Zuccarello adopts new schedule

By Kathy Norton

For the first time in four years most Marist students will not have Wednesdays off and others will be required to attend the same class three times a week when the new time schedule goes into effect in the fall of 1978.

The final revision of the schedule was approved on Nov. 18 by Academic Dean Louis Zuccarello after a consultation with Associate Academic Dean Gerald Cox and Registrar John Dwyer. Zuccarello says his decision was based on support shown by the Student Academic Committee, the Interhouse Council, department chairmen, the Student Government, and the Commuter Union.

Zuccarello announced in early October that the administration was interested in revising the present time schedule which was implemented in 1974. Zuccarello said an agreement was signed then stating that the schedule was experimental. According to Zuccarello the present schedule did not achieve these goals:

-Wednesday three-hour time slots failed to encourage "innovative teaching methods" and greater experimentation.

-The schedule has not increased the population of non-traditional students. Instead the college has seen a 30 percent drop in that category.

-The schedule has failed to help students "make more effective use of free time." (Zuccarello said this was determined in discussions by "activity leaders.")

-Wednesday absenteeism has caused students to miss a week's work. (He added that faculty have been able to cover a week's work in one three hour class.)

Following the announcement, Zuccarello held discussions with department chairmen and heard

State auditing Marist's HEOP

By David Potter

Marist's Higher Education Opportunity Program (HEOP) is being audited by the State Education Department to determine if any of 286 students enrolled in the program between 1969-75 were ineligible for HEOP funds, according to HEOP Director John F. Sullivan.

Sullivan said even though auditors were doing "very severe hair splitting" in determining the eligibility of students enrolled in HEOP, he doesn't think auditors will find much. He said the audit was "just a warning to keep tighter controls on funding" in the future.

Last summer 39 of 114 students enrolled in HEOP were discovered ineligible for aid and as a result Marist lost $23,085. If State auditors uncover similar abuses, Sullivan said Marist "will not have to pay back any cash," but will be required to "make greater contributions to HEOP in the future."

Marist contributed $98,093 compared with HEOP's $93,260 between 1976-77 but it is only required to produce a matching figure of 15 percent of HEOP's donation, according to Sullivan. Marist gives more than the required percentage because more than 15 percent is needed to run a good program, said Sullivan. Because of Marist's "large contribution" Sullivan believes HEOP at Marist will not be severely affected by the results of the audit.

Sullivan said HEOP's main difficulty in providing evidence for eligibility of students enrolled in the program was caused by HEOP's inability to get financial documents from former students. Because of this HEOP is "making sure all information is on file on students in the future," he said.

Sullivan added that Marist, in most cases, has been able to find alternate means of financial aid for students declared ineligible for HEOP funds. Sullivan did not have the total amount of money involved in the audit.

Apathy hurting CU

By Margaret Schubert

Only four out of the nearly 700 commuters at Marist usually attend weekly commuter union meetings, according to Cathy Cornish, a transfer student who is trying to reorganize the Commuter Union (C.U.).

"At this point it is difficult to organize the union because we don't have enough members to nominate for an election," Cornish said.

CU meetings are conducted Fridays at 2:15 p.m. in the commuter lounge in Donnelly Hall.

She said the objective of the CU is to get more activities and participation for commuters in the college community.

"Communication seems to be the problem with commuters," Cornish said. In an attempt to alleviate the problem, she has instituted commuter mailboxes, folder files for each commuter, where notes and messages can be left. The mailboxes, located in the commuter lounge, will replace the commuter newsletters which were too costly and time consuming a practice to continue, Cornish said.

Blanchard, Ng quit SG posts

Student Government Vice President Suzanne Breen will assume the duties of SG chief executive beginning next semester due to the resignation of President Jeff Blanchard. There will also be a new secretary in January because of the resignation of SG Secretary David Ng. Blanchard said he will appoint Ng's successor before Dec. 17.

Blanchard told The Circle he is resigning because he is taking a leave of absence from college to get married. He will be wed to Marist junior Paula Rayno a Champagnat Hall residence advisor on January 7.

Blanchard, a junior, also said he is resigning because the demands of the office "detracted" him from getting an education.

Ng said he is resigning because his grades are low, and does not want to hurt his chances of studying abroad next year through the Marist Abroad Program. "It's not all Student Government's fault for my low grades," said Ng, "but that's definitely part of it." Ng said his duties as feature editor for The Circle also contributed to his academic problems.

Levine resigns after 14 years as grid coach

By Ken Healy

Ron Levine

Ron Levine, the only football coach the Marist Vikings have ever known, resigned last week after 14 seasons of Marist football. In a letter to Athletic Director Ron Petro, Levine cited the continuing demands of his Poughkeepsie law practice as the main reason for his retirement.

"After considerable thought and reflection, I have reluctantly decided to retire as football coach at Marist effective immediately," he said. "This decision has been a difficult one for me but I find that the demands of my law practice have reached the point where I can no longer devote the amount of time necessary to satisfy the far reaching demand of a football coach at this level.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed my relationship with the college and will treasure the memories I have acquired over fourteen years. No person could ever have enjoyed coaching more. It has been a great privilege and I hope that along the way my contributions have been equal to the pleasantries that I received.

"My best wish for the continuing success at Marist. No college coaches or players deserve it more."

Petro, after speaking with Levine on several occasions, said he reluctantly accepted his resignation. He said Levine's successor would not be named immediately, but a search would begin soon. He also issued a statement officially thanking Levine for his past services.

