there was a decline, and that at the last census, not long ago, the population had climbed back to seventeen hundred and fifty.

Why did the population decline after the Civil War, when one fourth of the people moved away? Mark Poor reminds us how that was the time of the opening of the West - with free land as a lure.

But, skiing has brought greater numbers of people to the Green Mountains than ever invaded them before. Thousands here at Mt. Mansfield every winter weekend. Maybe more than one hundred thousand this winter.

The central figure in this area today is Sepp Ruschp, an Austrian who came ~~xxx~~ here twenty years ago. When I first knew him he spoke not a word of English. Now he has literally transformed the area.

I was reminded today of how difficult it must be for him to ~~XXXX~~ please ~~the~~ the public. Just ahead of me ~~XXXX~~, at the chair lift, Charlie Lord, genial Vermonter who presides over the lift, asked a young woman how she liked the skiing. She replied: "Oh, there's too much snow!"

The first time I ever heard a skier complain about ~~XXXX~~ too much of the magic white stuff that draws us to these mountains.

RAILROAD

The New Haven Railroad is being sued for five hundred dollars - all because one train was late, last December Third. Ralph Stewart of Watertown, Massachusetts, and William Coilty of Boston -were on that train, bound for the Narragansett Race Track. On the way, they talked over the races - and doped out a daily double "Flint" in the first race and "Tar Queen" in the second. And, they were right. The two horses won - paying one hundred and seventy three dollars and sixty cents for a bet of two dollars.

That brings us to the sad part of the story. Stewart and Coilty weren't there. Train late, no chance to place their bets for the daily double. Who's to blame? The New Haven Railroad! Causing them "mental anguish, constant anxiety, and financial loss." That's the way the charge reads. Pity the poor New Haven Railroad.

STRIKE

At Kalamazoo, Michigan, the "Mad Hatter" strike is over. The "Mad Hatters?" Doesn't sound very chivalrous - but they are the ladies who work in the Southerland Paper Mill.

The strike began when the company issued safety helmets. The ~~xxx~~ Personnel Manager says the ladies used to wear hairnets and scarfs - which are dangerous when they are working ~~xx~~ near high speed machines. So the plan was to give them special safety helmets to take the place of hair nets and scarfs.

The workers rebelled. Saying the helmets caused eye strain and headache - and were unflattering. So the ladies staged a walkout - last Friday.

This morning, most of them were ~~xx~~ back on the job, now waiting for an appeal to the National Labor Relations board. Anyhow today the "Mad hatters" ~~xxx~~ were wearing the safety helmets, Henry.
