Bennett closes; Marist accepts students, faculty

By Dave Ng
Pat Larkin
and Mike Tettelbaum

Marist College accepted approximately 100 Bennett College students and faculty members two weeks before school opened here after the Millbrook school closed because of bankruptcy early in August.

Vice-President Edward Waters, who led the two week negotiations to accept the Bennett program, said Marist was obligated to aid a "fellow institution in the Mid-Hudson area."

Another reason Marist accepted Bennett was because the dormitories were not yet filled due to a drop in the number of incoming students, according to Waters.

However, according to a former housing staff member who worked on room placement during the summer, there weren't enough rooms for Marist students prior to the Bennett situation.

Early in August Bennett had arranged to have 200 Briarcliff College students transferred to Bennett in hopes the added tuition would carry the school another fiscal year. However, Briarcliff was only able to send about 30 students and on August 8 the Bennett Board of Trustees voted to close the school. Students were informed of the decision on the 12th and on the 18th Bennett officially closed their doors.

Dr. Charles Hoyt, former Bennett academic dean and now an associate professor of English here, met with Waters August 3 and updated him about the Bennett-Briarcliff situation.

Between the third and 15th Waters was kept abreast of the Bennett situation by Hoyt.

Between the 15th and 18th, Waters contacted President Linus Foy, who was vacationing in Vermont, and several members of the Marist Board of Trustees: John J. Gartland Jr., the school's attorney; John McEnroe, former board chairman; and Roy C. Ketcham, the present chairman. After Foy and those members of the board agreed with Waters to accept the Bennett program, Waters contacted Hoyt and David Leigh, head of the Bennett fashion design department.

Hoyt and Leigh proceeded to call their students across the country and informed them they could enroll at either Marist or Pace University, which also agreed to accept Bennett students.

By August 22, twenty-seven students had given deposits ranging from $200-$500 to Marist College.

During the week of Sept. 22, Marist received phone calls from other Bennett students asking to be matriculated into the curriculum here.

Benoit House, which was to be closed this semester because of a lack of students to occupy the house, was reopened to accommodate the Bennett transfers.

Benoit now houses 32 coeds, 28 former Bennett fashion design students and four additional students who enrolled here after reading in local papers that Marist was carrying a fashion design program.

The old Donnelly library was converted into a fashion design and arts center at a cost of "no more than $15,000" according to Waters. The library will be renovated into four studios and four faculty offices.

The fashion design major was a two year program at Bennett. Dr. Foy said Marist cannot immediately guarantee the associate degree the students would normally have been working for. He said the Marist Board of Trustees will consider the matter at their next meeting Oct. 6.

The Marist acquisition of Bennett courses, faculty, and students has received favorable reaction.

Dr. George Sommer, who has been an English instructor here for 26 years said, "Overall I'm pleased that two administrations could work together to preserve the education of the Bennett students."

S.G. picks new treasurer

By Pat Larkin

Frank Paul Biscardi has been appointed Treasurer of Student Government. He replaces Pat Whelton, elected last spring, who resigned to take a fall internship.

Biscardi, a sophomore political science major, will be the chairman of the financial board, a member of the executive board, be responsible to keep up to date checks on financial spending, and must approve every expenditure made by clubs.

As chairman of the financial board, Biscardi is in charge of meetings at which clubs, present their budgets for the school year.

Biscardi was appointed by Student Government President Jeff Blanchard who said he consulted the other members of the executive board, Vice President Sue Breen and Secretary David Ng, before making his decision.

Blanchard said there should be more than $25,000 in the student government budget to be divided among approximately 20 clubs.

Blanchard also said there will be "a lot more checks and balances" on the clubs. He said he wants to avoid having clubs spend their money wastefully. Blanchard said in the past some clubs put a large portion of their budget into one event; the event failed, and the club was without money for the rest of the year. Blanchard said Biscardi and Breen will be keeping a close watch on all club expenditures.

Biscardi has worked with the Independent Student Coalition, a program which emphasizes the needs of college students. He also worked in the admissions and alumni offices, was part of the Gregory House screening committee, and a member of the crew team.

The student government's first major concern will be to set up the financial board. Blanchard said the board should be set up by today.

Daly is named director of admissions

By David Ng

James Daly worked in the admissions office as a student intern during the 1970 fall semester and now replaces his director and former head of admissions, David Flynn who resigned to work at Fairfield University.

Daly, as the new admissions director, will plan the recruitment of day and evening students. His office will process applications from full-time students while the Office of Continuing Education will process applications from part-time students.

Daly was previously employed as admissions director at Mount Saint Mary College in Newburgh.

James Daly

He has also worked as an assistant director of admissions at Saint Frances in Biddeford, Maine.