Levine's association with the team goes back to the beginning. He went to Dominican High School, a bankrupt institution, to purchase the Viking's original equipment. After a 3-3 inaugural season the Vikings, under Levine, have compiled an outstanding 70-38-3 record. Ten of those losses came during the past two seasons.

From 1970 to 1972 Levine's Vikings went 23-1-1 with undefeated seasons in '70 and '72. In 1972 Levine was named Coach of the Year in the ECCFC, after defeating number one ranked Seton Hall for the national club football title.

Although the past few seasons have not been as successful as earlier ones, Levine's enthusiasm has not diminished. He continued to lead the Vikings through uneasy times.

Director Steve Van Buren credits Levine with keeping football at Marist when it seemed the team would die. "Ron was able to justify our existence to the president and board of trustees when others thought our program was a waste," said Van Buren. "It's through his efforts that today we are on the verge of becoming a varsity team. He deserves a lot of credit. He'll be missed."

Van Buren has had a unique relationship with Levine, playing for him and later coaching with him. Van Buren was with the Vikings when they were a club football power and in this past season which ended with a disappointing 2-6-1 record. "Ron's reasons for retiring are legitimate. He told me at the beginning of the season he didn't have the time anymore. His practice is growing and he has sons who play ball and he wants to see them. He really did a hell of a job for us," Van Buren said.

'Plaza Suite' opens tonite

Plaza Suite, a comedy by Neil Simon, will be presented in the Marist College Theater today, tomorrow and Saturday at 7 p.m. The show will be sponsored by the M.C.C.T.A.

The play consists of three acts which take place in the Plaza Hotel in New York City.

The first act involves a confrontation between a husband and his wife. The husband, Sam Nash, played by Pete Persico, is having an affair with his secretary, Jean McCormack, played by Kate Lynch. Mrs. Nash is played by Regina Clarkin. Also involved in the first act are Ralph Desideria, the bellhop, and John Stephen, the waiter.

The second act shows a rendezvous between a big-time Hollywood producer and his high school sweetheart. The producer is played by Albert Volk and his sweetheart is Joyce Touchette.

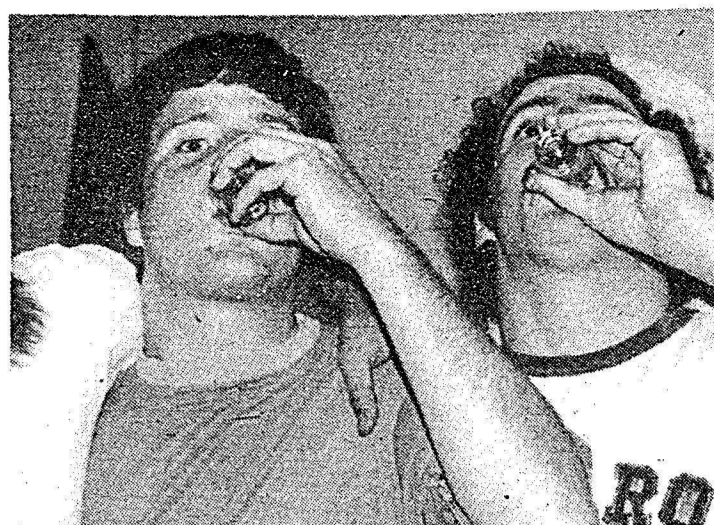

In the third act, Mimsley Hubley, locks herself in the bathroom on her wedding day. Miss Hubley is played by Marie Paisi and Chris Falle and Maria Mellili portray her parents who make an attempt to free her from the locked bathroom. The waiting groom, Borden Eisler, is portrayed by Mark Murphy.

The director of the play, Jim Crum, holds a masters degree in drama from Portland State University. He has directed such plays as "Barefoot in the Park," "My Fair Lady" and "Fiddler on the Roof" on the college level.

Pete McFadden, a sophomore accounting major, is the producer of the show.

Admission for the show will be free for students with an I.D. and $1.50 will be charged for non-students. The box office will remain open through Saturday.

student reactions at a campus forum early in November. The general reaction of students was negative because it would eliminate Wednesdays off for most students.

In a previous interview, Zuccarello gave the "advantages" to the new time schedule. He said:

"It will provide different types of time options for so-called skills courses like writing and accounting which need review."

"It will give students more options for slotting time."

"Empty space on Wednesday will be eliminated."

Prior to Zuccarello's final decision several revisions were made in the original proposal. The major differences between the present schedule and the new proposal include two slots which will meet three times a week, a free slot included on Thursdays, an optional Saturday slot, and classes which met Mondays and Thursdays in the present schedule will meet Mondays and Wednesdays.

Safe, sane, but...

It's been said that the best way to stay safe, sane and sober is to take your tonic in small measures. If that's true, Ken Healy and Charlie Bender must have been the safest and sanest people around, but they sure weren't sober.

Healy and Bender, both juniors, set an unofficial record of sorts for consumption of small measures - one ounce to be exact - when they each drank 324 shots of beer Friday night, Nov. 18. The pair probably would have done about "50 more," according to Healy, but ran out of beer.

The two began their feat at 7:30 p.m. along with eight other students, most of whom are residents of the seventh floor in Champagnat, and a half-keg of Schaefer. Healy, seeded as the third to drop out of the competition, said each participant was required to drink a shot-a-minute for as long as he could. The first contestant dropped out after drinking 114 shots.

Addition of the shots was kept officially by judges John Kelly and Bob Keener. They also levied "penalty shots" for those who didn't drink a full shot.

