TRYGVIE LIE

At the UN tonight, Secretary General Trygvie Lie, gave notice to a group of UN employees who refused to answer questions about ~~the~~ alleged Communist activities.. They will have to change their minds by tomorrow, or lose their jobs. This is Trygvie Lie's own solution of a ~~stagnant~~ of a problem that arose - when Americans in the service of the UN defied a Senate Committee, citing Constitutional rights and refusing to answer on the subject of Communism.

DULLES

We have a declaration from John Foster Dulles on a subject about which there has been so much talk - charges of disloyalty in the State Department. The incoming Secretary says there will be a thorough investigation, ~~But~~, this needn't worry anybody whose record is clean.

At a news conference, Dulles used the following words: "There are, of course, many angles that need to be looked into, and will be looked into very thoroughly. ~~But~~ loyal servants of our government have nothing to fear."

~~( This followed a conference with Secretary of State Dean Acheson - on the familiar subject of an orderly transition from Democratic to Republican control. The outgoing and the incoming Secretaries appeared on the friendliest of terms. As well they might be - Acheson and Dulles having worked together in foreign policy affairs for a long time. )~~

U.N.

( The General Assembly of the United Nations voted, this afternoon, and passed that Indian compromise for a truce in Korea. In the debate, Vishinsky denounced the proposal ) just as he did when it was passed by the Political Committee - rejecting it in behalf of Soviet Russia and Red China.

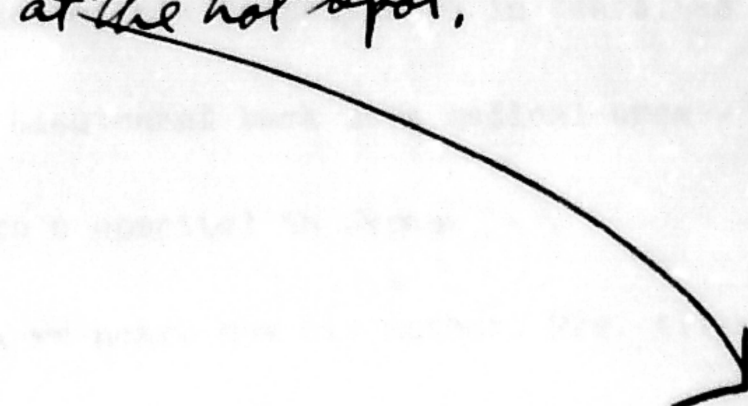

( But it is now official - that Indian plan to give the United Nations jurisdiction over prisoners of war who don't want to go back to the Reds. ) The U.N. resolution is being sent on to the Communists of China and North Korea - and there is some faint hope that they may not agree with Moscow. It seems like a faint hope - after the way Vishinsky blasted the proposal all along the line.

On the battlefield in Korea, Pin Point Hill was captured once again today. South Koreans taking that strong point in four hours of bitter fighting - in equally bitter cold. Chinese Reds, in white camouflage, had stormed the hill earlier in the day. But the ROKs went right back, and recaptured it.

KOREA - DULLES

adds further to
A dispatch from Korea ~~gives~~ the story of Lieutenant Allen Dulles of the Marines, nephew of John Foster Dulles, named to be Secretary of State. Son - of Allen Dulles, connected so prominently with U.S. Intelligence, the cloak and dagger service in the war, for example. Also a top statesman and a great lawyer. The Lieutenant was gravely wounded in action two weeks ago. The story now pieced out - with details from the battlefield.

He was in charge of light machine guns, and should have been at the rear. But he got a chance to take over a platoon at a hot spot in the Bunker Hill area. There a shell fragment hit him in the leg, but he paid no attention to that - and went out to attack some enemy snipers. They shot the gun out of his hands, and he was hit in the wrist. Wounded twice - but he stayed right there at the hot spot.

~~at the hot spot.~~

The next afternoon came <sup>the</sup> climax ^ the story ~~is~~ told by Private Joseph Cuccio (Coo-cho) of New York. Who relates:

"The Lieutenant noticed three machine guns firing on our left flank. We went over there, and took some rifle grenades. He told us to stay in our bunkers."

