

L.T.-DELCO. THURS, MAY 8, 1958.

GOOD EVENING EVERYBODY:

Tonight, Peru formally apologized - to the United States. The Peruvian Ambassador in Washington calling our State Department - expressing deep regrets over the incidents in Lima today.

NIXON

As you may have heard, Vice President Nixon had some real trouble with the Reds, ~~today~~ in the Peruvian capital,

Riots in Lima, ~~Peru~~ - led by Communists. The Vice President telling newsmen later: "They were just too old to be students."

The Nixon day began with the laying of a wreath at the shrine to Peru's independence in the Central Square in Lima. Then, as he was driving back - he saw a crowd waiting for him in front of San Marcos University. A mob, carrying signs that read: "Nixon, get out of here."

He at once ordered his car to stop, and tried to talk with some of the leaders. But the mob began to scream - drowning out his words. Nixon telling them: "Sure, I'll go home - but don't you want to hear the truth first?" They obviously didn't want to hear - so he left.

Later he visited The Catholic University of Lima where he received a friendly welcome. ~~Some~~ Students, cheering asking for his autograph.

Then, as he was returning to his hotel he ran into a traffic jam - and decided to walk. Some in the crowd who were hostile began shouting. Nixon, smiling and waving - but not stopping this time. The police, keeping the crowd away from him.

These demonstrations the most unpleasant Vice President Nixon has encountered during his South American tour. Although stones were thrown none hit him.

Lima officials say the riots were evidently prepared ~~in~~ in advance - by Communist agitators.

DULLES

Secretary of State Dulles, flying East of the Iron Curtain, for a major address on foreign policy. The place - ~~West~~ Berlin. ^{See,} Dulles, arriving at Tempelhof Airport - to find it ~~here~~ heavily guarded by West German troops. The government of Free Berlin, not taking ~~any~~ any chances with the Communists. But ~~there~~ there were no demonstrations in the Soviet sector of Berlin - even though the arrival of the American Secretary of State was widely publicized.

Speaking before the West Berlin legislature - Secretary Dulles again accused Russia of preventing an international settlement, ~~Dulles,~~ pointing out that Berlin is a proof of this. The city, still divided - ~~was~~ even though the Kremlin promised to help with the reunification of Germany.

The Dulles visit, a bold move to stiffen West Berlin against the Soviet terror next door. One official in the free sector calls the visit - "Imaginative statesmanship."

EMBASSY

The American Embassy in Port-au-Prince, Haiti - hit by snipers. A band of gunmen - opening up with ~~the~~ pistols and rifles - at a hundred yards. Ambassador Gerald Drew ~~was~~ preparing for dinner - when bullets began zooming through the windows - and hitting the walls. The snipers, keeping up their ~~fire~~ fusillade for about ten minutes - then disappearing.

No one in the Embassy ~~was~~ hurt. But Ambassador Drew has lodged a complaint with the government. The police of Port-au-Prince, trying to run down the snipers.

ATOMIC

Those pacifists at the Atomic Energy Commission headquarters in Germantown, Maryland - are going on a hunger strike. They are members of ^{the organization that calls itself} "the national committee of non-violent action against nuclear weapons." They want Uncle Sam to call off the nuclear tests in the Pacific. ^{Now} Their latest move - a hunger strike, until the five ~~more~~ members of the Atomic Energy Commission - agree to confer with them.

The number of Pacifists engaged in this demonstration - is growing. Ten originally - joined ~~ten~~ today by three more. And they say others ~~more~~ are on the way - to help strengthen the peaceful attack on atomic tests.

LITTLE ROCK

President Eisenhower times the removal of national guardsmen from Little Rock - to coincide with the closing of Central High School. The students, to go home for the summer at the end of this month. Mr. Eisenhower, pointing out there's no need to have troops on guard - while the building is empty.

At the same time, he hopes it won't be necessary to send them back in the fall. The President, appealing to local officials in Little Rock - to see that the Supreme Court ruling on school integration - is carried out.

Today's order ^{was along} passed ~~on~~ to General Walker - in a telephone call from Army Secretary Brucker. The order, affecting only a few hundred men. In September, there were over ten thousand members of the hundred and first airborne * on duty at Central High. ^{But} The paratroopers ^{live} removed ~~in~~ before Thanksgiving. ^{And} The National Guard ^{was} cut down - to only about four hundred men. These four hundred, now leaving.

CONGRESSWOMAN

A Democrat from Minnesota - intends to stay in Congress. Which sounds all right - for the Democratic party. But it doesn't sound at all good to - Andrew Knutson, of Oklee, Minnesota.

What's the connection? Well, the Democrat happens to be Mrs. Knutson - blonde Coya Knutson - who has served in the House since Nineteen Fifty Four. Today husband Andrew appealed to his wife Coya - to come home. Andrew Knutson runs a hotel in Oklee - which keeps him right there in his home town. So - Mr. and Mrs. Knutson, hardly ever see one another. Knutson declaring - the Minnesota Congresswoman hasn't spent Christmas in Oklee - for two years; or Easter at home for three years. That's why Andrew Knutson says - "Coya come home."

Mrs. Knutson replying - she has a duty to her constituents. Which seems to mean that - she intends to stay right there in Washington. How do they feel about all this - on Capitol Hill? Realistic members of the House are wondering how all this will affect Coya's chances for re-election. Congressman Harold Cooley of North Carolina - thinks it will help her. He says she hears the women voters of Minnesota's Ninth District - are solidly behind their Congresswoman. The Southerner believes they won't be a bit friendly toward - a husband trying to defeat a wife, who has won high public office - by telling her to come home. What about the lonely days Andrew Knutson is spending up there in Oklee, Minnesota - wondering when he'll see his wife next? Says Congressman Cooley - "Why doesn't he come to Washington during the holidays?"

