

WHITE HOUSE

Wed. Jan. 19-72.

From the White House ^{comes} a warning ~~today~~ that enough's enough. President Nixon pledging prompt retaliation - against foreign governments that seize private American property without paying for it.

This to include - said he - a cut-off on U S Foreign Aid ; plus a veto of potential loans - from the World Bank and other development agencies.

"Under such circumstances" - the President went on - "humanitarian assistance will, of course, continue to receive special consideration." He also stressed: "The U S fully respects the sovereign rights of others." But the time has come - said he - when we can no longer "ignore actions prejudicial to the rule of law and legitimate U S interest."

The President observing that indeed, less developed nations should welcome foreign investments - instead of frightening ^{them} away.

Observers further noting that the President's remarks - were clearly addressed to the governments of Chile and Pakistan, in particular. The former recently expropriating American owned copper mines; that latter - now threatening a similar nationalization of private industry.