After three hours, seven competitors were still going strong, but after four hours only a quintet remained.

Freshman Jim Townsend, projected to consume only 85 shots before the competition, was the next to drop out at 235. Bob Danielle, a junior, held on for third place after drinking 311, and from there it was up to Healy and Bender.

They were forced to finish five hours and 15 minutes after they had begun. Bender was given the Monday Night Football Keg Association most valuable player award because he did not spill a drop, said Healy.

If you still think a shot isn't a lot, remember that 324 shots converts to 27 12-ounce cans of beer.

R.C. post unfilled

By Joe Ford

The Resident Coordinator (R.C.) position for Champagnat Hall has not been filled, according to Fred Gainer, housemaster of Champagnat Hall. Gainer attributed the delay to "a lot of things happening at the same time."

Earlier this fall, R.C. positions were discontinued for the first time in seven years. However, as a result, students in Champagnat complained of "disorganization and confusion" within the dorm. It was also thought that Gainer, who was new as Champagnat housemaster, needed someone to help coordinate the dorm's four houses, according to Fred Lambert, assistant dean of students.

In pointing out some reasons for the extended wait in choosing an R.C., Gainer cited the fact that, due to conflicting time schedules, he has still not been able to screen all applicants for the job. "We just haven't been able to get together yet," said Gainer. Another factor in the delay is where the R.C. will live. Gainer said he will live in the sixth floor suite, (634), presently occupied by John Campbell. Campbell will be moving to a suite on the second floor, and has already started the process, but according to Gainer, "he (Campbell) is only half-way through it and that's another reason why we have to wait."

In addition, Gainer has recently decided to use resident advisor (R.A.) evaluations as a help in the screening process, since the new R.C. will be chosen from among the residence staff. "The evaluations by the residents were turned in to me last night, and now I have to go through them," said Gainer.

As a result of all this, plus the added confusion of the Thanksgiving recess, nobody, including Gainer, seems to know when the new R.C. will be chosen.

by Blanchard due to the resignation of Pat Whelton, said he will continue his duties. This leaves Breen as the only elected official on the SG executive board.

Blanchard said he expects the executive board of the SG to continue to work on established priorities, including a constitutional revision. He said he will submit a rough draft of a new constitution to the executive board before the end of the semester.

Ruminations on resignations

Ron Levine, Marti Madory, Jeff Blanchard and Dave Ng all have something in common - they resigned from a position at Marist College.

Levine was the head football coach for 14 years, the entire time the program has been here. We would like to extend our thanks to him for managing to spare time from his law practice and family to cultivate football here. Now that the club football team is moving up to Division III, Levine believes he could not spend the proper amount of time necessary to the squad.

Madory resigned from her job as public relations director to take a similar position for the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) in Fishkill. She provided the area and the college paper with information about what she thought were interesting events and newsworthy items. She will be missed, by the Circle and the other area newspapers, yet we wish her the very best of luck in her new job.

Blanchard resigned from his post as president of the Student Government because he's leaving school to get married in January. Ng is resigning from his position as SG secretary because it, along with his job as feature editor of this paper, has interfered with his academics.

They were elected to the offices for a full year, not just one semester. As a student representative their first priority was to the students. Now, it seems the priority has switched back to personal interests.

The fact that Blanchard and Ng have quit, whether for legitimate reasons or not, raises a much larger issue. Students at Marist need leaders, not quitters. They are crying out, even though they may not realize it, for a voice which will be heard and be effective.

Viewpoint

Simplicity, Flexibility, and Patience

By Reverend Rhys Williams

At this time of year both Christians and Jews celebrate feasts of light, as throughout the history of man, feasts of light have been celebrated. Light which has so often been associated with wisdom and understanding - with man's intellect. Separate from and so outside of man; yet, very necessary if he is to find his way - so to speak. How easily we "lose sight" of various elements and various goals of life, until we find ourselves reflecting upon them by pulling aside either mentally or physically. Our attention is caught and reflected upon a specific element of life that would otherwise have not been noticed. Is that not what education is about? Is that not what man is about? Often we will be pulled aside and forced by circumstances of life to reflect - to see from another point of view. However, we also have the ability to reflect on the circumstances of our lives of our own free will as does Rev. Rhys Williams, Protestant Chaplain at Marist, in the following article written from his viewpoint.

Religious experience comes in all shapes and sizes. It needn't be an extraordinary event which blows your mind. It can be a down to earth, enjoyable experience like spending the summer on the coast of Labrador.

As part of my sabbatical leave my wife and I spent last July and August ministering to the Anglican parish of Cartwright which includes a town of about eight hundred people on Sandwich Bay and many outstations stretching several hundred miles along the middle of the Labrador coast. Here I learned, again, the meaning of simplicity, flexibility and patience.

The weather taught me flexibility and patience. There are no roads connecting the towns in Labrador. All travel between places is by boat or plane. So all travel is dependent on wind and tide. When the weather closes in you just have to be patient. Once I had to wait four days to fly to one of the outer islands where a man had died suddenly. Boats were more dependable than planes but even then you have to be prepared for changes in schedule. On one trip the coastal boat went a day's run off course to pick up a shipment of fish. When you are so completely dependent on the weather you are forced to learn to be both patient and flexible.