Keeping ~~making-~~ensured~~~~ his men ~~was~~ in safety, ~~the~~ ~~lieutenant~~ ~~made~~ his way to within thirty yards of the Red machine gun position - and, by radio, called for shellfire from Leatherneck mortars. These - blasting the nest of machine guns. He kept up this one-man operation, until a Communist ~~mortar~~ shell burst near him. "I guess the gooks spotted him, directing <sup>our mortar</sup> ~~fire~~," says Private Cuccio.

The Marines of his Company were in tears, as they carried the wounded Lieutenant back to a medical area - from which he was flown to a hospital in Japan.

Last week we heard how his mother, Mrs. Allen Dulles, was on her way to the bedside of her son. Today - the full story of the heroism of the Lieutenant, son of Allen Dulles, ~~at~~ one of the ablest Americans of our day, ~~U.S. Intelligence,~~ and nephew of the coming Secretary of State.

Governor Stevenson says that Union labor should not consider the Republican victory as ~~such~~ <sup>such</sup> a bad thing.

He stated this, today, at the C.I.O. Convention in Atlantic City.

In the following words:- ~~the~~ <sup>the</sup> "Perhaps, as ~~the~~ <sup>the</sup> defeated candidate, whom you were good enough to support, I can be permitted to say that the election should not be considered a disaster, or even a misfortune, for labor." And added: "Your large task now is the conduct of your relation with industry - always in a larger framework of the national interest."

( Governor Stevenson appeared at a memorial service honoring the late Philip Murray, President of the C.I.O. President Truman sent a message, in simple eloquent words. Saying: "He was a gentle, religious man, firm in his convictions - and fierce in his love for the form of government he found in the United States. I shall miss him, as you miss him." <sup>So</sup> the President told the C.I.O. Convention.)

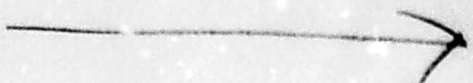

All this was time out ~~from~~ <sup>from</sup> the strenuous contest that is going on ~~now~~ -- who is to be the successor to Philip Murray?

Executive Vice-President Allan Haywood is putting up a vigorous battle, But the odds appear to be, still, on Walter Reuther, chief of the Auto Workers - who seems to have the voting strength to force his election as President of the C.I.O.

The Convention battle provided Governor Stevenson with an occasion for a bit of wry humor. He <sup>(began)</sup> ~~started~~ his address by announcing - that both Haywood and Reuther were withdrawing in his favor - supporting Adlai for president of the C.I.O. "But, after calculable reflection," said Adlai, "I've concluded not to accept this draft."

That got a laugh and a cheer - the humorous, rueful reference to that famous draft at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Follow STEVENSON

Tonight, Governor Stevenson is in Washington, greeted by President Truman - with whom he will discuss party policy - such as the leadership of the Democrats as a Minority Group. Tomorrow night, he attends a farewell White House dinner that the President is giving for his Cabinet and staff.

Substitute COAL

President Truman okays the full wage increase for coal miners - a pay hike of one dollar ninety cents per day, negotiated by John L. Lewis with the coal companies. In this, the President overrules - the Wage Stabilization Board and his own wage stabilization chiefs - who rejected the full increase as "inflationary"

The President explains that he wants to avoid an economic disturbance that could not be settled in the remainder of his term. Which would mean - "wild cat" coal strikes.

STRIKE

President Truman invokes the Taft-Hartley Law - in a Steel Workers strike at Dunkirk, New York. The plant there, belonging to the American Automotive Company, is the sole producer of nickel pipe used in the Atomic Energy Program - vital for the production of the atom bomb and the hydrogen bomb. The strike has been on for three months, and the Atomic Energy Commission made an appeal to the White House.

(Today President Truman declared that, if the walkout continued, it would - "imperil the national safety." ~~Some~~ He's against)

~~the~~ the Taft-Hartly Law, ~~EMERGENCY NATIONAL DEFENSE AND CONTROL ACT~~

but this is the tenth time he has put it into effect.

Creating an emergency board, to investigate the strike - the usual prelude, before asking the federal courts for an injunction to send the workers back to their jobs.)

