Teacher's Prayer

Lord, keep my heart still young
My soul still strong,
Nor let my last gay song be sung
Life's way along.
Let me each childish mind
Still understand;
Strength let them ever find
Within my hand.
These thou hast given me,
Dear Lord, I pray,
Let no one, vanquished be
Along Life's way!

Our Graduates

BRO. ALFRED EUGENE:—

Everything comes, if only man
Will sit and wait and not try to plan.

BRO. ALPHONSE JUSTIN:—

Over games and things he can enthuse,
But leafy he does rarely use.

BRO. BEDE RICHARD:—

His ways, his looks and words beguile,
Couldn't they be from the Emerald Isle?

BRO. CONAN VINCENT:—

Early in youth he discovered his tongue;
And a mind that's full will keep it young.

BRO. DAMASUS CYRIL:—

No rapture compares with the bird that sings,
But how he hates the alarm that rings.

BRO. EDMUND JUDE:—

Tall and dark and rather suave;
He did his best, but couldn't behave.

BRO. EDWIN GILES:—

The ease of living plus a fine sense of humor,
But mighty weight makes for a welcome roomer.

BRO. EUSTACE BERNARD:—

The finest in life he would enjoy,
And never cease to be a boy.

BRO. FABIAN ROBERT:—

With shining mind God makes him blest;
Courage and faith supply the rest.

BRO. GODFREY:—

A fair size lad, with great understanding;
And on his feet it's the safest landing.

BRO. LEONARD VINCENT:—

Think he is so quiet and rather demure?
Maybe; but of his talents we're quite sure.

BRO. PRUDENS EUGENE:—

In opinion strong and so seldom wrong;
Let Eternal Truth be your constant song.

BRO. ROGER BERARD:—

Ever happy with a 'Swing and Sway'
Life to him is a cloudless day.

BRO. ROMUALD HENRY:—

In stature tall, though in anger short,
Never far away is the quickest retort.

BRO. RONALD GERARD:—

Wherever bitter debate is found,
You never expect he'll be around.

BRO. THOMAS EDWARD:—

Who can judge his highest worth?
So aptly hid 'neath love of mirth.

—o—
Though separated by great distances we are united in spirit today, with our dear Brother Adrien Michel, Canadian Scholastic and companion of this year.

One who is ready for every demand,
The will to obey makes one fit to command.

Words of Wisdom

He who wants, must choose.

He who has, must lose.

He who knows, won't blab.

He who guesses, will gab.

He who borrows, sorrows.

He who gives, lives.

He who keeps dark, is deep.

He who can earn, can keep.

He who aims, hits.

He who has, gets.

He who waits, wins.

He who wills, can.

Farewell From First Year

With your departure scheduled for tomorrow
We call to mind the words of Juliet,
And verify that parting is sweet sorrow
And we pick out the bunks we're gonna get!

"We hate to see you go" the farewell song goes
It sure will break our hearts to see you pack.
But we will find our sorrow somewhat lessened
By getting those nice desks down in the back!

One joyful thought will soothe our melancholy
As Panamas and suits you galy don;
The silver lining to the cloud of parting
Is "we will rule the roost when you are gone."

Though you must go, there's much you'll leave behind you,
Impressions made that time will not delete,
For instance your initials on the woodwork
And things like Leonard's nose and Godfrey's feet.

Despite the fact you gave us torticollis
And other pains not mentionable here
We've reason to admit, upon reflection
It's been a pretty amicable year.

So till we meet again in Mt. Michael's
St. Ann's or Haverstraw, or what e'er comes
Please don't forget your friends in old Po'kipsie
Goodbye, good luck—now hit the road you—friends!

    4. Our wealth of learning; may they assimilate it as we have done.
    5. Our silent prayers for complete success in their progress.
    6. Our sense of humor--it will help in an unexpected crisis.
    7. Our many and useful projects(?).
    8. The art of asking questions instead of answering them.

Prayer at Sunset

O God, Supreme of might and power,
O'er man and beast, bird and flower,
O'er good and bad, dark and light,
Be with me thru the sombre night.

Guard me if the lightning flashes,
Strengthen me as thunder crashes,
Take my soul in Merciful Hands
Close to the Heart with loving hands.
I cannot bear to be alone,
Claim me, God, for Thy very Own.
