Envoy

When shadows, as the twilight falls,
 Their tale of evening tell
And dusk pervades old M. C.'s halls
 That we have known so well,
The happiness these days have brought
 Now saddens our young hearts,
As we recall the dreary thought
 That soon we must depart.

We'll leave it behind us,
But time will find us
 Dreaming of M. C.,
 Alma Mater dear.
Farewell, ivy-covered walls,
For now duty calls.
 We'll e'er be true
 To all that you
Have taught us, old M. C.
