

L:T. OLDS, FISHER, TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1963

Good Evening Everybody:

The problem facing the railroads tonight - to arbitrate, or not to arbitrate. The unions have traditionally been opposed to anything - but a negotiated settlement of labor disputes. Tonight negotiations - appear to have failed. So President Kennedy is asking both sides - to let Justice Arthur Goldberg arbitrate. Justice Goldberg, now on the Supreme Court, Former Secretary of Labor - and before that - a labor lawyer.

The President hopes the Supreme Court Justice may be acceptable to the union as well as to the management. And that the strike scheduled for Thursday still can be headed off.

BASEBALL

Before we refer to Willie Mays and what he did in the All-Star Game - have you heard about the two pitchers? Although Larry Jackson of the Chicago Cubs, gave up four hits and two runs, he won the game. Jim Bunning of the Detroit Tigers, gave up only one hit, and no earned runs - but lost. That's irony, As for Willy Mays, Giants center fielder, Willy knocked home the winning run - just by grounding out - the runner on 3rd got home before Mays was put out at 1st. During the game he did get one hit to tie Stan Musial for the All Star Game record of twenty. In so doing he scored two runs, giving him an All Star record of fifteen. Also he stole two bases. Another All-Star Game record for total of five.

No homers today. But as he often does, Willie Mays provided the drama - and the difference, as the National League beat the American League - five to three.

IDEOLOGY

To know what's cooking in Moscow, why listen to the music in North Korea! Sounds odd? Yes, it's the odd kind of twist - so typical of our time.

The North Korea Radio has stopped playing - Communist peace songs. The Pyongyang announcer telling his audience - that music is always ideological, that peace songs are a reflection of - the ideology of peaceful coexistence, Khrushchev's betrayal - of Marxism-Leninism.

The Chinese Reds even in Korea, are maintaining their hard line - against the Khrushchev ideology. Refusing to budge an inch - toward peaceful co-existence. Result - a deadlock. The discussions, not to continue - until further word arrives from Mao Tse Tung.

Meanwhile, Peking is continuing its denunciation of the Kremlin. The Reds of Southeast Asia - picking up the refrain - along with the ban on Communist peace songs - by the comrades of North Korea.

CHINA FOLLOW IDEOLOGY

British experts on Communism think they've found - the real reason for the hostility between the Red Giants. All because of Khrushchev's refusal to give Mao nuclear weapons. There's a report circulating around London that Khrushchev has admitted - he could get a settlement with Mao at any time, if he would present Mao with an arsenal of atomic bombs. Which the boss of the Kremlin - has no intention of doing - because he considers the boss of Peking -- too unreliable.

Khrushchev did start to help the Chinese Reds - to develop a nuclear capability. Then he thought better of it, and called home - the Soviet technicians who took their equipment and their fissionable material back to Moscow.

They say that ever since then Mao has been furious - with Khrushchev.

NUCLEAR

The western negotiators who will begin talks in Moscow on Monday - are going to the Soviet capital in an optimistic frame of mind. Comparatively optimistic - anyway. No feeling in advance - that it will be a waste of time.

I'm sure you know - the reason for the changes. The dis-array in the Communist bloc has raised hopes - that this time Khrushchev really means what he says about a nuclear test ban. That for once he may not attach - unacceptable conditions to his offer. His feud with Mao Tse Tung - pushing him closer to the West.

American negotiator Averell Harriman - received a special briefing today from President Kennedy who summoned his top advisors to the White House - Secretary of State Rusk, Defense Secretary McNamara, and others. A long session during which alternative lines of strategy were worked out - to deal with any proposals that Khrushchev may have in mind.

BRITAIN

The British and American governments - agree on one thing. Entirely too many secrets - have been stolen by the Soviets. That stringent measures should be taken - to tighten up allied security. There must be better transatlantic cooperation - to catch spies before they do any damage, or before they defect to the Russians. Closer teamwork by British Intelligence and the F.B.I.

The London talks have come up with - another common approach. Subject - membership in the U.N. Specifically - Moscow's refusal to pay its share of the cost. By next January, the Russians will be - two years in arrears. The present Anglo-American decision - is to force that issue, compel Khrushchev to pay up - or lose his vote to the U.N.

ROYALTY

The King and Queen of Greece are being given more protection - than any other visitors to London. Not even Khrushchev and Bulganin were surrounded by so massive a security force. Tonight sailors of the Royal Navy are on duty - in the streets of London. Joining Bobbies and soldiers - ~~in~~ in restraining the crowds.

~~What's~~ ^{Oh-} The problem? [^] Greek exiles and their British sympathizers charge - that hundreds of political prisoners are in Greek jails. Hence the demonstrations today - against the State visit of King Paul and Queen Fredericka.

SPACE

The amount chopped from the administration space bill by the House Space Committee - four hundred and eighty-nine million dollars. Which is a bigger cut - than the space agency has said it can live with.

But the space agency is hopeful. That most of the money will be put back - by the time the bill goes from Capitol Hill to the White House.

Century, just uncovered by Norwegian archaeologists who say that Hovde, a major Viking fortress, was the main staging area from which Viking ships sailed - to invade Britain and France.

VIKINGS

Now let's take a look at - a flotilla of warships. Beginning with their size - ninety feet long, and eighteen feet wide. Hardly a formidable fleet - you say?

Ah, but these warships went to sea - during the Dark Ages. They were vessels in which the Vikings of Nensa, Norway - terrorized Europe. Lost to view since they were pulled ashore - back in the Tenth Century, just uncovered by Norwegian archaeologists - who say that Nensa, a major Viking fortress, was the main staging area from which Viking ships sailed - to invade Britain and France.

FISH

A fisherman is in a British jail tonight - because Charles the Second visited Brussels two hundred and ninety-seven years ago.

Here's the story. When the merry Monarch returned to London in Sixteen Sixty Six - he wanted to show his appreciation to the Belgians. Which he did by allowing Belgian trawlers - to fish in British waters.

Today a Belgian trawler - violated the three mile limit off Seaford, England. And was rounded up - by the Royal Navy. The skipper, protesting, ^{- Dick -} that he had a perfect right to be there. A right granted by Charles the Second - in Sixteen, Sixty-Six.

ILLITERACY

Should we pay illiterates - to learn how to read and write? An official of the Welfare Department told House Investigators today - that this might be the simplest way to deal with the problem. That reading and writing are hard to master - at the adult level. So those who try should be paid.

Why get rid of illiteracy? For humanitarian reasons, because most jobs are impossible, except for those who can read and write. Besides, how are they to know what jobs are going if you can't even rad the "Help Wanted" ads?