Traveling constantly from one outstation to another in the parish also helped teach me simplicity. I soon learned to cut down the amount of baggage I took since I had to carry it on my back. It was the people, however, who finally taught me what counts in life. Whenever we arrived on one of the islands, and we usually came unannounced, one of the families would immediately make us feel at home. "Come in," they invariably said, "you're welcome to share what we have." Once after a long run in a small boat in a rough sea we arrived, wet and cold, at a tiny fishing settlement. I gave my name to the first fisherman who came alongside to load his catch. "Why," he said, "my name is Williams too. You can come stay in my house." And we spent two enjoyable days with him and his family, dining on salmon fresh from the nets and sleeping on the kitchen floor next to the welcome warmth of the wood stove. Theirs is a simple life and I shared it gladly.

Learning the meaning of simplicity, flexibility and patience is, I believe, a religious experience. After all these are the basic ingredients of faith, hope and love.

LETTERS

Unfair

To the Editors,

With the Holiday season fast approaching, there comes a time for rejoicing, but we the Black students who attend Marist are not as joyful as we should and could be. Why? Because too many instructors on this campus tend to grade us Black students because of our being so, instead of our performances, merit and abilities. When are these instructors going to remove the blinders and start being honest with themselves?

When are these instructors going to stop giving A's when they are not earned? When are these instructors going to begin giving A's when they are deserved? Set a precedent Marist for campuses across the nation. You have all the ingredients for greatness, why not use them?

Sincerely,
Gladys E. Jamison

Goodby

To the Editors,

I wish this letter to serve as notification that effective December 17, 1977, I resign my position as Student Government President. This course of action is the result of developing circumstances which were unanticipated at the time when I first took office.

I do not intend this action as a slight to anyone and would like to reaffirm my faith in your abilities to continue to strive for the ideals that have been established by our administration.

I hope that you will recognize and pursue the primary course of action to rewrite the existing Student Government Constitution. In attempting to live up to the goals which I have set for myself and for our administration I will submit, as soon as possible, a rough draft of a proposed constitution which I feel will rectify some of the ills of our present document.

Good Luck to all of you and may we always strive for higher goals.

Sincerely,
Jeff Blanchard

A long time

To the Editors,

It certainly took long enough! Five years to get a sports page feature on women's sports at Marist.

Congratulations for an excellent article. It provided much needed media coverage and exposure for the women's basketball team. I hope Marist students will rally to support us this season.

Sincerely,
Eileen Witt

Thanks

To the Editors,

The members of the Marist College soccer team would like to express their appreciation to those who attended the home soccer games and cheered the team to a great season.

The presence of the fans was really felt and gratefully we say to all of you: Thank you very much for your support.

The Marist College soccer team

A new era

To the Editors,

I would like to extend an invitation to join us in a new era for Marist basketball. The McCann Center affords the opportunity for campus support and spirit. The old day of traveling to home games and spectators attempting to find a ride and even the site of the contest are finally past history. We now have an exciting team, a new building and a new start in basketball for both men and women.

I invite you to join with the teams and provide the much needed support and spirit to help build a winning tradition. Enthusiastic spectators make the college game the great event it is. Your vocal support and cheering will lead us on to victory. With your backing we can all be proud of Marist College and make it a great place to be.

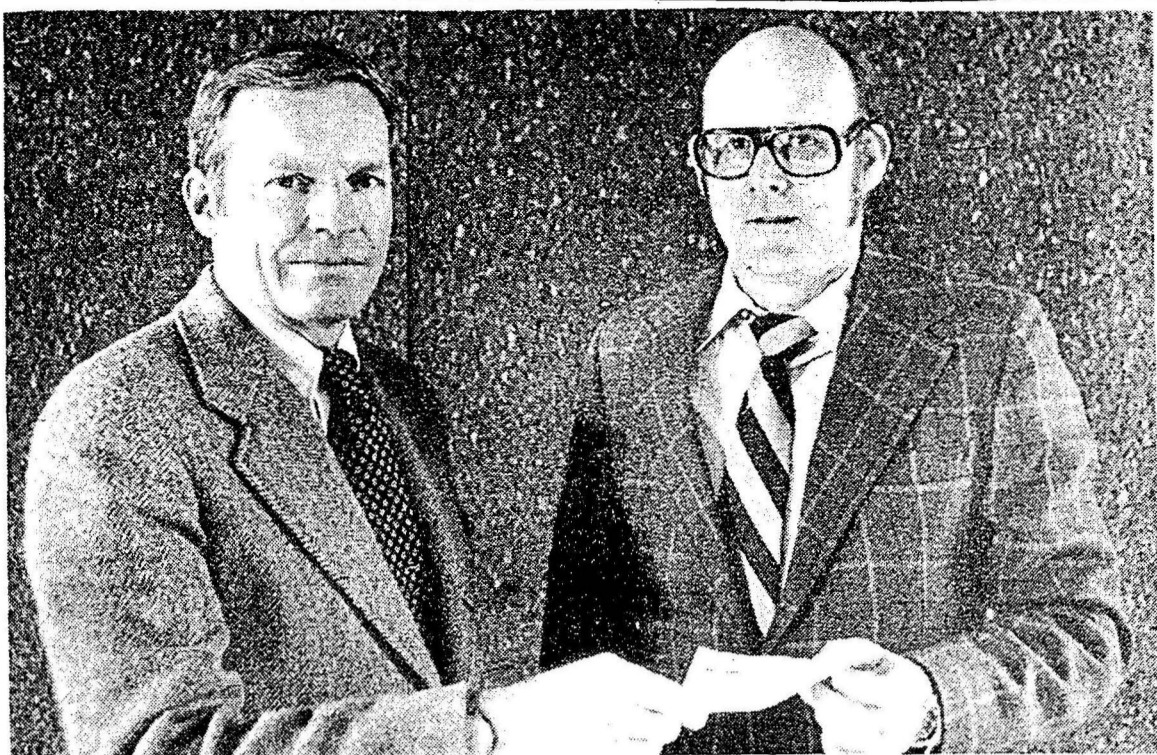

I hope to see you at one of the games.

