

L. T. OLDS, FISHER. TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1964

Good Evening Everybody:

Former Vice-President Nixon in Formosa has been talking about our former great military commander in the Far East. In Taipei he quoted that famous saying of General Douglas MacArthur that "In war there is no substitute for - victory." Nixon, applying the MacArthur principle - to South Viet Nam. Insisting that we must take all the measures necessary for victory. Including, if need be - military action against the Red bases in North Viet Nam.

Anything less than victory, would be dangerous to the free world - says Richard Nixon.

MACARTHUR

As for General MacArthur, he lies in state tonight - in an appropriate place; the armory of the New York Seventh Regiment. The Seventh, part of the Rainbow Division - which got its name from MacArthur during World War One. The General referring to the fact that the Rainbow Division drew its soldiers - from all over the United States.

Crowds have been filing through the Armory - at a rate of three thousand an hour. No slow-down - when it began to rain. And these Americans too - constitute a Rainbow Division, so to speak. Citizens of many states - and practically all the walks of life. Anxious to see a sight - that they will tell their grandchildren about. Douglas MacArthur - lying in state.

PRIMARY

Wisconsin voters have been casting their ballots today - in their Presidential primary - voting for a rather odd pair of candidates. One, a segregationist - from the Deep South. The other, a favorite son - who doesn't want to be a favorite son.

The segregationist - Governor Wallace of Alabama. His opponent - Wisconsin's Governor Reynolds who entered the primary simply to oppose Wallace. Reynolds, asking for votes - as a favorite son, but promising to turn them over - to President Johnson.

WEATHER

Those who agree that there is poetry in American names - will be interested in the weather pattern tonight.

It covers names - like these. From the Big Horn

Mountains to the San Juans. From the Elk River, to Cherokee, and DeKalb.

In the Rocky Mountains - the story tonight is more snow. Fourteen inches in the San Juans - South-Western Colorado. Seven inches on the Big Horn - of Wyoming.

As for rivers - in Tennessee, the Elk, the Duck, the Little Pigeon - are on the rampage with flood warnings out for such communities as Fayetteville, Shelbyville, and Sevierville.

Cherokee, Marshall, DeKalb - they are Alabama counties that were battered today by - tornadoes.

Twisters leaving a trail such as twisters leave - houses, overturned cars, and uprooted trees.

CIVIL RIGHTS

The first fatality among the Civil Rights demonstrators of Cleveland - was due to one of those ironic accidents that crop up in the news every so often. The Reverend Bruce Klunder was with a group - determined to stop work on a school building. Specifically - to stop the bulldozer. As the police tell it - three demonstrators threw themselves - in front of the machine. The driver, stopping short - going into reverse. Without realizing - that the minister had thrown himself behind the bulldozer. Which - ran over him.

The death of a man of religion - whose conscience brought him out to demonstrate at a school construction site in Cleveland.

BRAZIL

Brazilian Army Intelligence reports that last week's military coup - forestalled a Communist coup. The Reds, outmaneuvered - by only forty-eight hours.

Documents seized in the headquarters of the Party - reveal the following plan. First - a general strike. The Red-dominated unions, to paralyze Brazil - by bringing the workers away from their jobs, and into the streets of the cities. While the turmoil was going on, the leader of the generals - was to have been assassinated. After which, the Reds intended to occupy the government buildings - and force President Goulart to appoint a Communist Cabinet.

The belief is that Goulart would <sup>not</sup> ~~not~~ have offered - any opposition. Hence, the military coup that overthrew him - before he could turn Brazil over to the Reds.

COLLISION

That collision on Lake Maracaibo in Venezuela - was caused by a failure in the electrical system. The power, shutting off - as the tanker "Esso Maracaibo" approached the bridge. Instead of maneuvering under the bridge - the big tanker slammed into three pillars.

■ Fifteen hundred feet of the span - collapsed into the lake. Along with - at least four cars. The tanker, almost capsized - when chunks of concrete rained down upon it. Tonight it's listing badly - and leaking oil into Lake Maracaibo.

CONGRESS

~~now~~ When a housekeeping bill comes to one million, five hundred thousand dollars - you can be ~~pretty~~ sure ~~that~~ it has to do with the Federal government. In fact - Congress. The House Appropriations Committee, approving that much - to take care of the new Rayburn office building. Money to pay - two hundred and eighty-five employees. From maids and cooks - to janitors and electricians. The housekeeping side of the Rayburn/<sup>building</sup> budget - a cool million-and-a-half.

YACHT

A ship with handpainted murals and frescoes, and authentic old masters on the walls.

A new luxury liner? A new - queen of the Atlantic? No - this vessel is only - a hundred and twenty feet long. Even the Queen Elizabeth doesn't have - gold plated faucets or - an oceanographic laboratory.

This vessel belongs to Prince Rainer. The Princes of Monaco have made the science of the sea their hobby - for over a century. Building their yachts for elegance - and experimental oceanography. So there you have - the "Albecaro Second." A spanking new yacht flying the flag of Monaco. She sailed today - on her maiden voyage. Skipper - Prince Rainer. Among the passengers, Princess Grace.

MAUGHAM

Another dispatch concerns - another famous resident of the Riviera. Namely - Somerset Maugham. A few weeks ago there were more reports - about the celebrated British novelist, who is now 90. He was said to have remarked - that he'd never leave his Riviera home again.

But - today he did. Departing by car for a drive over the Maritime Alps - into northern Italy, and on to Venice. With him, Alan Searle - his male secretary, who might have become the novelist's sole heir. Except that a French Court ruled in favor of - Somerset Maugham's daughter whose case was pled by Count Rene de Chamburn, direct descendant of Lafayette.

Off for Venice today - Somerset Maugham, at 90 still going strong. And you, Dick?

AVIATRIX

The flying lady from Long Beach, California - is in Khartoum tonight. Joan Smith, piloting her two-engined Apache - from Dakar in West Africa. Touching down at Fort Lamy near Lake Chad - before the hop across the rainforest to the Capital of the Sudan.

Next stop - Aden, at the south western corner of Arabia. Eight days behind schedule - so far - but after all, what's eight days on a jaunt around the world!