PLANE

An airliner circled the airport at Charlotte, North Carolina for three hours today. Pilot John Randall of Miami - couldn't control the nose wheel. Captain Randall, facing the problem - of getting the sixty-five persons aboard - down safely.

He circled for three hours - to use up his fuel, while
~~At the same time~~ the ground ~~SEN~~ crew ~~was~~ spreading a blanket of foam on the runway. Then Captain Randall landed his Eastern airlines constellation. ~~He set his plane down on the two main sets of wheels.~~ Hitting the blanket of foam, the plane rocked violently from side to side - ~~and then~~ ~~finally~~ finally came to a stop - tilted up on its nose. A ~~big~~ crowd of spectators gave Captain Randall a loud cheer that was ~~γ~~ echoed by the passengers.
~~No one hurt seriously.~~

POLE

A citizen of Warsaw, trapped by the Red government, all because he got the address wrong on one of his letters. Witold Jasiewicz, ~~who~~ has been sending letters to the West. The addresses, the greatest public figures on our side of the Iron Curtain -- including Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower. The Jasiewicz letters - demanding freedom for Poland. The writer, asking indignantly - how long the democracies are going to watch his country suffering from Communist tyranny.

~~Witold~~ Jasiewicz managed to get his letters to the West - simply by mailing them at a post office in Warsaw. Finally, he misaddressed one envelope. The letter, getting past the iron curtain - but returning to Poland, when it couldn't be delivered. The Polish censor, opening the letter on its return - ^{reporting} ~~horrified by~~ the contents, ~~reporting the matter~~ to the police. The writer, now in jail. Jasiewicz - not writing any more letters to Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower.

INDIANS

The Sheriff of Niagara Falls has just rounded up the "Mad Bear." Wallace Anderson - leader of the Tuscarora Indians resisting the state power authority. Anderson's Indian name - "Mad Bear". We've heard how surveyors of The Power Authority entered the Tuscarora reservation near Niagara Falls; intending to stake out an area for a new reservoir.

"Mad Bear" promptly challenged their right to touch Indian property. Telling the pale faces to clear out. When they stayed where they were - "Mad Bear" moved in front of their instruments - blocking the view. Encouraging his followers - to do the same. Especially the women of the Tuscarora.

What do white-men do nowadays when they have trouble with redskins? Why they send for the sheriff - not the Lone Ranger, the sheriff of Niagara Falls - galloping to the rescue.

Arresting the Tuscarora "Mad Bear for contempt of court. "Mad Bear" the lockup in jail tonight - saying he'll never agree to let the Pale Face take any more Indian land.

NAVY

Something new in the Royal Navy -- a service famous for tradition, ~~and~~^{for} doing things the old way. Her Majesty's fleet, creating a new post - something like that of a union shop steward. The title of this post - "Fleet personnel rating." The duties - liaison between the rank and file, and the brass.

This new job -- created because of one man. George Andrews, who used to be in the Signals Corps. He became famous on his ship - famous for explaining orders to the sailors. His fame, reaching London. Andrews, called home - for a conference with the Admirals. After a long talk about the things that make enlisted men unhappy - the Admirals decided, they'd like to have Andrews representing them throughout the fleet. The Admirals adding, they want him to tell them - about orders that touch off dissention in the ships.

So the Royal Navy gets something - no other fleet has. A union shop steward -- by the name of George Andrews.

SPACE

Now here's a question -- how would you like to meet - two dimensional people? — not three dimensional like you and me. Well, the President of the Astronautical Federation thinks - we're liable to run into them when we start zooming around in outer space.

Andrew Haley, testifying before the House space committee. Pointing out - it's not necessary for all inhabitants of the universe to have three dimensions. Here on earth, we're accustomed to three - length, breadth, and depth. In other words - solids. According to Astronaut Haley - one dimension is liable to be missing in certain parts of our universe. The inhabitants - having only length and breadth.

In other words
No depth. ~~They~~ They won't be -- solid. They'll be like ghosts.

Has this expert any opinion about them? Oh yes, he thinks ~~we~~ they'll be an inferior race - not equal to us in intelligence. Just why he holds this - doesn't come out ~~clearly~~ ^{top} clearly in his testimony. Anyway, he thinks we'd better be ready for the day when we come face to face with two dimensional people - out there in space. It had now, been done before with a three-dimensional message.

BEAR

The government of Alberta - stepping in to prevent the Canadian grizzly bear from disappearing. Only a few years ago, grizzlies wandered through the great plains of Alberta -- wherever the buffalo roamed. As the buffalo moved back before the advance of the white man -- the grizzlies retired with them -- finding a home in the foothills of the Rockies.

But in recent years, hunters have been following them into the mountains. The number of grizzlies killed - increasing every year. Zoologists warning ^{that} the ~~whole~~ species - ^{the grizzly -} is threatened with extinction.

So in Edmonton, the Alberta government ^{is} creating a sanctuary for bears. Eight thousand square miles in the northern part of the Province - where hunting will be illegal.

^{In} ~~this~~ a move to save the grizzly bear - one of the world's ^{and fiercest} largest animals. ^{A charging grizzly often weighing} ~~Sometimes weighing close to~~ a thousand pounds. And Solong Until Tomorrow!