WMCR to go FM Announcing...

By Ellen Rakow

Marist College Radio (WMCR) will begin to broadcast on FM frequency in January, according to Vincent Capozzi, station general manager.

The station and Bruce Television Company, a Poughkeepsie based antenna service, will equally share the $1,200 conversion cost. The company will also donate the modular necessary for FM broadcasting.

Capozzi said the station will not broadcast off-campus nor change its call letters but sound quality will improve 400 percent.

According to the manager, WMCR will air more rock and jazz features since a station conducted survey concluded students preferred rock and jazz. The station will also broadcast taped personality interviews and sports events from the James J. McCann Center via telephone lines from the press box.

Clifford and Mason earn split success

Oarsmen Tim Clifford and Bo Mason found success two ways on Saturday, Nov. 19 at the Frostbite Regatta in Philadelphia.

The pair, which won the Head of the Connecticut earlier this fall, added coxswain Mike Davis and was told to row against higher ranked and more experienced crews in the Gold Division race after all other entries in its Silver Division scratched.

Clifford and Mason gained unchallenged first place medals for the Silver Division, but more important to them was their third place finish over 1,500 meters in five minutes and 49 seconds against the Gold Division crews. They were beaten by first place Cornell (5:38) and second place Rutgers (5:48.7), and outrowed Harvard another Rutgers crew and a boat from the Vesper Boat Club.

The two practiced intermittently during most of the season, according to Clifford, and only once with the aid of Marist head coach Gary Caldwell, during their two weeks of preparation prior to the Frostbite.

In another race, the Marist junior varsity eight took third place despite a pre-race change in seating caused by a lack of time to change the rigging of its boat. Caldwell said the shell was used by a freshman crew in a previous race.

Junior Bob Missert was inserted into the stroke seat and intended strokesman Tony Lynch was moved back to seven seat. Joe Ford became the six-man, and Rich Neal rowed in seat five. Ralph Desiderio, Victor Fragosa, Dave Fein, Frank Hildenbrand, and coxswain Sue Dubatowka rounded out the crew.

The crew led for most of the race but could not hold off late challenges from race winner George Washington Univ. and second place Georgetown. Coach Caldwell commended Missert for a good job in the unexpected role of stroke.

A mechanical problem stifled the varsity eight from its bid for a victory when two-man Jack Boyle's oarlock broke with 400 meters to go. Caldwell said the crew was among the leaders when the oarlock broke. The race was won by Ithaca in 4:29.

Pat Brown, a senior who did not row because of sickness most of the fall, stroked the boat. He was backed by Clifford, Mason, Jeff Decarlo, Butch Josephs, Bob Keller, Boyle, Jim Palatucci, and Davis as coxswain. DeCarlo and Keller joined the crew only a week before the Frostbite when the football season ended.

A women's four finished fifth of seven crews in the women's fours with coxswain open competition. Caldwell said the crew of Vicky Bailey, Sue Vinall, Kim Fylstra, Debbie Drop, and cox Renee Courtney rowed well despite an "inaudible start call and heavy cross winds."

In another women's four race, Marist gained fifth out of six crews. Junior Kate Lynch stroked the beat and was backed by Sharon Mannain, Maureen Heiser, Mary Hard, and Courtney as coxswain.

Spring Preparation

Caldwell said he is optimistic about spring season, when Marist traditionally places the most emphasis on competition. He said he will have 34 upperclass oarsmen out for the team. Caldwell said he could not predict whether small boats or lightweight or heavyweight program would be arranged. He said he has several oarsmen who could row either lightweight (under 160 pounds), or heavyweight, such as DeCarlo, Palatucci, Brown, Neal and Missert.

Caldwell said the crew would meet at the end of this week to design a training program for the spring. He said the oarsmer would probably have a weight program and a running or swimming program to help them get in shape and would use the rowing tanks in the McCann Center. This is the first winter the team will be able to use the tanks.

He said the crew used the tanks heavily during the first two weeks of the fall program, but little during the rest of the season. Caldwell blamed his duties as sports information director and phys. ed. teacher for the lack of use. He said the training schedule set up by the oarsmen will give him time to supervise the tanks and spend more time with individuals.