VENEZUELA

Word from Venezuela is - all quiet. No disturbances reported today - following the assumption of power by Colonel Perez Jimenez (the "J" is pronounced "H"), who proclaims himself head of the state, by authority of the army. At the same time, the announcement is made that the government party is ahead in the voting - the count of ~~an~~ ballots cast in the weekend election.

Such are the developments following earlier word - indicating an election victory for the Left Wing party, ~~the~~ ~~opposition to the military junta governing Venezuela for the last three years.~~ Those were early returns - highly unfavorable to the government. Which, many assumed, had lost the election. <sup>But there's a sudden twist.</sup> ~~There's a sudden twist. There's a sudden twist. There's a sudden twist.~~

~~news x x news~~ A new one-man government takes over -- stating that the trend in the count of the votes has been reversed. The government party - ahead of the Left Wing faction.

It sounds like the sort of thing which might cause an uproar in a Latin-American country. But all is quiet in Venezuela - at least according to the reports we have.

CHURCHILL

There was turmoil in the London House of Commons today - and no wonder. Prime Minister Winston Churchill was booed, and somebody called him - a goose.

The excitement arose in a debate about the naval command in the Mediterranean - and Churchill waxed sarcastic. The Labor M.Ps replied with a storm of booing. Which aroused Churchill's ire, and he demanded of the Deputy Speaker:

"Is it not out of order to boo a member of this House?"

That provoked the shocking retort. Labor Member William Ross shouted:

"What else can you say to a goose?"

The Deputy Speaker, startled, instantly commanded:

"Withdraw that remark, or leave the House."

Churchill spoke up, and said he had been called worse things than - a goose.

But the question was raised - is it permitted to call anybody a goose in Her Majesty's House of Commons?

Well, the problem was of such consequence, there was an official investigation. The Deputy Speaker consulted a tome on parliamentary procedure, which includes a list of forbidden words. He looked down the alphabet to the letter "g." Studied carefully - and then announced in a solemn voice:

"The word 'goose' is not in the list of forbidden words."

So that settled it, and Winston Churchill walked out of the House of Commons - amid another storm of boos. I suppose the Laborites meant, boos for the goose. Most undignified for the magnificent Winston Churchill.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

( Today was hanging-day at Prague - capital of Czechoslovakia, a land that once was free. The sentences pronounced at that monstrosity of a trial, were executed - the doom of <sup>eleven</sup> ~~nine~~ one-time big-shots of the Reds. Headed by former Foreign Minister Clementis and Rudolf Slansky, former Secretary-General of the Czech Communist Party.) A brief bulletin issued by the Red government states - they were hanged today, after having been found guilty of treason, Zionism, Jewish conspiracy.

PARROT

In Chicago, they <sup>have</sup> fail<sup>ed</sup> to solve the mystery of - the "cursing parrot." Among the birds of the Brookfield Zoo, there's a lively talker - accused of using the most profane language.

The scandal broke when a lady wrote a scorching letter to a Chicago newspaper, telling how Polly swore at her with a blazing vocabulary. "Enough," said she - "to make a sailor blush." Sounds shocking, indeed - the blushing sailor.

The management replied with a pious denial. Director Robert Dean saying: "None of our ~~two-hundred-and-seventy-nine~~ birds would say anything worse than 'Oh, fudge.'"

But that is followed by another lady, who supports the accusation. "Don't think," she writes, "that the story of the cursing parrot is a myth. There is such a bird at <sup>the</sup> Brookfield <sup>Zoo.</sup> I know, because it cussed me out good and plenty."

After that evidence, <sup>the</sup> Chicago Sun-Times made an investigation, sending a reporter to the Zoo. But the only conversation he got was out of a couple of myna birds from India.

evidently thought he was Caruth Wells
One of which addressed him, and said: "Hello! Good-bye!"

comes of raffles, a famous myrtle bird

How are you? Fine. My name is Joe." And then seeing a passing blonde said — whistle!

So that is taken as evidence - but is it? To my mind, the testimony of the newspaperman merely shows that the cursing parrot swears - only at ladies, in a way that would make a sailor blush. As an old Navy man, Nelson — did you ever see a sailor blush.