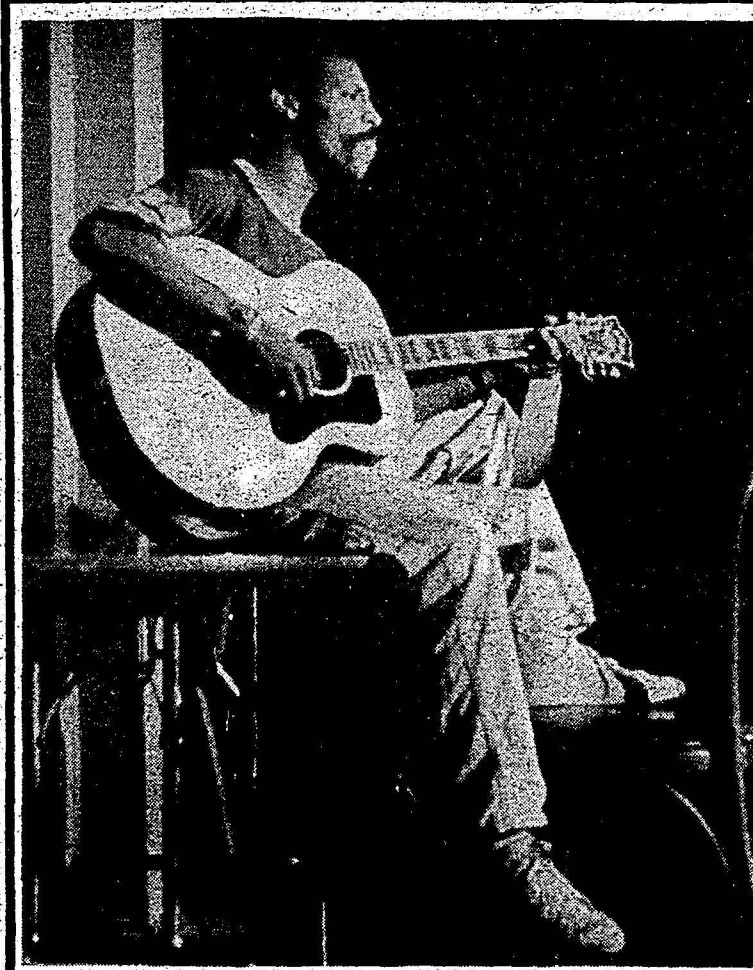

In 1970, the admissions office intern was the only other on-campus internship program. "It was a unique experience," Daly says, "my reward was the acceptance of students I helped to recruit."

As a student intern, Daly traveled to Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and New Jersey to recruit new freshmen.

Daly says he plans to personalize the present admissions process, placing an emphasis on interviewing. He also says he would like to involve faculty in an advisory capacity to help him establish admissions standards.

When Daly was a Marist student he was involved in

A job well done

Freshmen orientation is supposed to be a time for new students to meet friends.

In the past couple of years freshmen came to Marist for orientation but it never worked out very well.

However, this year, through exceptional planning by the CUB, it was a big success.

Wine parties, a picnic dinner and a midnight brunch were opportunities for freshmen to meet one another and make the first week a lot easier for everybody.

It was evident the freshmen met a lot of people the first couple of days on campus.

Organization is the key for any operation. The CUB showed it has spent a lot of time and effort planning not only freshmen orientation, but activities during the year which should encourage students to look forward to the school year. Special credit must be given to Dolly Bodick, coordinator of college activities for the excellent job she did planning freshmen orientation.

The future

In a Circle article written in 1967 a student named John Skehan speculated about the future of Marist College in the year 1977. He wrote:

"The incoming freshman of 1977 will probably still have shaving cream fights, but with a new, super strength aerosol can that will be guaranteed to last for the duration of the hostilities. The parking problem should be alleviated by the new M.A.R.I.S.T.S. (Metropolitan Area Rapid Transit System) which will bring students daily from our suburbs of Newark, Hartford, Albany, the Bronx, and perhaps even Washington...

"1977 will see a new breed of student on campus. The incoming class of 1977 will have more background than the graduating seniors of 1977. They may know more about world politics and nuclear testing than about the latest baseball stars. They will have perfected an even more effective water bomb and an impenetrable plastic shield for their proctor's (R.A.'s) door."

While these predictions are a bit far-fetched and wrong, they must not be discounted for the future.

However, they do demonstrate the unpredictability of the college's future.

Who could have known five years ago about the improvements we would see because of our new library and the McCann Center? Or who could have told us even last January that Bennett College of Millbrook would close and some of their students and programs would be coming to school in Poughkeepsie?

With the acquisition of Bennett Marist has gained an opportunity to improve itself even more. Yet predictably and traditionally some problems also came with the package. Some of the problems, such as the campus housing shortage have immediately presented themselves. Others remain to be developed.

Not wishing to be pessimistic, just observant, we hope the improvements will help Marist in the coming ten years.

Maybe in 1987 we won't see John Skehan's dream of "power boat races on the Hudson River" and a course about "The problems of Astroid Mining," but it's a safe guess Marist College will still be trying to improve itself in ways about which we won't speculate.

Squaring our policy

As the new school year unfolds the editors of the CIRCLE would like to extend to the Marist College Community a warm welcome and express a hope that everyone will assume an atmosphere on campus where all individuals may grow academically, emotionally and socially.

The CIRCLE is a weekly newspaper, published to bring the news to the members of the community. News, as interpreted by the editors of the CIRCLE is any accurate and timely event, discovery, opinion and any matter which affects or interests the Marist College Community.