Marti Madory resigns to take CSEA job

By Dominick LaRuffa

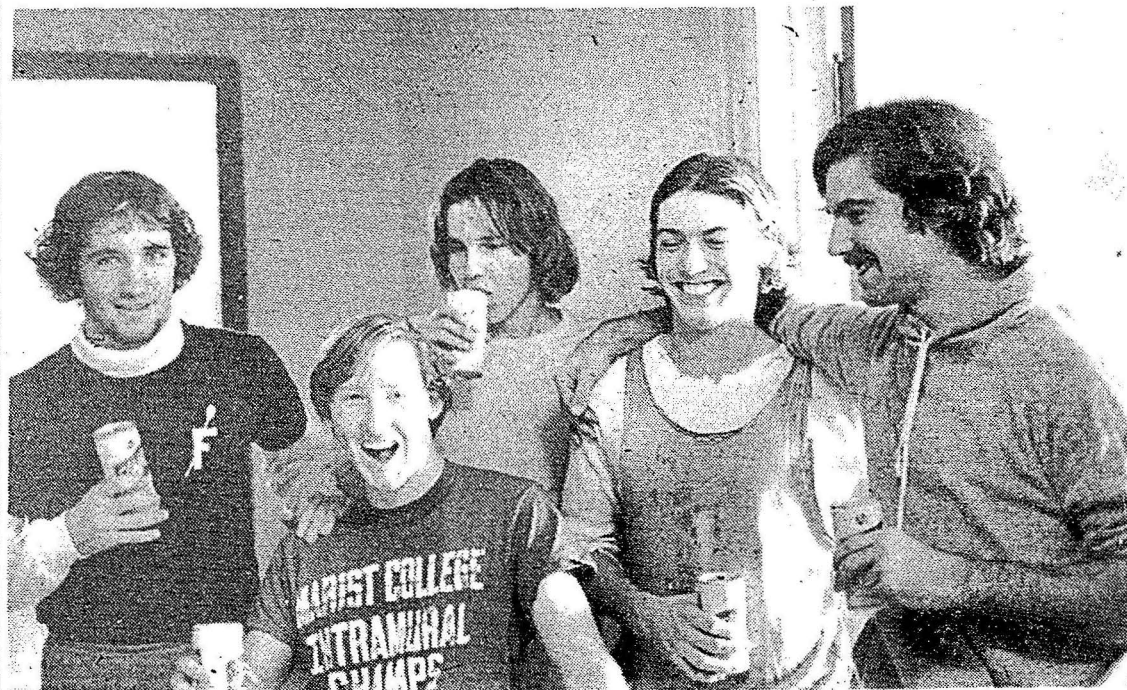

Marti Madory, coordinator of communications at Marist for 14 months, is leaving the college this month to begin a new job in public relations for the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) of northern New York.

She said the new position will involve creation of a "positive image" for the CSEA. She said she is looking forward to the "challenge."

Before coming to Marist in September of 1976, she had been looking for a job for five years, she said. Getting the job at Marist "was a good opportunity," she said. "I really enjoyed contact with the students, especially the ones who worked in my office."

Madory has a bachelors degree in journalism from the University of Missouri.

Woman guard hired

By Mary Yuskevich

Christine Cooper, a new security officer - supervisor, is the first full-time woman security staff member at Marist, according to Joseph Waters, director of security.

Cooper began work November 12, and has already shown she is capable of doing the job as well as a male security officer, said Waters.

She works the regular shifts. He said she is doing an "excellent job" and is "quite impressed." Cooper was highly recommended by the Town of Poughkeepsie Police Department, where she worked as a police officer's assistant, Waters said.

Cooper replaced Harry "Smitty" Smith, who was discharged on October 25.

Carey leads women's win in opener

By John Mayer

Freshman Eileen Carey scored 24 points to lead the Marist women's basketball team to a 95-21 trouncing over Mount Saint Mary in its regular season opener Tuesday night at the McCann Center before a crowd of 60 fans.

Early in the first quarter the Red Foxes built a 6-0 lead, and never trailed the rest of the way. Their tough one-on-one defense, and a full-court press caused numerous Mount turnovers. With six minutes gone they had a 17 point advantage, and went into the locker room at the half leading 43-14.

"We played sloppy in the first half," said head coach Eileen Witt, who was alluding to her team's 17 turnovers. "I think it was due to the girls being nervous."

After scoring three points early in the second half, Mount Saint Mary was held scoreless while Marist came back with 29 unanswered points. Carey had eight of her points during this spurt. Also pacing the Red Foxes was Maureen Morrow and Patty Powers with 14 and 12 points respectively.

Besides controlling the score, Marist also dominated the boards. Powers led the team with 10 rebounds, while Wanda Glenn and Pam Green added nine apiece.

"We played better in the second half," said Witt, "Our shooting seemed to get very hot, and the zone defense worked well. We will get a much bigger test Saturday when we take on C.C.N.Y. The game will be played at City College, starting at 4 p.m.

For the record - Marist shot 44 percent from the floor, and 76 percent from the line. They had 30 steals, and committed 32 turnovers.

The Red Foxes went undefeated in their pre-season play. The women opened on Nov. 18th and easily defeated visiting New Paltz by the score of 64-33. Carey and Powers led the way with 15 and 13 points respectively.

On the 22nd they beat Dutchess 83-70, at the McCann Center. Carey again took high-point honors with 24, Maureen Morrow added 17.

In its final scrimmage on the 26th, Marist squeezed by Bergen Community (N.J.) by the margin of 54-50.

Marist swimmers splash Vassar

Freshman Don Woisin won three events to lead the Marist swim club to a 74-32 victory over Vassar in its first ever regular season meet on Wednesday, Nov. 16 at the McCann Center. Marist was also bolstered by double victories from Ed Sylvia and Mike Boyle.

Marist won 10 of the 11 events, including both the 200 yard medley and 400 yard freestyle relays. Woisin was first in the 50 freestyle, 100 freestyle and 1-meter diving competitions. Sylvia won the 100 individual medley and the 100 backstroke, while Boyle took the 100 butterfly and 200 freestyle events.

Other Marist winners were Ed

Donnon in the 500 freestyle; the 200 yard medley relay team of Cathy Winstanley, Jim Billesimo, Sylvia and Sue Morrow; and the 400 freestyle relay team of Morrow, Margaret Mons, Donnon and Boyle. Bob Clark won the 100 breaststroke to take the only first place for Vassar.

Marist head coach Larry VanWagner said almost all of his swimmers improved their times. He cited Donnon's 30 second improvement in the 500 freestyle, but said it was only the second time Donnon had swum the event.

The team will compete at Hartwick Saturday at 1 p.m.

Football club to go Division III; new Met league being formed

The Marist football club will join a new league and the ranks of NCAA Division III colleges beginning in September, according to Athletic Director Ron Petro.

The new league will comprise most of the schools which were involved in the Met-7, a league created in 1975 by Marist, Manhattan, Iona, Pace, St. John's and Brooklyn.

Petro said the move is tentative for Marist because he is awaiting official approval from Linus R. Foy, president, and Dean of Students Antonio Perez. He says he has received verbal assurance from the two administrators that Marist can move to the varsity level.

The new league is still unnamed, and Petro said Iona, Pace, Brooklyn, St. John's and St. Peter's (N.J.) as well as Marist will probably be members. He said Fairleigh Dickinson may also be a member, but is considering a move to discontinue its football program.

The name of the team would change from the Vikings to the school nickname of Red Foxes, and a varsity program would cost about $500 more to run, said Petro. He said the additional cost would include increased traveling expenses, league and referee fees.

He said the Athletic Department is accepting applications for head coach due to Ron Levine's resignation (see page one). He said interviews will be conducted late in December and a decision will be made in January.

Petro said athletic department officials from Fordham and St. John's met with Sonny Werblin an official of the N.J. Meadowlands Authority, to try and arrange possible small-college football doubleheaders to be held at Giants Stadium during Saturdays in the fall. He said he would welcome such a development which might involve probably one game a season for Marist, and could bring in a percentage of gate receipts.

Foxes Den seeks members

After Marist basketball games, fans will have the opportunity to socialize with players and coaches of the Red Foxes.

The newly formed club which will meet after the alumni tournament finals on Dec. 6, on Dec. 20 after the Manhattan game, on Feb. 18 after the Red Foxes play Trenton State which is also alumni night, and after the C.W. Post game on Feb. 25.

To obtain membership one can buy either a season's ticket for $25, a Foxes Den membership for $10, a Foxes Den membership and a season's ticket for $30, or a Foxes Den membership and two seasons tickets for $50.

HIGH ON SPORTS

by Larry Striegel

Practice game set for tonite

There will be an intra-squad game involving members of the men's basketball team tonight in the McCann Center at 8 p.m. According to head coach Ron Petro, all who attend will be asked to pick-up a ticket free-of-charge at the entrance of the McCann and hand it to a ticket-taker before they walk into the fieldhouse.

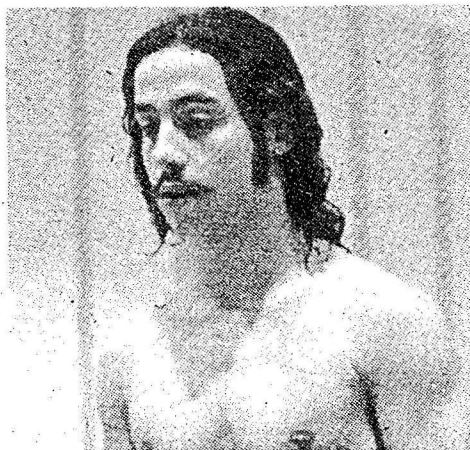

He said the game was arranged to "give students the idea that they will have to have a ticket to get into games." It is one of the first organized basketball games at the McCann and will give Marist employees a rehearsal before the home opener on December 7, against Hartwick.

Mike Teitelbaum, co-editor of The Circle, is writing a George Plimpton-type story about training with the basketball team as an independent study project and will get his change in the sun during the intra-squad game. I predict Mike will develop a sudden interest in spectator sports.

Woisin Named Athlete of Week

Dan Woisin, a freshman from Wappingers Falls, has been named the Marist College Athlete of the Week for the week ending Nov. 21.

Woisin won three events during the Marist swim club's 74-32 drubbing of Vassar on Nov. 16. Woisin won the 50 yard and 100 yard freestyle events, and the 1-meter diving. He is the first swimmer to be named Athlete of the Week.

An honorable mention goes to Charlie Bender and Ken Healy who set an unofficial record for shots of beer. The pair drank 324 (see other story).

Ticket Price Correction

It was incorrectly stated in the last issue of The Circle that the price for a season pass to men's and women's basketball games in the McCann Center will cost $5. The correct price is $25, according to Athletic Director Ron Petro. He said the ticket was arranged for people outside the Marist Community who would be charged the adult price of $2.50 for general admission. Petro said students will make out better by buying tickets at the McCann the day before the game for 50 cents.

It was also incorrectly stated that the women's general admission price would be $1.50. He said the correct price is $1.

Intramural Roundup

Raquetball competition was winding down this week and will head into the playoffs next week. As of Monday, Paul Pless was in the lead in the North with a 5-0 record, and Carmelo Consentino was in second at 2-0. Tom Cassin held third with a 4-2 slate.

Ed Sylvia was undefeated at 6-0 to lead the East, while Joe Walsh was in second at 4-1. Tom Murphy, 3-1 was in third.

In the South, Ross Mauri had a 4-1 slate to stay on top, and Paul Ceonzo was in second place at 4-2. Jim Flynn was in third at 3-2.