The CIRCLE has adopted a policy of printing any newsworthy event. The editors of the circle feel the paper is developing into a more professional newspaper. As all newspapers in the country, the CIRCLE supports the "people's right to know" which in a community, even one as small as ours, protects and assures a democratic society.

The CIRCLE is a newspaper written and edited by the students for the students. It is funded by student government and from the sales of advertisements. Neither student government nor the Marist College administration exercise any form of censorship. The CIRCLE is a newspaper free from any censorship other than that of the student editors.

The CIRCLE maintains a vehicle by which anyone, student or administrator, can repute editorials or articles, air gripes and express opinions. This is the "Letters to the Editor" column printed weekly.

The editors of the CIRCLE would like to take this opportunity to invite anyone who feels the CIRCLE is not covering any news worthy event, to bring it to the attention of the CIRCLE editors by way of the campus mail.

Only by the presentation of fact can one learn and form individual opinions. It is the purpose of the CIRCLE to bring facts to the attention of the Marist College community. In this way, we the editors feel we are contributing to the learning process at Marist College.

I wrote this letter not as a flagrant or inexcusable joke, nor is its purpose to taunt or fluster the mind of anyone, for only a true and sincere need could motivate its existence.

To whom it may concern: It seems so impersonal to head a letter such as I have and yet, I'm lost in my search for the words to make it a little more intimate, a little more personal. Maybe its a subconscious leakage of my frustration and total sense of helplessness. A fact which forces me to humble myself in the form of a begger, thus, I swallow my pride.

For the past 5 1/2 years I've been in prison doing a bid of 25 to life for a crime in which I didn't do. In an effort to establish my innocence, I depleted my entire financial resources, yet it was to no avail. The lawyer that I had obtained to represent me, which consequently led to my present sad state of affairs. Since that time, I've had the service of several so-called lawyers, legal-aids; yet the initial appeal (that is accustomed with bids like mine) have yet to be processed and heard by the courts. For what reasons I don't know?

Yet, realizing my predicaments is a mere form of existing, and not really living, I sought the permission of the courts to act as my counsellor in the handling of any further proceedings concerning myself (appeal briefs, motions, etc.) mainly because I'm afraid to put my entire life in the hands of another jack legged lawyer. Since I've been in prison, I've been diligently studying the legal mechanism of court proceedings, and have become virtually a slave to the study of law, yet, it has become a financial burden for the necessary equipment to enhance my chance at meaningful and true justice. So please don't recoil from me and or my need, for freedom is the when and the law to the existence of life, and therefore is my most profound destination; thus even a dollar would go far, be used wisely and be very much appreciated. Please send check or money order.

If it becomes necessary; (before venturing into sending your hard earned money,) call the institution and therefore establish beyond a shadow of a doubt the validity of my plight (and the time I'm doing) for the realization of my quest for freedom is a sincere one.

Respectfully in Struggle,

Platt named dept. chairman

By David Ng

Dr. Richard Platt, after one year as a communications instructor has been named the new chairman of the English and communications arts department. He succeeds Dr. Jephtha Lanning who is on sabbatical this year in New York City. Dr. Platt, who has a master's degree from the University of Illinois, was voted in by members of the department in a secret ballot.

Dr. Platt says he was surprised he was voted the new department head last spring. "I thought there were others more qualified than myself," says Dr. Platt because of his main interest in communications.

As the new chairman, Dr. Platt hopes to move his department in a "new direction" toward public relations and advertising. He says Marist is not yet developed in these areas but because of increasing student interest these topics should be expanded.

Dr. Platt also hopes to offer a math course to communications majors. He wants to "expose the various methodologies and analytical techniques used in the field of communications arts." Platt says communications majors need a "basic understanding" of topics such as statistics and computer math.

Dr. Platt says he was impressed with the communication internships but would like to "strengthen and widen" their scope. He says he would like to create internships in areas of film and English.

Platt says he would also like to establish an "overall set of guidelines" in providing students involved in extra-curricular activities such as the school newspaper and radio.

Originally from the San Francisco Bay area, Platt attended Santa Rosa Community College and later the University of California at Berkley, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. He also studied filmmaking for one year at the London Film School. Platt also has a doctorate's degree in communications from the University of Illinois.

Presently Dr. Platt is teaching Communications I, a course involving interpersonal communications.

SILENCE IS DEADLY.

When someone drinks too much and then drives, it's the silence that kills. Your silence.

It kills your friends, your relatives, and people you don't even know. But they're all people you could save.

If you knew what to say, maybe you'd be less quiet. Maybe fewer people would die.

What you should say is, "I'll drive you home." Or, "Let me call a cab." Or, "Sleep on my couch tonight."

Don't hesitate because your friend may have been drinking only beer. Beer and wine can be just as intoxicating as mixed drinks.

And don't think that black coffee will make him sober. Black coffee never made anyone sober. Maybe it would keep him awake long enough to have an accident. But that's about all.

The best way to prevent a drunk from becoming a dead drunk is to stop him from driving.

Speak up. Don't let silence be the last sound he hears.