Brian Constine, 6-0 topped the West, and was followed by Paul Miano, in second place at 3-1, and Dave Kohrumel in third at 2-2.

The records appear so lopsided because a lot of guys have been forfeiting matches. Kevin Sneed, an intramural judge, says the matches will be counted as losses unless participants can make them up by tomorrow. He said playoffs get underway Monday.

Foul shooting intramurals were scheduled to start Monday night, but didn't come off because the referee didn't have the list of participants. Guys who were supposed to shoot then were rescheduled for Wednesday.

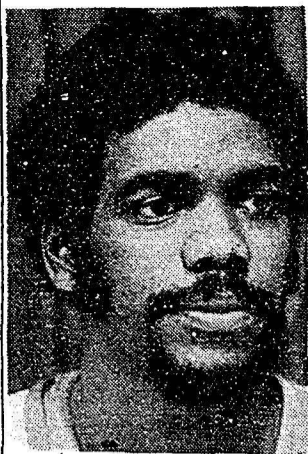

Crew to Decide Future

There will be a meeting and party for the members of the Marist rowing team Friday at 5 p.m. at the McCann Center. Those who are interested in rowing varsity should attend. According to head coach Gary Caldwell, the oarsmen will discuss the fall rowing season, elect captains, winter workouts, spring training, fund raising, and then they will party.

Petro predicts 20 wins for cagers

By Larry Striegel

You might think a team coming off a disappointing 8-16 season with only four returning lettermen, eight freshmen, and a tougher schedule would be happy to come away from the 1977-78 season with a .500 record.

But Ron Petro doesn't think that way. Petro, beginning his 12th season as Marist head men's basketball coach with a career record of 154-126, is looking for his team to win 20 of its 26 games this season. The Red Foxes will set out to try and fulfill his prophecy when they open Saturday night at Montclair. The team will open at home December 7 versus Hartwick.

Petro says he has viable reasons to be so brash. He points to six of his freshmen, who along with five women cagers are the first in Marist history to receive athletic scholarships. Petro is also optimistic because Marist finally has a real home in the $2.9 million McCann Center, completed last April. The team is finished playing its "home" games at Dutchess Community and Our Lady of Lourdes High School as it did for 15 years.

Co-captains Neil Lajeunesse and Rich Crump, the only seniors, will be expected to act as leaders, says Petro. Lajeunesse, at 6-foot-6, was the team's high scorer last season, averaging 17.4 points a game, and 9.3 rebounds. He was named to the ECAC All-Star team last year, and will start at center for the Red Foxes.

Crump, a 6-foot-4 starting forward, is a transfer student from West Point and will be playing this year in his only season for Marist. As a plebe, Crump was the sixth-man for West Point's varsity and averaged 11 points a game. His career high was 28 points against Manhattan. During his sophomore and junior years, Crump's average fell to nine points a game.

Petro says Crump's attitude has been impressive. "Rich Crump will be the key for us," he says. "His attitude has been really good. He hustles and he's going to make the other players work hard."

Sophomore John Boylan, up from last year's junior varsity, will start as guard. Petro says he has been impressed by the improvement of Boylan since last year.

Petro is undecided about the other starting guard. He says it could be between junior Kenny Grimes, also up from the junior varsity, and freshman Barry Jamison. Assistant coach Bob Hildreth, starting his sixth year with the team, says

Grimes may be more effective as a reserve because "He gets anxious sitting on the bench." Grimes, 5-foot-10, is probably the quickest player on the team and has an effective jump-shot from short range.

Jamison is one of three freshmen getting full-scholarships and, at 6-foot-2 handles the ball well, has a decent outside shot and moves well to the basket, Petro says.

Mike Hirschman, another freshman getting a full-scholarship will play opposite Crump at forward to round out the starting five. Petro says Hirschman, 6-foot-6, moves well without the ball and has a good jump shot.

The third freshman getting a full-scholarship is Bill DeWinnie. Petro says he will probably use DeWinnie, 6-foot-7, to spell Lajeunesse at the pivot. Freshmen Arnold Schuman, 6-foot; David Shaw, 6-foot-6; and Jeff Heim, 6-foot-5, are receiving partial athletic scholarships.

Another freshman, 6-foot-5 John Lusa, may play in reserve for Hirschman. Mike Sheldon, a 6-foot-3 sophomore, is another strong player in reserve for the Red Foxes. Petro says Sheldon has "improved tremendously from last year" when he played varsity, has good range from outside, and is strong off the boards.

Other returnees from last year's squad are Jack McHale, a 6-foot-4 sophomore forward, and Ollie Jones, a guard who averaged nine points per game. McHale will miss the first few games due to an injury he suffered during a scrimmage against Quinnipiac.

Freshman, Tom Crotty, a 5-foot-9 guard, and junior Charles Cummings, 6-foot-4, will also sit in reserve for Marist.

The Red Foxes will face their toughest schedule ever this year as they prepare to move up to Division II next season. Their biggest challenge by far will come when they host Division I Manhattan, 13-14 last year, on December 20. Hartwick, another addition, reached the Division II semifinals last year and could be tough in the home opener Wednesday night.

Sacred Heart (28-4), CCAC titlist Dowling, C.W. Post (16-13 last year, and 87-83 losers to Manhattan on Saturday night), and Adelphi (19-5) could give the Red Foxes a hard time.

"We're going to have a great season," says Petro. "If we get off on the right foot and win our first few games we could get 20 wins. We'll have to take them one at a time."
